REBELS TAKE STRATEGIC PEAK SOUTH OF GIJON

Insurgent Force Advancing on Biscayan Seaport Captures Mt. Ventaniella and Government Trenches on High Plateau.

TWO COLUMNS NEARING JUNCTION

Coastal Troops Continue Westward Movement Against Asturians and Fight Way to Point 3 Miles East of Anueva.

By the Associated Press.

HENDAYE, French - Spanish Frontier, Sept. 27.—Combined insurgent infantry and aerial attacks, Generalissimo Francisco Franco's commanders reported today, have wrested strategic Mount Ventaniella, on the border of Leon and Oriedo provinces, from the Government's Biscayan army.

Occupation of Government trenches, on a rocky plateau about 3000 feet high in Western Europa Mountains, the insurgents said, has brought nearer the junction of Franco's southern and eastern columns converging on Gijon, last Government-held port in the Spanish northwest.

The northern insurgent column, advancing west along the Bay of Biscay coast, reached a point about three miles east of Anueva. This force is divided into two groups, one heading southwest toward Covadonga and the other toward Ribadesella, 32 air miles east of Gijon.

Spaniards crossing the border into France said gasoline storage tanks, containing about 2,300,000 gallons, were set afire Friday north of Barcelona and still were burning yesterday.

Government sympathizers said insurgent flyers ignited the tanks but guards and inhabitants said no planes were in sight when the fire broke out.

Communists said their militiamen raided a storehouse in Barcelona yesterday and seized 6000 grenades, 3000 rifles and several trench mortars. They charged that anarchists had hidden the munitions, planning another uprising in Catalonia.

Rebel Attack Near Toledo; Loyalist Gains in Aragon.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Sept. 27.—An insurgent attack on Government lines just outside Toledo, 40 miles southwest of Madrid, and important Government gains on the Aragon front, close to the French-Spanish frontier, were reported at Government military headquarters here yesterday.

Insurgent troops outside Toledo were said to have attacked Government positions with artillery, tanks, armored cars and airplanes, with only small gains. The Government troops fell back to secondary lines and, with the aid of reinforcement, stood fast.

From the other area of combat, north of Huesca in northeastern Spain, came reports that Government troops were trying to cut off Jaca, just a few miles south of the French border, and already had fought their way across the Gallego River, taking at least two positions on its bank.

The railroad linking Huesca and the insurgent stronghold, Zaragoza, was said to have been cut. Immediate Government objectives were the highways north and south of Jaca. Success in taking them would leave the insurgents connected with the French border only in the Irun sector.

"It is no exaggeration to say our northern Aragon offensive is a real disaster for the insurgents," the Government communique said.

(Copyright 1937 by the Pulitzer Publishing Co.)

CHARLESTON, Mo., Sept. 27.—The largest oak tree in Missouri—6 feet 5 inches in diameter, and towering 128 feet 10 inches—will be cut down by a lumber company, unless a proposal to buy the land on which it stands is carried out.

The giant tree, a burr, or mossy-cup oak, is situated in Mississippi County in the Bird's Point-New Madrid floodway, 20 miles south of Charleston, on the only remaining large-sized tract of hardwood forest in the State, where 125 men, employed at five lumber camps, are now cutting all marketable timber.

Composing part of this forest of 20,000 acres—31 square miles—are the largest stands of northern cypress that remain, not only in Missouri, but of swamp areas that once extended west of the Mississippi River from Poplar Bluff to Little Rock, Ark.

Measurements of the "Big Oak," as it is known locally, were taken by August P. Beilmann, arboriculturist at Shaw's Garden, who accompanied the Post-Dispatch reporter to view the tree.

47 Feet to First Limb.

Measurement of the 6-foot 5-inch diameter was taken at 4½ feet above the ground, where the circumference was 21 feet 1 inch, and from which point the ponderous trunk extends up in almost uniform girth 47½ feet to the first limb. At three feet above the ground the trunk circumference measured 23 feet 5 inches, with a diameter of about 7 feet. At one foot above the ground, through the buttresses, the circumference was 30 feet 4 inches, and the diameter about 10 feet.

Massive branches spread the crown of the tree over an area of 135 feet. Three main branches extend generally to north, west and south, but a fourth branch, which made the crown symmetrical, has broken off within the last two years. It lies at the bottom of the tree, and would make a good-sized tree in itself, having a diameter of 2 feet 10 inches at its base, where it had rotted.

From tests made, Beilmann estimated the tree to be 380 years old, not a great span of time for a tree its size. But the tests showed that the tree had grown rapidly, and still was increasing the girth of its trunk at the rate of a fourth of an inch a year, apparently the result of rich soil and plenty of ground moisture.

"It is unquestionably the largest oak in Missouri," Beilmann said, "and very likely the largest burr oak in this section of the country." He based his observation on his measurements, experience, the favorable growing conditions, and the fact that most other hardwood tracts have been cut down years ago. "It is a remarkable specimen and should be preserved," he said.

Tree in Good Health.

The tree is in good health and well-foliaged. While the entire lower part of the trunk appears to be solid, the area where the limb broke off likely has a rot cavity that would require tree surgery to preserve it in good condition.

At least a 10-acre tract of the forest around it would have to be left standing to preserve the tree from wind damage and to maintain present soil and moisture conditions as much as possible, Beilmann said.

He believes the oak is not rooted much deeper than five feet, because the soil in that area is saturated with moisture below a five-foot depth, preventing aeration and extensive root growth at lower levels. If left standing by itself, he said, the tree would be damaged by wind and probably blown down.

"Even if left in a 10-acre tract, there is no positive assurance the tree would last a long time," the tree expert said. "It may have a deep cavity where the limb broke off, which can only be determined by further examination. It has reached maturity. The cutting of the forest is going to bring dryer soil conditions, permit the growth of brush, and increase danger from fire."

"Big Oak's" Neighbors.

The "Big Oak" stands among hickory, pecans, ash, hackberry, gum and oaks of other varieties, many of them two feet in diameter, forming pillars that support a thick canopy beginning 70 feet above ground. The "roof" of the forest here, as well as over most of the entire tract, is 110 feet above the ground. Underneath it is a perpetual shadow-land and no considerable amount of underbrush grows there, leaving the forest floor unobstructed, except for some low-growing plants and grasses. There are no tall weeds.

The acorn of the oak, set in a

PREVENTS SIT-DOWN ON LINER BY THREAT TO CALL IT MUTINY

Captain Wins Dispute With Engine Room Crew Over Man's Demotion.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. — Capt. William B. Oakley of the Panama-Pacific liner California, was about to have a sit-down strike on his hands, but he averted it by telling the crew he would label the action "mutiny on the high seas."

The incident occurred at Cristobal, when the engine room crew threatened the strike because of the demotion of a third-class electrician to a wiper. Capt. Oakley told National Maritime Union delegates on the vessel that he would have the ship towed by tugs outside the harbor, where, if the refusal to work continued, he could declare it mutiny. After a slight delay, the engine room crew turned to and lit their fires, and the ship proceeded to sea, arriving here today.

Capt. Oakley said the man involved will be discharged, adding that he was "unfit for duty" for three days.

GROCER KILLED IN STORE; ROBBER CONFESSES CRIME

SUSPECT ARRESTED, IDENTIFIED BY TWO

Harry Kitchner, proprietor of a grocery at 4364 Finney avenue, was shot and killed in his store at 6:30 o'clock this morning by a Negro robber.

Police announced at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon that Earl James, a Negro taxicab driver, 23 years old, 2703 North Whittier street, had confessed the killing after being questioned at the Deer Street Police Station.

While there were no witnesses to the shooting, several persons in the vicinity told police they heard a shot fired and saw a Negro run from the store, through a gangway across the street, and leave in an automobile in the alley in back of 4357 Finney.

Fired "to Save My Own Life."

Lieut. Fred H. Grabbe, acting head of the Deer Street District, said James, after two hours of questioning, and identification by two witnesses of the rober's flight, admitted he went in the store to hold it up and shot Kitchner "to save my own life."

James, a driver for the Careful Cab Co., said he did not draw his pistol at first, but, when Kitchner resisted, pushed him back, drew his weapon and fired one shot. He fled to his cab in the alley with $10 and drove to the company garage at Twenty-second and Chestnut streets, going off duty at 7:15, as usual, he related. He was driven home by the man who relieved him and, on reaching there, shaved off his mustache, he said.

The witnesses who identified James were Morris Brooks, Negro Pullman porter, who lives at 4357A Finney, across the street from the Adam Aaron store, and Adam Aaron, 4300A Cook avenue, Negro employe of a garage next door to the store. Brooks said he was shaving when he saw James run through his back yard to the cab, a new green Plymouth. Aaron said he saw James standing in front of the grocery before the holdup, then heard the shot and saw the robber dash across the street.

Police worked on the theory that Kitchner had been held up, after his wife, Mrs. Mollie Kitchner, reported that $10 in bills and change, which he had taken from hom a short time before, was missing. In the cash register, $8.70 had not been disturbed. Mrs. Kitchner arrived at the store a few minutes after the shooting, and accompanied her husband to City Hospital in an ambulance.

Traced Through Taxicab.

On learning the robber drove away in a Careful cab, police obtained from Ben F. Austin, Negro, head of the cab company, the names of several drivers answering the robber's description, including James. His arrest, identification and confession followed.

Kitchner, found on the floor back of the meat counter with a bullet wound below the left eye, was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital. The bullet had ranged upward into the brain.

Police found Kitchner's 38-caliber revolver on the cash register, 12 feet from where he fell. The weapon had not been fired.

Frank King, a bakery driver, of 2832 Madison street, said he was about to enter the store to make a delivery when a voice from within whispered: "Keep still and stay out." King said he could not make out through the screen door who addressed him. He drew back, and a moment later there was a shot and a Negro ran out and across the street, King related.

Held Up Once Before.

Kitchner, 48 years old, resided with his wife at 4549A McMillan avenue, and had operated the store about five years. He formerly ran a grocery at Belt and Ridge avenues. Surviving also are three sons and two daughters, ranging in age from 9 to 18 years.

Members of Kitchner's family said he was the victim of a holdup several years ago while operating the store at Belt and Ridge.

Jungle Python Injures Movie Man.

SINGAPORE, Straits Settlements, Sept. 27. — Zoltan Kegl, sound expert with a Paramount motion picture crew making a jungle movie, was slightly injured in the arm today by a 25-foot python. Fifteen men were needed to free Kegl from the python's coils.

LEAGUE REPORT CONDEMNS JAPAN FOR BOMBINGS

Advisory Committee Assails Air Attacks on Chinese Towns—Assembly to Get Resolution Tomorrow.

SPAIN ATTACKS GERMANY, ITALY

Delegate Demands Bluff of 'Two-Headed Monster Threatening All Europe' Be Called.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Sept. 27.—The 23-nation League of Nations advisory committee on the Far East tonight adopted a resolution condemning the bombing of Chinese towns by Japanese airplanes.

The resolution will be submitted to the League of Nations Assembly tomorrow. It was adopted after China's spokesman, Dr. Wellington Koo, had urged the League to name Japan the "wrong doer to the world," and after British, French, Swedish and Russian committee members orally condemned Japan for bombing Chinese noncombatants.

The unanimity of the sentiment so impressed the committee president, Foreign Minister William Munters of Latvia, that he ordered a recess in order that a resolution condemning Japan might be prepared immediately.

Text of Resolution.

The resolution follows:

"The Advisory Committee, taking into urgent consideration the question of aerial bombardment by Japanese aircraft of open towns in China, expresses its profound distress at the loss of life caused to innocent civilians, including great numbers of women and children, as the result of such bombardment, and declares that no excuse can be made for such acts, which have aroused horror and indignation throughout the world, and solemnly condemns them."

Viscount Cranborn of Britain led the move for immediate action; France's Foreign Minister, Yvon Delbos, quickly seconded.

"If we close our eyes, we would be guilty of failing in our duty," Delbos said.

The Swedish delegate warmly supported the views of Britain and France, while Foreign Minister Maxim Litvinov, Russian delegate, said the committee should condemn some other forms of attack from which China now suffers as well as air bombardments.

"Although the Japanese are not represented on the committee, having refused to participate, a Japanese official is waiting in the corridor outside the committee room, eager to hear what action is being taken and preferring not to appear in public," Litvinov commented.

"Can Make Sentiments Clear."

Dr. Koo asked that the committee at least name Japan the aggressor, if it cannot go further and "enforce international law and principles of the covenant."

"If the League cannot defend right in the face of might, it can at least point out the wrongdoer to the world," said Dr. Koo. "If it cannot enforce international law and principles of the covenant, it can at least make it known that it hasn't abandoned them. If it cannot prevent the ruthless slaughter of men, women and children and the wanton destruction of property by the illegal and inhuman methods of aerial bombardments, it can at least make clear where its own sentiments are in order to reinforce the universal demand of a civilized world for the immediate abandonment of such practices."

Dr. Koo spoke in English before a solemn audience which crowded the small committee room. Leland Harrison, United States Minister to Switzerland, sat near the speaker.

Refers to Hull's Protest.

Committee President Munters of Latvia, explained at the opening of the meeting that it had been unanimously decided to hold the hearing of China's complaint in public.

The Chinese statesman called attention to the protest by Secretary of State Hull as an example of the world-wide reaction to the Japanese policy.

The Chinese Government, Dr. Koo said, believes there are certain measures the League could recommend to the Governments of member states.

"We particularly ask . . . that the utmost encouragement and assistance be extended to China, the victim of flagrant oppression," petitioned Dr. Koo.

The Chinese people, he said, pin their faith on the League to "rescue them from slaughter." He envisioned a picture of destruction that later may come to other cities

CHINA'S TROOPS PUSH BACK JAPANESE AT SHANGHAI; NEW AIR RAIDS ON CITIES

New Judge, Police Commissioner

FRANK B. COLEMAN. OTTO F. HARTING.

FRANK B. COLEMAN NAMED JUDGE TO SUCCEED M'AFEE

As He Goes to the Circuit Bench, Otto F. Harting Will Take His Place on Police Board.

Appointment by Gov. Stark of Frank B. Coleman, attorney and member of the St. Louis Police Board, as a Circuit Judge to succeed Judge J. Wesley McAfee, resigned, was announced at Jefferson City this afternoon.

At the same time it was announced that the Governor would appoint Otto F. Harting, 3438 Russell boulevard, to succeed Coleman on the Police Board. The announcement was made by William M. Ledbetter, the Governor's press representative, just before he and the Governor departed by automobile to attend the St. Louis National Horse Show tonight.

Coleman, who is 58 years old and resides at 5042 Washington boulevard, was an unsuccessful candidate for Democratic nomination for Circuit Judge in the 1936 primary election. Although he had the indorsement of the St. Louis Bar Association, he ran ninth in a field of 25 candidates for six nominations. He was appointed to the Police Board by Gov. Stark last February.

Harting's Interest in Traffic.

Harting, 59 years old, is a retired civil engineer. A graduate of Washington University and a native St. Louisan, Harting said he had had a keen interest in traffic law enforcement since his son, Richard Harting, was seriously injured in February in an accident in Kirkwood. The son underwent an operation at aMissouri Baptist Hospital today to relieve a bone condition resulting from the accident.

Harting retired four years ago after 28 years as assistant chief engineer for the Terminal Railroad Association. Although a Democrat, he said he has never been active in party politics. After his graduation from the university in 1901, he served as civil engineer in grading the present site of Washington University.

Harting said he first met Gov. Stark last January, when he attended the presidential inauguration in Washington, going there on the "Stark Special."

Unions' Request to Stark.

Before the Governor's recent appointment of Thomas L. Farrington, an insurance agent, as a member of the Police Board, St. Louis labor unions requested that consideration be given them in the forthcoming appointment. Gov. Stark explained later that he had made the appointment before he received the request.

In announcing his retirement, effective next Friday, Judge McAfee said recenty that he was returning to private practice because of insecurity of a professional career on the bench. He declared that a Circuit Judge had to enter politics, contrary to professional ethics, in order to be re-elected. Judge McAfee was elected for a six-year term in November, 1934.

TOKIO SUBMARINE SINKS 11 FISHING JUNKS; 300 KILLED

Ten Wounded Survivors Reaching Hongkong Tell of Attack on Boats Off Cheelongkau Point.

By the Associated Press.

HONGKONG, Sept. 27.—Approximately 300 men, women and children were killed Wednesday when a Japanese submarine sank a fleet of Chinese fishing junks off Cheelongkau Point on the South China coast, 10 survivors reaching here today said.

The survivors, all wounded, were brought here aboard the German liner Scharnhorst.

They said the submarine rose to the surface suddenly while they were fishing off Cheelongkau last Wednesday. The submarine opened fire and sank junks after junk. While the wounded and dying, including 100 women and children, struggled in the water, the submarine left, making no effort, the survivors said, to pick up any of the victims.

Only one junk out of the fleet of 12 managed to hoist sails and escape.

For some time the 10 survivors drifted until they were picked up by the Scharnhorst.

Some of the junks were understood to have been under British registry. British naval base authorities started an investigation.

ANOTHER STEAMER REPORTS SIGHTING MISSING ENDEAVOUR I

British Ship Cheyenne, Off Irish Coast, Radios That Yacht's Chew of 19 Are Well.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—The British yacht Endeavour I, unsuccessful challenger in 1934 for the America's Cup, was reported sighted today 260 miles off the Irish Coast by the British steamer, Cheyenne.

The Cheyenne's master, Capt. Alcock, wirelessed the Associated Press he had found the Endeavour, missing since Sept. 13, and heard that all the crew of 19 were well.

Shortly afterward, Lloyds was advised by radio from Valentia, Irish communications center, that the Cheyenne had sighted the Endeavour I.

Workmen Replacing Girders in Railroad Deck on East Side of Span Fall 15 Feet.

Three employes of the Terminal Railroad Association suffered bruises of the legs and arms this afternoon, when the scaffolding on which they were replacing girders in the railroad deck of Eads Bridge collapsed, causing them to fall 15 feet. The men were working above the East St. Louis approach to the vehicle deck of the bridge.

The injured were George D. Jones, 4426 Oakland avenue; W. L. Burke, 2548 Sullivan avenue, and R. S. Lee, 1729 Missouri avenue. They were taken to Missouri Pacific Hospital.

DEFENDERS REGAIN THREE VILLAGES IN LOTIEN SECTOR

PLANES AGAIN BOMB CANTON IN SOUTH

Projectiles Dropped on Railway Terminus, Killing Civilians—Pursuit Ships Drive Off Enemy Flyers at Nanking.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 27.—Japanese reinforcements were rushed to the battle front northwest of Shanghai today to halt a Chinese counter attack as Japanese warplanes bombed the densely populated cities of Eatsern China, killing nearly 200 civilians.

At Canton in the south the crowded terminus of the Canton-to-Hankow Railroad was fired by the bombs of the air raiders and there were heavy civilian casualties.

The environs of Nanking, the capital, down the Yangtze River, were bombed, but Chinese pursuit planes turned back the attackers from the city proper.

At Shanghai, Japanese warships and land batteries opened a heavy fire on the North Station area. Several shells struck near the British barricades on the north border of the International Settlement.

A Chinese spokesman said that they had broken the Japanese attack on the northwestern flank of the battle line in the Lluhong and Lotien sector and recaptured three additional villages.

As the Japanese reinforcements moved into the area to stop the Chinese push, Japanese army officers announced they planned a major drive along the entire front. They said that when it gets under way "it will be like a flood breaking down the dikes."

Three Air Raids in Nanking Area.

The Japanese air raiders made three attacks in the vicinity of Nanking, causing some damage and about 50 civilian casualties. Nearly all the bombs were dropped along the Yangtze outside the city limits, particularly on the Yung Li chemical plant, the largest in China, and the Pukow Railway terminus across the river from Nanking's bund

The Japanese planes flew over the United States river patrol boats Luzon and Guam to drop their bombs a half a mile away while Admiral Edward J. Marquart and his staff aboard the Luzon, viewed the attack.

Chinese sources said that Japanese bombers had killed 50 civilians at Chuhsien, and 40 more when their bombardment destroyed a hotel at Kinghwa. Both are near Hangchow, 100 miles southwest of here.

At Hankow and Wuchang, commercial cities of the middle Yangtze valley, 303 bodies of Chinese civilians were recovered from debris after Saturday's air raids. A total of 469 injured were reported in the two cities. Three hundred Chinese dwelling houses were demolished and hundreds were partly destroyed.

Besides the $1,000,000 power plant, buildings damaged at Nanking included the headquarters of the French Havas News Agency and the German Transocean headquarters with its valuable radio equipment. The United Press office was reported slightly damaged.

Japanese Explanation on Canton.

A Japanese naval spokesman explained that the reason the Hankow Railroad station at Canton was bombed was that United States Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson had informed the Japanese authorities early in September the evacuation of foreigners from Hankow and surrounding areas would be completed by Sept. 26.

Therefore, with the arrival of a train of refugees at Canton at noon yesterday, the withdrawal of foreigners was considered completed and Japan felt free to bomb the

NEW JAPANESE ADVANCE IN DRIVE ON YENMEN PASS

Invaders Break Through Inner Great Wall, Move Nearer Concentration of 80,000 Chinese Troops.

MAJOR BATTLE EXPECTED SOON

Tokio's Forces Also Capture Liangchang, 40 Miles From Kweisui, Capital of Suiyuan Province.

By the Associated Press.

PEIPING, Sept. 27.—Japanese reported last night that their troops in West Hopeh Province had broken through the inner Great Wall in a drive toward a Chinese troop concentration at Yenmen Pass, in Shansi Province.

The reports said 80,000 Chinese troops, "including many Communists," were massed to resist the Japanese drive. A major battle appeared imminent.

On another northwestern front, Japanese were said to have fought their way through a rugged mountain pass in Northwest Shansi Province to capture Liangchang, only 40 miles from Kweisui, capital of the Mongolian province of Suiyuan.

Chinese Retreat Westward.

Japanese troops were pursuing Chinese westward along the Peiping-Suiyuan railway. The Chinese were retreating from captured Pingtichuan, in Eastern Suiyuan, the eastern gateway to the buffer region between China proper and Soviet-protected Outer Mongolia. Japanese said they had captured and disarmed 500 Chinese troops and had taken several Chinese armored trains.

Despite Japanese reports of complete conquest of the area about Peiping, artillery fire was reported only 20 miles from the city, where it was believed a detachment of Chinese remaining in the mills threatened the invaders' lines. Japanese did not explain the action.

Japanese forces which captured Paotingfu, Chinese stronghold south of Peiping, were reported marking time before a new drive southward. Japanese said there still were a large number of Chinese troops south of Paotingfu, but ridiculed the possibility that they menaced their positions.

Chinese Forced to Celebrate.

In Peiping, the capture of the Chinese stronghold at Paotingfu, south of here, and preparations for an extended advance southward toward the Yellow River, were celebrated under orders. Thousands of Chinese were massed in front of the former imperial palace and told to applaud the announcement of the fall of Paotingfu.

Unconfirmed reports said two Chinese commanders were executed on orders of their superior for allowing the Japanese to break through their lines before Paotingfu was conquered. Names of the commanders were given as Gen. Wan Fu-lin and Gen. Feng Chan-hai.

The Japanese-dominated governing bodies of Peiping, Tientsin and East Hopeh Province were consolidated under the chairmanship of Kao Ling-weu. At an inauguration of the new administration the committee pledged to attempt to "restore North China" to normalcy.

A thrilling air fight over Madrid yesterday was seen by 150,000 persons gathered near the sports field to watch an athletic parade. Three insurgent bombers roared over the field and anti-aircraft guns opened fire. Then Government fighting planes took to the air and drove off the raiders, which were unable to bomb the city. It was the first aerial engagement over Madrid in several weeks.

The Chilean Charge d'Affaires denied, in a telegram to the Spanish Government Foreign Office at Valencia, that the Chilean Embassy in Madrid had been used as headquarters for an alleged anti-Government plot, as the Government has charged.

Spanish Sailors Desert Loyalist Ship in London; Tired of War.

By the Associated Press.

FALMOUTH, England, Sept. 27.—The Spanish Government destroyer Jose Luis Diez sailed toward Spain last night, leaving 85 members of the crew in the custody of British police.

The Spanish seamen, accompanied by numerous officers, deserted when the 1650-ton destroyer put into port for repairs after suffering severe damage in an insurgent aerial bombing of Gijon on the northern Spanish coast.

A spokesman for the deserters declared they were not insurgent sympathizers but were only tired of war.

Spain Demands League Call Bluff of Germany, Italy.

Earlier, Julio Alvarez del Vayo, Spanish Government delegate, demanded that the League "call the bluff" of Germany and Italy—"this two-headed monster which appears to want to declare war on all Europe."

The young former Minister of Foreign Affairs created a tense atmosphere with his impassioned appeal and condemnation of German and Italian intervention in the Spanish civil war on the side of the insurgents.

Not a seat was vacant at the long tables of the Committee on Political Questions. Every inch of press and spectator space was packed throughout his hour-long indictment. A hundred delegates and diplomats stood, lining the sides of the room.

Backs Negrin's Five Proposals.

Del Vayo demanded the adoption of five proposals presented by Juan Negrin, Spanish Government Premier, to the League Assembly. They are: Recognition of Italian and German aggression, study of ways to restrain it, granting of rights to the Spanish Government to buy war materials freely, withdrawal of all non-Spanish combatants, and extension of the protection of the Nyon anti-piracy patrol to the Valencia Government's shipping on the Mediterranean.

A year of Europe's "Hands off Spain" policy, Alvarez del Vayo declared, "has helped produce a situation admirably described by President Roosevelt in his recent commemoration address on the 150th anniversary of the Constitution of the United States when he said:

"'Fear is spread throughout the world; fear of aggression, fear of invasion, fear of revolution, fear of death.'"

He told the committee, "The other party to the Spanish conflict if you wish to reduce the problem to personal terms, is Hitler and Mussolini."

"If the democratic countries declare a collective decision—before it is too late—that peace shall be preserved," he pleaded, "neither Germany nor Italy nor the two together will dare to start a European war.

"In one or two years it may be too late."

"The free peoples of the world are waiting patiently to emerge from this humiliating situation created by the terrorism of two powers whose lust for hegemony feeds most upon infirmity of purpose!" he shouted.

He confronted the League with the alternative of "identifying yourself with aggressor states that consider aggression compatible with the system of non-intervention and with the Covenant (of the League), or of recognizing non-intervention as a fiction."

If the League believes non-intervention is a "fiction," the Spaniard declared, it is "bound to pronounce in favor of the re-establishment with regard to Spain of understandings of international law and the obligations of the Covenant."

"Let there be no mistake," he warned. "The decision taken by this assembly can vitally affect the essential interests of the whole League, the highest moral values of humanity and the future of world peace."

DRAFTING PLAN TO PUT ITALY IN SHIP PATROL

French and British and Rome Representatives Meet in Paris.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 27.—Naval experts of Great Britain, France and Italy worked today on a plan to give Italy a share in the Mediterranean patrol, which is intended to stop attacks on merchant shipping.

The experts were summoned to a meeting at the French Ministry of Marine, officially to discuss purely technical aspects of the patrol set up by the nine Powers at Nyon and in which, so far, Italy has refused to participate.

The delegates, under the chairmanship of Cesar Campinchi, French Minister of Marine, were expected to delve immediately, however, into the problem of satisfying Italy's terms for participation.

Italy refused to lend its warships to the international fleet unless Great Britain and France would grant Italy parity, but agreed to attend the conference here after London and Paris issued a statement recognizing Italy as a "great Mediterranean Power."

French Foreign Office officials indicated Italian warships would be permitted to patrol the area between the Island of Sicily and the North African coast, the bottle-neck through which the main east-west Mediterranean shipping lane passes.

French and British naval authorities ironed out the details last night in the hope of a speedy agreement.

Authoritative diplomatic quarters predicted Italy would enter the Mediterranean patrol and, having entered, would work in harmony with Great Britain and France.

Once admitted to parity with Britain and France, they have said, Premier Mussolini has promised to send no more Italian troops to Spain.

BRITISH OFFICIAL SHOT TO DEATH IN GALILEE AMBUSH

By the Associated Press.

JERUSALEM, Sept. 27.—The British Commissioner of Galilee, Lewis Andrews, was shot and killed yesterday by a band of terrorists that waited in ambush outside a church building in the town of Nazareth until the official emerged from Sunday services.

The Commissioner's bodyguard, Constable Peter McEwan, was also killed in the fusillade of bullets.

Witnesses said that three assailants, two clad in European clothing and one in peasant dress, fired the fatal shots at close range.

Authorities of Palestine immediately closed all roads leading from Nazareth and set police dogs on the trail of the terrorists.

Andrews had incurred the enmity of extremists because of the strictness of his rule as District Commissioner, and his life had been threatened frequently.

Witnesses said he turned on the church steps and cried to his assistant, Pirie Gordon: "Run for it, Gordon, they've got us this time!"

He had known that attempts on his life were probable.

SEVEN INDICTED IN NEW YORK ACCUSED OF BAKERY RACKET

Max Silverman, Held in Los Angeles, and Others Charged With Extortion in 1934 and 1935.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—An 11-count indictment was returned by special grand jury in Supreme Court today, charging Max Silverman and six others with dominating the baking industry in New York fo rthe purpose of extortion. Silverman was arrested last week in Los Angeles and held on $250,000 bail after a 21-month search by agents of special rackets prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey.

Along with Silverman, the grand jury indicted Jacob (Gurrah) Shapiro, Charles (Lepke) Buchalter, and four others, now being sought by police, whose names were not disclosed. Shapiro and Buchalter have been fugitives from justice for some time.

The indictment against Silverman will be taken by plane to Los Angeles tonight. It accuses Silverman and his six alleged confederates of extorting sums ranging from $200 to $5000 from various New York baking companies in 1934 and 1935. The total amount alleged to have been extorted reached $22,600.

Civil Action for Overdue Payments to Be Filed to Offset Statute of Limitations.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27. — United States District Attorney Michael L. Igoe said today a suit to collect $270,011 in income taxes from Al Capone, former "Public Enemy No. 1," would be filed in District Court tomorrow.

A jeopardy assessment was levied against Capone in 1931 for $68,664 for the years 1926 to 1929, inclusive. Later, Igoe said, a deficiency assessment of $201,347 was filed.

The District Attorney said the new civil suit was ordered at this time to offset the statute of limitations, which would apply next month.

JAPAN SETS UP CUSTOM HOUSES IN SHANGHAI AREA

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 27.—American business men reported today Japan had established its own custom houses in the Shanghai area in what appeared to be an attempt to direct foreign commerce in the International Settlement and French Concession.

American importers bringing goods into Shanghai on Japanese boats said the Japanese had established custom depots in the Japanese-occupied Yangtzepoo and Hongkew areas of the International Settlement and were collecting duty on all imports.

American business men feared that if the Japanese retain control of the Settlement and Chinese waterfront territory through establishment of a puppet government after hostilities are over, they will be able to divert American goods destined for inland distribution to their own areas.

railway, which is of great military value to the Chinese.

Cholera continued its increase in Shanghai over the week-end at the rate of 50 cases a day, sending the total to 1700 in the International Settlement and French concession.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's first ranking officer, Gen. Chu Shao-liang, relieved Gen. Chang Chih-tsung of the command of the Chinese forces in Shanghai today. No reason was given for the change.

Gen. Chu said he was confident of an ultimate Chinese victory no matter how many reinforcements the Japanese may bring in.

"The Japanese infantry is afraid to come out in the open where the Chinese soldiers are superior," he said. "Japan relies mostly on mechanized units, airplanes, artillery and tanks, but never on its infantry."

37,000 Wounded Chinese From Shanghai in Nanking Hospitals.

NANKING, Sept. 27.—Chinese military authorities disclosed today that 37,000 wounded Chinese have been brought to Nanking hospitals from the Shanghai battle zone, creating a serious problem in the bomb-scarred national capital.

The terrific toll of the Chinese-Japanese conflict has "strained the hospitals beyond the breaking point," medical officials said, adding that cholera outbreaks and Japanese bombings had seriously disrupted transportation of wounded from the front to Nanking hospitals. As a result, less seriously wounded war victims were said to be making their own way from the Shanghai region to Nanking for medical treatment.

All day Sunday crews worked feverishly to construct new bomb-proof dugouts and strengthen old ones that officials credited with saving thousands of Chinese lives during the last air raid.

Water and public light service, disrupted during the Saturday raid, were restored partly, but most private dwellings were lighted only by candles and feeble lamps.

The Government issued an official statement accusing the Japanese air corps of "treacherously and unlawfully disguising their planes with Chinese insignia." The communication followed a Japanese air raid on Kwangteh late Sunday in which the attacking aircraft were reported to have been disguised as Chinese planes.

RUSSIA WARNS JAPAN NOT TO BOMB EMBASSY

Notifies Tokio It Will Be Held Responsible Whether Damage Is Accidental or Not —Rejects Chinese Plot Report.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Sept. 27.—Japan was warned by Russia today it would be held fully responsible for any bombing of the Soviet Embassy in Nanking, whether it was accidental or intentional.

Russian officials announced last night that a "determined protest" had been made to Japan despite an officially conveyed Japanese report of a Chinese plot to involve the Soviet in a war between China and Japan. Japanese consular officials were said to have informed Russian diplomats in Shanghai four days ago that Chinese falsely were marking their planes to simulate Japanese warcraft.

With these planes, the Japanese said, Chinese aviators planned to attack the Soviet Embassy and so enrage the Russians against Japan that they would enter the war on the side of China.

The Soviet reply was delivered Saturday to the Japanese Consul-General in Shanghai. It declared Russia considered the report "pure provocation, showing the intention of some Japanese military powers to bombard the Soviet embassy intentionally and then try to escape responsibility."

The official organ of the Soviet Government, Izvestia, published, without comment, a Chinese note asking Russia "to take measures which would help end quickly such barbarous and inhumane activities" as Japanese bombardments.

The Soviet note, delivered in Tokio yesterday, was considered in responsible circles to be a direct response to China's plea for assistance.

"Impossible Conditions."

"Several bombardments of Nanking by Japanese aviation, resulting in many human victims among the peaceful population and destroying a number of buildings of non-military importance, arouse fears the continuation of such bombardments threatens also the Embassy of the U. S. S. R., the life of the Ambassador, his employes as well as the property of the Embassy of the U. S. S. R." the note said.

"The Soviet Government has all the more reason to fear such consequences of the undertaking of of the Japanese military forces since it is known impossible conditions have been created by the actions of Japanese military authorities for the normal fulfillment of their functions by the Soviet Consulates-General at Tientsin and Shanghai and the Consulate at Kalgan.

"Considering actions of the Japanese military authorities toward Nanking as well as their request for evacuation of the Soviet Embassy are unlawful and contrary to generally recognized principles of international law, the Soviet Government makes a determined protest against such actions of the Japanese military authorities as unprecedented in the history of international relations.

"It reiterates the Embassy of the U. S. S. R. in China has been instructed to continue at its post and warns the Japanese Government it will be considered fully responsible for any consequence of such unlawful actions."

Officials denied, Japanese reports that Soviet troops had been massed on the border of Japanese-controlled Manchoukuo.

Japan and Russia Reported Concentrating on Border.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Sept. 27.—Russia and Japan were reported today to be concentrating huge bodies of troops along the frontier of Siberia and Manchoukuo.

The newspaper Hochi said in a dispatch from Tsuruga that the Siberian port and army headquarters of Vladivostok was seething with anti-Japanese excitement. The populace, Hochi said, was being inflamed by posters and speeches. Tsuruga, on the Northwestern coast of Japan, is linked to Vladivostok by direct steamship lines.

Heavy concentrations of troops, military equipment and supplies were reported on the Soviet side of the border where Japanese and Russian interests have clashed repeatedly in the last few months.

To meet the Soviet threat, picked Manchoukuo troops were said to be massing on the opposite side of the frontier in the hill country north of the Korean peninsula.

Russia was reported to have placed a large number of planes at strategic points along the border.

Military Alliance Charged.

The Foreign Office spokesman said he had "much information" about the reported pact but was "in no position to discuss it now."

The alleged agreement was said to be a corollary to the non-aggression pact signed by Russia and China.

Reports, mostly from Shanghai, include the most minute details of colossal military stores which Russia is alleged to have agreed to supply to the Chinese armies.

Tokio newspapers were unanimous in charging indignantly that the Soviet was responsible for the stiff resistance of the Chinese army and for delaying tactics adopted both on the North China and the Shanghai fronts.

They charged the Russian Ambassador to China had conferred lengthily with the Chinese Premier, Chiang Kai-shek, and "virtually commanded" the Chinese to accept the Russian tactics and wage a protracted war against Japan.

This, with an increasing number of recent incidents, has caused a serious crisis in relations between Russia and Japan. The Soviet has been charged by Japan with illegal seizure of Japanese fishing vessels; Russia counter-charged that Japan had violated its operating agreements for the Sakhalin Island coal concessions.

Supreme Court Takes Jurisdiction Over Case in Cole County.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 27.—The Missouri Supreme Court en banc today assumed jurisdiction of a quo warranto proceeding recently filed by Attorney-General McKittrick to oust Prosecuting Attorney Carl F. Wymore of Cole County from office for alleged failure to enforce the laws against gambling in Jefferson City and the county.

The Court granted a writ of quo warranto, returnable in 30 days. After this return is filed by Wymore, the Supreme Court will docket the case for future hearing on the merits and jurisdictional questions involved. A special commissioner likely will be appointed to take evidence.

McKittrick filed the ouster proceeding Aug. 24, a day after Gov. Stark called on Prosecuting Attorneys of 37 Missouri counties to clean up slot machines "and other gambling rackets."

The suit charged Wymore with participation in "a conspiracy to permit the unmolested operation of gambling devices."

Wymore contended a quo warranto proceeding could not be instituted in the Supreme Court to oust a county official, because the Legislature had provided a statutory means for ouster of such officials, through action in the Circuit Court.

JOYNT REVERSED ON SLOT MACHINE PROTECTION ORDER

St. Louis Circuit Judge Who Restrained Police Exceeded Authority, Supreme Court Holds.

HIS ORDER KILLED WITHOUT DISSENT

Judge Douglas, All Others Concurring, Rules That 'Rotary Merchandisers' May Be Seized.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 27.—Circuit Judge John W. Joynt of St. Louis, who issued a temporary restraining order last December preventing the St. Louis Police Department from interfering with the operation of a slot machine, was reversed today by the Missouri Supreme Court.

In issuing a writ of prohibition stopping further action in the suit by Judge Joynt, the Supreme Court held he had acted without jurisdiction and had issued the restraining order without notice and without hearing evidence.

The injunction suit had been filed in St. Louis Circuit Court by Sid O. Martin, proprietor of a lunchroom at 6310 South Grand boulevard, after police had confiscated a machine which they contended was a gambling device and which he described as a "rotary merchandiser," a game of skill, not of chance.

Opinion by Judge Douglas.

The opinion of the Supreme Court, written by Judge James M. Douglas of St. Louis, with all other Judges concurring, greatly widened the scope of St. Louis police in their campaign against slot machines. The opinion held that police had the power to seize rotary merchandisers of the type of that operated by Martin and destroy them summarily.

Judge Douglas pointed out in the opinion that the Supreme Court had recognized the rule that courts of equity generally would not interfere with authorities charged with enforcement of criminal laws. The rotary machine was a gambling device and so unlawful, the opinion held.

"Furthermore," the opinion went on, "courts generally will not sustain actions in regard to property which has for its object the violation of law, as such property is outlawed. Certainly a court of equity will not listen to a man who asks it to protect an unlawful device."

As to Judge Joynt's failure to hear evidence concerning the machine's method of operation, the opinion pointed out that Martin's injunction petition gave only a meager description of the device.

"The court is forced to the conclusion," the opinion said, "that it was the intention of the respondent (Martin) to avoid any statement which might embarrass his cause."

"Public Nuisance."

Holding that the machine was a "public nuisance," the opinion said, "Its only design and value is for use in violating our gambling statutes. That it was set up by the owner for use by the public is admitted in the (injunction) petition. Under our laws this constitues a felony."

The Court said that in view of its conclusions it was not necessary to pass on the question of validity of a statute empowering the president of the Board of Police Commissioners to order destruction of a device which he decided, after a hearing, was used for gambling purposes.

Judge Joynt had attacked constitutionality of that law in his return to the application of the Police board for the writ of prohibition.

The machine, containing prizes attached to a revolving disk, is placed in operation when a coin is dropped in the slot. As the disk revolves, the operator applies a brake lever and one of the prizes may then be knocked off into a chute by a plunger.

It was plain that this was not a vending machine, the Supreme Court's opinion said, as it did not give the same return in value of merchandise each time a coin was deposited. The opinion quoted decisions in other jurisdictions, holding slot machines unlawful where "the chances were unequal in favor of the machine." The test of gambling, the opinion said, was whether the result of operating a machine was one of chance.

Last January the Circuit Attorney's office discontinued its practice of permitting defendants charged with felonies in gambling indictments to plead guilty to lesser charges and pay comparatively small fines, as low as $50 in many instances. Although there has been a large number of indictments since adoption of the new policy, none of the defendants has yet been put on trial.

Under the old practice, persons charged with setting up slot machines, a felony punishable by a penitentiary sentence of two to five years or a jail sentence of six to 12 months, were permitted to plead guilty of the misdemeanor of permitting the setting up of a gaming

In issuing a writ of prohibition stopping further action in the suit by Judge Joynt, the Supreme Court held he had acted without jurisdiction and had issued the restraining order without notice and without hearing evidence.

The injunction suit had been filed in St. Louis Circuit Court by Sid O. Martin, proprietor of a lunchroom at 6310 South Grand boulevard, after police had confiscated a machine which they contended was a gambling device and which he described as a "rotary merchandiser," a game of skill, not of chance.

Opinion by Judge Douglas.

The opinion of the Supreme Court, written by Judge James M. Douglas of St. Louis, with all other Judges concurring, greatly widened the scope of St. Louis police in their campaign against slot machines. The opinion held that police had the power to seize rotary merchandisers of the type of that operated by Martin and destroy them summarily.

Judge Douglas pointed out in the opinion that the Supreme Court had recognized the rule that courts of equity generally would not interfere with authorities charged with enforcement of criminal laws. The rotary machine was a gambling device and so unlawful, the opinion held.

"Furthermore," the opinion went on, "courts generally will not sustain actions in regard to property which has for its object the violation of law, as such property is outlawed. Certainly a court of equity will not listen to a man who asks it to protect an unlawful device."

As to Judge Joynt's failure to hear evidence concerning the machine's method of operation, the opinion pointed out that Martin's injunction petition gave only a meager description of the device.

"The court is forced to the conclusion," the opinion said, "that it was the intention of the respondent (Martin) to avoid any statement which might embarrass his cause."

"Public Nuisance."

Holding that the machine was a "public nuisance," the opinion said, "its only design and value is for use in violating our gambling statutes. That it was set up by the owner for use by the public is admitted in the (injunction) petition. Under our laws this constitutes a felony."

The Court said that in view of its conclusions it was not necessary to pass on the question of validity of a statute empowering the president of the Board of Police Commissioners to order destruction of a device which he decided, after a hearing, was used for gambling purposes.

Judge Joynt had attacked constitutionality of that law in his return to the application of the Police board for the writ of prohibition.

The machine, containing prizes attached to a revolving disk, is placed in operation when a coin is dropped in the slot. As the disk revolves, the operator applies a brake lever and one of the prizes may then be knocked off into a chute by a plunger.

It was plain that this was not a vending machine, the Supreme Court's opinion said, as it did not give the same return in value of merchandise each time a coin was deposited. The opinion quoted decisions in other jurisdictions, holding slot machines unlawful where "the chances were unequal in favor of the machine." The test of gambling, the opinion said, was whether the result of operating a machine was one of chance.

Last January the Circuit Attorney's office discontinued its practice of permitting defendants charged with felonies in gambling indictments to plead guilty to lesser charges and pay comparatively small fines, as low as $50 in many instances. Although there has been a large number of indictments since adoption of the new policy, none of the defendants has yet been put on trial.

Under the old practice, persons charged with setting up slot machines, a felony punishable by a penitentiary sentence of two to five years or a jail sentence of six to 12 months, were permitted to plead guilty of the misdemeanor of permitting the setting up of a gaming device, an offense punishable by a fine of $50 to $500 or a jail or workhouse sentence of 30 days to one year.

The new policy was announced after the September term grand jury of 1936 had criticised the methods used in enforcing gambling laws. In announcing the change, Circuit Attorney Miller said leniency had not stopped gambling and had given the element of licensing to the practice of accepting a fixed fine.

Judge Joynt's Reversals, by Himself and Other Courts.

Judge Joynt, who was swept into office in the Democratic victory of November, 1934, has been reversed before, both by himself and by an appellate court.

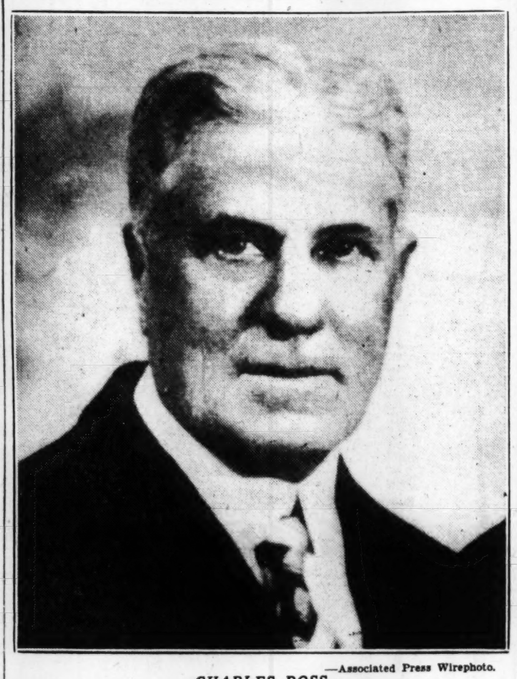

He came into public notice prominently last February by his ruling depriving the grand jury of access to the ballot boxes in an investigation of the riverfront bond issue election frauds. At first he instructed the grand jury it might open the boxes but later he reversed himself and thus effectually prevented further investigation. Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller has appealed to the Supreme Court from this ruling.

Previously Judge Joynt had been reversed by the St. Louis Court of Appeals, which held in another case that he had granted the wrong remedy in issuing a writ of prohibition to prevent the Board of Election Commissioners from discharging a clerk already dismissed. The Court of Appeals ruled Judge Joynt had exceeded his jurisdiction, holding that the proper remedy was certiorari for review of the Election Board's action.

TWO ENCEPHALITIS DEATHS REPORTED

Total Now 77 Since June 30; Eight New Cases Over Sunday.

Two more deaths from encephalitis (sleeping sickness) were reported by the Health Department today, bringing the total since June 30 to 77.

Eight new cases were reported, bringing the total to 329 in the city. This was a revised figure prepared by the Health Department after several diagnoses of encephalitis were found to have been incorrect.

In addition, in St. Louis County, 105 cases were recorded before the policy of sending patients to Isolation Hospital instead of County Hospital was adopted last week. In East St. Louis, five cases have also been reported.

Those whose deaths were reported today were Miss Katherine M. Buckley, 83 years old, a retired school teacher, and Mrs. Anna Spraul, 81, 3746 South Spring avenue.

Miss Buckley, who taught in the St. Louis public schools for 64 years before her retirement in 1934, succumbed at Mt. St. Rose Sanatorium, 9101 South Broadway, where she had resided since retiring.

She was about 16 when she joined the teaching staff in 1870 and was assigned to her first position in the Pestalozzi School. In the following 17 years she taught in five grade schools and then became a primary grade instructor at the Charless School, 2226 Shenandoah avenue, where she remained 47 years.

Funeral services will be held at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, 1701 Longfellow boulevard, with burial in Calvary Cemetery. A sister, Miss Elizabeth Buckley, and a brother, Frank C. Buckley, survive.

20,000 SEALSKINS AVERAGE ABOUT $22

Prices at the semi-annual auction of Government sealskins today were about 24 per cent lower than those at the last auction in April. The average bid for each of the 20,000 skins was about $22, or $7 below the price paid last spring.

Philip B. Fouke, president of the Fouke Fur Co., who sold the seal skins and 510 fox pelts for $440,339 for the Government's account at an auction room at Fourth and Market streets, attributed the decline in price to the threat to international shipping resulting from wars in Spain and China. The drop in price, he said, also reflected the general apprehension in Europe, where the demand for sealskins is greatest. There was a heavy sale of furs during the late summer and the reported low seak skin inventory would have resulted ordinarily in a higher price, Fouke said.

Forty buyers, including representatives of firms in Paris and London, attended the auction. The proceeds represented the United State's Government's share of the seal kill at the Pribilof Islands, in the Bering Sea. The seal herds, threatened with extinction through private hunting, were placed under the protection of Great Britain, Russia, Japan and the United States through the treaty of 1911. Only three-year-old male seals are killed for the market and the herds have increased as a result of the protection.

The Fouke Fur Co. holds a contract with the Government for processing and auctioning the seal skins. No unusual pelts were noted among the skins sold today. The skins are in two colors, black or safari brown. Fox pelts, also taken by Government hunters, were sold at the same time. Blue fox skins brought about $30 each, a decline of about 8½ per cent as compared with the last sale.

SUPREME COURT REFUSES TO HEAR SHARON J. PATE

Caruthersville Lawyer Had Appealed Dismissal of Suit to Disbar Him.
By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 27.—The Supreme Court refused today to review the decision of the Springfield Court of Appeals upholding the dismissal of disbarment proceedings against Sharon J. Pate of Caruthersville, former State legislator from Pemiscot County.

Pate himself opposed dismissal of the proceedings, which were filed in the Pemiscot County Circuit Court by the Advisory Committee to the general chairman of the Missouri Bar Committee. The committee later asked for the dismissal.

Pate appealed the dismissal to the Springfield court and, when that body upheld the action, asked the Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari. In his application he asked the high court to review the case on the ground that the Court of Appeals did not have the right to uphold the dismissal of the disbarment proceedings.

WOMAN REPORTS WEALTHY CHICAGO MAN KIDNAPED

Ex-Secretary and Companion Says Charles Ross, Retired Manufacturer Was Seized on Highway.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Police apparently were without a clew today to explain the abduction Saturday night of Charles Ross, 72-year-old retired manufacturer, as he was driving home from a dinner engagement with Miss Florence Freihage, his former secretary.

Department of Justice agents were reported to have been called into the case, but A. H. Johnson, acting head of the Chicago bureau, declined to comment.

Miss Freihage, described by Mrs. Ross as a "fine woman" and a "friend of the family," said her former employer invited her to dinner to discuss matters pertaining to the Valentine and greeting card company which he headed until his retirement two years ago. Miss Freihage is secretary for one of the new owners. She is 45 years old.

"We drove to Sycamore, Ill.," she said, "and when we started back I remember a car pulled out of the parking space of the hotel where we dined. It followed us for a great distance.

"Finally Mr. Ross remarked that the car behind him was shining its light onto his mirror. 'I think I'll draw over to the side and let it by,' he said. One man jumped out. He was young. He thrust a pistol at Mr. Ross and yelled that he'd shoot unless the door was opened.

"Mr. Ross obeyed and at his command got out of the car. I think there were two other men in the car. The one with the pistol said 'This is a snatch; my boss told me to bring you along.'

"He took Mr. Ross to the other car. Then he returned and took $85 out of my purse. He says 'You're his secretary; is he good for a half million or a quarter million?' I assured him Mr. Ross had no such wealth.

"The man paid no attention to that. 'You get down on the floor of the car,' he said. 'If you get up I'll shoot you.'"

Miss Freihage drove Ross' car to a filling station where she notified police.

Capt. David Gilbert of the State's Attorney's police, said he was entirely satisfied with Miss Freihage's story. She was released after being held as a material witness.

Mrs. Ross told interviewers it was "ridiculous" for any one to believe that her husband had as much as a quarter of a million dollars. Attorney Edmund Cummings Jr., his legal representative, said Ross was "comfortably fixed."

CURTIS MFG. CO. STRIKERS TO VOTE ON AGREEMENT

SWOC Leaders Will Submit Proposal to CIO Workers Tonight.

A proposed agreement for settling the strike of CIO employes of the Curtis Manufacturing Co., 1905 Kienlen avenue, Wellston, will be submitted to the strikers tonight or tomorrow, it was announced today by leaders of the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee.

The proposal, details of which were not made public, was drawn by the company following conferences with a union committee. A conference between company and union officials, scheduled for today, was postponed pending action by the strikers on the firm's offer.

The Curtis plant has been closed since Aug. 20, when the strike was called by the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers following the failure of negotiations for a working contract. The union, which now claims to represent 431 of the 465 production employes, prevented shipments from entering or leaving the plant during the first four days of the strike. The company, last Monday, obtained a temporary injunction to prevent pickets from blocking the entrances.

Union demands before the walkout included the 40-hour week, a general 10 per cent wage increase, extra pay for overtime and the preferential union shop.

A companion, M. F. Boettinger, 3611 McDonald avenue, told county officials that Rauss had complained of a heart ailment. Coroner John Buse of St. Charles County said the shock from the mousetrap apparently caused Rauss' death.

Rauss, 61 years old, resided at 4979 Odell street. He is survived by his wife and two daughters.

SAFE-BREAKER TRAPS SELF BY TOUCHING OFF ALARM

After stealing a strongbox containing $200 from the safe of the Hellrung & Grimm furniture store at 1524 Cass avenue Saturday night, a Negro burglar found his escape blocked by police responding to a burglar alarm he had inadvertently touched off.

The burglar tossed the box into a baby carriage near the rear door and hid amid furniture on the third floor, where he was found an hour and one-half later.

The prisoner, who identified himself as Ponnige Ervin, 37 years old, 3809 Bell avenue, told police he entered the store before it closed Saturday night and hid until employes were gone. Then, he said, he pried open the safe. A soldering iron, pocket knife, hacksaw blades and a revolver were found on his person.

RIVERFRONT LEGAL PRELIMINARIES TO RUN FAR INTO 1938

Condemnation of 37-Block Jefferson Memorial Site Promises to Be Slow Process.

Legal proceedings for condemnation of the riverfront Jefferson Memorial area will run well into 1938, before the Federal Government will be able to take possession of any part of the 37-block tract for the proposed $9,000,000 start on a $30,000,000 national park. This was made known today by United States Attorney Harry C. Blanton, after his return from the American Legion convention in New York.

Of the 22 block-groups of condemnation suits which have been filed against the property owners, 13 were set for a return Friday. In Blanton's absence, the time for the returns was continued until Oct. 25.

Blanton said that on Oct. 25, he would present in Federal Court a showing as to the number of the defendant property-owners on whom personal service has been obtained. Indications, he said, are that personal service will be obtained on not more than 75 per cent of the owners, leaving 25 per cent who must be served with notice by publication.

The next thing to do, Blanton said, will be to ask the court for orders of publication, which presumably will be granted. After publication has been made, the property owners will have not less than 30 days in which to make their returns.

Blanton believes it will be impossible to get these formalities out of the way before next January or February. After that, the next step will be the appointment of viewers, who will inspect and appraise the property to be condemned. The viewers' work will take several weeks, if not several months. After they fix prices to be paid for property, either the property owner or the Government has a right to protest, in any case where the price is too low to suit the owners, or higher than Government officials think it should be.

In each case where the issue of value cannot be settled out of court, a jury trial will be necessary. Besides issues of value, constitutional and other legal questions, which have already been raised by several property owners, will have to be determined.

As an indication of the time which condemnation proceedings may take in Federal Court, the Southeast Missouri floodway cases, which have been pending since 1929, are still being heard in Federal Court at Cape Girardeau. In the floodway matter, most of the suits were to acquire only flowage rights, not ownership of the property. Because of the emergency, the floodway was put into operation, and was used as an outlet for last winter's Ohio-Lower Mississippi flood.

KILLED BY ROBBER

HARRY KITCHNER

BRAD SHINKLE DENIED WRIT TO STOP TRIAL

Supreme Bench Rules He May Be Prosecuted in Police Court.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 27. — A writ of prohibition sought by attorneys for Bradford Shinkle Jr. of St. Louis, to prevent his trial in City Court No. 1 in St. Louis, on charges of careless driving of an automobile and destruction of city property, was denied today by the Missouri Supreme Court.

The Justices sitting en banc, did not hand down an opinion. Denial of the application was noted on the court minutes without reasons.

Shinkle is also under charges in St. Louis Circuit Court of manslaughter and felonious wounding, growing out of an accident last Feb. 25 at Lindell boulevard and Boyle avenue in which Emmett J. O'Brien, a city employe, was killed, and Gus M. Fennerty, another city employe, was injured.

In applying to the Supreme Court for a writ to block the two cases in City Court, originally set for trial last June 10, it was contended that trial on these two charges would constitute double jeopardy, on the ground the felony cases pending in the Circuit Court involved the same facts and evidence. The petition also attacked the constitutionality of city ordinances concerning reckless driving and destruction of city property.

Today's action leaves the City Court free to proceed with the cases.

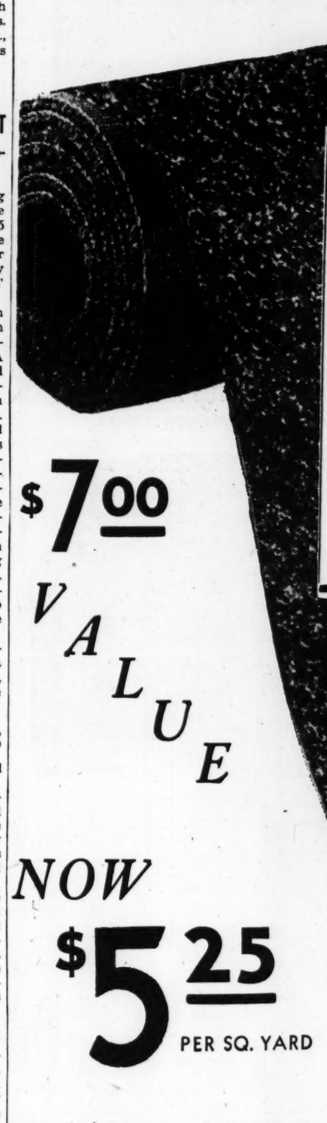

Shinkle has obtained a change of venue on the manslaughter and felonious wounding charges and will go to trial at Linn, in Osage County, before Circuit Judge Albert R. Breuer. The change of venue was granted by Circuit Judge J. Wesley McAfee, who agreed that there was widespread prejudice against Shinkle in St. Louis.

After being notified of the Supreme Court's action, Assistant City Attorney Martin Barrow conferred with Police Judge James F. Nangle and the cases were set for trial Wednesday morning.

ADVISER TO CHIANG ARRIVES IN U. S. ON CLIPPER PLANE

Dr. Hu Shih Says Japanese Air Bombings Have "Failed Miserably" in Military Effect.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 27.—Dr. Hu Shih, diplomatic adviser to the Chinese Government and special counselor of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, arrived here aboard the Philippine Clipper yesterday, en route to Washington.

He said in an interview that the war in his country had revealed "the military weakness of Japan."

Contending Japan had "failed miserably" in the use of its air power, Dr. Hu said the bombing of Shanghai, Nanking and other cities had accomplished little in a military way.

"All military strategists," he said, "have long agreed that the opening move in the next world war must be a smashing, telling blow delivered from the air. Such has not been delivered against us.

"China has little concentration of force. She is neither centralized nor highly industrialized. Therefore the bombings are unpleasant and unfortunate, but not catastrophic."

ADVISER TO CHIANG ARRIVES IN U. S. ON CLIPPER PLANE

Dr. Hu Shih Says Japanese Air Bombings Have "Failed Miserably" in Military Effect.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 27.—Dr. Hu Shih, diplomatic adviser to the Chinese Government and special counselor of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, arrived here aboard the Philippine Clipper yesterday, en route to Washington.

He said in an interview that the war in his country had revealed "the military weakness of Japan." Contending Japan had "failed miserably" in the use of its air power, Dr. Hu said the bombing of Shanghai, Nanking and other cities had accomplished little in a military way.

"All military strategists," he said, "have long agreed that the opening move in the next world war must be a smashing, telling blow delivered from the air. Such has not been delivered against us.

'China has little concentration of force. She is neither centralized nor highly industrialized. Therefore the bombings are unpleasant and unfortunate, but not catastrophic."

A. F. L. MAKES DEMAND ON UNITED CHARITIES

A threat to withdraw the support of members of organized labor from the United Charities because Barnes Hospital, a beneficiary under the charity program, has refused to sign a wage agreement with three A. F. of L. unions, was made at yesterday's meeting of the Central Trades & Labor Union.

Delegates to the meeting adopted a resolution instructing Joseph Clark, president of Central Trades, who is a member of the board of managers of the United Charities, to present the union demands at the next meeting of the board with a request for support. Unless the unions, Cooks', Waitresses and Miscellaneous Hotel Employes, are able to get action Clark will resign from the charities' board and the support of union members will be withdrawn, the resolution stated.

The original draft of the resolution called for the resignation of Clark from the charities' board and the withdrawal of union support immediately. This was modified by the Resolutions' Committee to give the board of managers an opportunity to act. The unions are requesting a minimum wage of $40 a month for kitchen and dining room help (with keep) employed at the hospital. The management, at conferences with a union committee headed by Clark, has stated it is unable to increase the present monthly wage of $25, Clark reported.

A letter from Gov. Stark, read at the meeting, assured Central Trades officers of the Governor's support of the investigation being made to determine who beat Matthew McLoughlin, union leader, last month while he was being questioned by police about the smashing of a window at a non-union cleaning shop. Last week McLoughlin picked out two officers he says flogged him. Gov. Stark's letter was in reply to a resolution by the Central Trades demanding a thorough public investigation. The Governor wrote that he had instructed the Police Board to investigate.

Clark and Secretary William Brandt were instructed to send a second request to Gov. Stark that a member of organized labor be considered when there is another vacancy on the Police Board. A previous request reached the Governor after he had decided to appoint Thomas L. Farrington, insurance man, to the board.

BAR HEAD SAYS ROOSEVELT HATES LEGAL PROFESSION

Frederick H. Stinchfield Attributes This to President's Difficulty in Controlling Lawyers.

CONVENTION OPENS AT KANSAS CITY

J. A. Reed Asserts Death of Supreme Court Would Mean End of Constitutional Liberty.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 27. — The United States Supreme Court fight was the outstanding theme of the American Bar Association's convention today.

James A. Reed, former United States Senator from Missouri, greeted the delegates at the opening session as "protagonists of the Constitution" and said destruction of the Court would mean "the death of constitutional liberty."

In a brief response, Frank L. Hogan of Washington, who represented Edward L. Doheny in the Teapot Dome oil case and was counsel for Andrew W. Melon in tax litigation, said, "recently in high places lawyer-baiting has been given such currency that I believe we wil ldo well to pay attention to it."

Frederick H. Stinchfield of Minneapolis, Minn., president of the bar, said the Roosevelt administration's apparent determination was to "destroy" the Court as it is known today and that the people of the nation might have to choose between the President and the lawyers.

"Hatred" of Profession.

Stinchfield, who said in the annual President's address he disagreed with President Roosevelt over the lawyer's place in the framing of the Constitution, previously in a radio speech attributed to Roosevelt a "hatred" of the legal profession.

He asserted an "unequal" struggle is impending "between the President and the lawyers of the United States," and added, "we have no chance of survival in that struggle whatever, except one: it is that the people of the United States have faith in our claims of wishing the best for the country. You may have to choose between us."

Any struggle which might arise between the President and the law profession would be unequal because the President has "quite unbelievable powers," he said.

"There is little he cannot do if he chooses to exercise all his powers," Stinchfield said.

"One must believe that his hatred of the legal profession arises out of the fact that the lawyers are the ones in whom he finds his greatest difficulty in controlling, either by persuasian or orders, their thoughts and their actions."

More Legal Business.

"If lawyers were seeking selfish ends, they could not but wish a continuance of the radical tendencies of the present administration in order that there might be a continuance of this legislation which results in so much employment for lawyers.

"You may ask any accountant or any business man for information as to how much he must employ lawyers nowadays as compared with what used to be necessary before the development of the innumerable forms of taxes and the passage of other strange laws now appearing on the statute books. You will find that the return to lawyers has been beyond all measure over what any other laws ever made possible. Yet all that the alwyers do indicates their opposition to the continuance of those taxes and the continuance of those New Deal enactments."

Replies to President.

Stinchfield, in his address opening the convention, replied to President Roosevelt's Constitution day address in which the executive said the basic law "was a layman's document, not a lawyer's contract." Stinchfield asserted 32 lawyers were among the 55 framers of the Constitution.

"Lawyers may have been the reason for defeating schemes proposed by some, but not the destiny of America," Stinchfield said. "They have made America whatever America is."

He contended history disagreed with President Roosevelt's viewpoint that Madison, most responsible for the Constitution, was not a lawyer.

Stating that Madison studied law, Stinchfield said: "It may be agreed that lawyers themselves may doubt whether one who enters politics immediately after graduation and thereafter spends his life as a holder of public office in his State and at Washington can be called a lawyer as the profession uses the word. But whoever answers that description has always assumed the right to tell the world what the Constitution of the United States means, lawyer or no lawyer."

Democracy is being challenged by both friends and enemies, Kenneth Teasdale of St. Louis, president of the Missouri Bar Association, said in a welcoming address.

He said "ideal democracy" could withstand the challenge of other forms of Government. But, he added, "it behooves us to make a survey of our resources and to mark the plight to which inertia and apathy have brought us."

"We see a judiciary in many localities inadequate to the task," he said, "so that the movement grows to seek new methods of selection of Judges. We see State Legislatures unresponsive to their duties, so that movements to curtail their power and authority daily grow in strength. We see movements by constutitional means and by rules of court to strip legislative bodies of power over bar governance, court procedure and other matters.

"We see the movement for the short ballot grow apace. And we see, in many instances, district and ward leaders of political parties, by control of the vote, selecting our Judges, our Legislators and our office holders. The irresponsible forces are selecting men to posts of highest responsibility.

Willis Van Devanter, who recently retired from the United States Supreme Court, notified the association today he would be unable to appear for a scheduled address Wednesday night. He said personal matters would keep him in the East.

W. H. CROCKER, BANKER, DIES IN CALIFORNIA

Republican Leader Was Son of One of Builders of Central Pacific Railroad.

By the Associated Press.

HILLSBOROUGH, Cal., Sept. 27. —William H. Crocker, 76 years old, banker, philanthropist and Republican leader, died here Saturday night after a long illness.

Born of a wealthy pioneer family, Mr. Crocker inherited millions as a comparatively young man and added extensively to them in his long career as a banker and backer of big business enterprises.

He was California's Republican national committeeman in 1916, when Charles Evans Hughes lost the presidency by failing to shake hands with the right man.

He was instrumental in bringing Hughes to California during the campaign. But there was no meeting between Hughes and the politically powerful insurgent Republican, Hiram Johnson, then Governor.

Johnson, fresh from political victory in a bitter fight in California against the Southern Pacific Railroad, publicly assailed Crocker as "possessor of the Southern Pacific millions."

After the election, when it appeared Hughes was the winner, the tardy California vote, normally Republican, gave the State and a national victory to Democratic Woodrow Wilson.

Mr. Crocker was the son of Charles Crocker, one of the "big four" who built the Central Pacific Railroad, linking the Union Pacific and the Western Pacific systems. Others of the "big four" were Collis P. Huntington, Leland Stanford and Timothy Hopkins.

Legend That Wooden Image Left Temple to Comfort Chapel.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 27.—Reports of a "miracle foretelling a Chinese victory" ran through the Chinese Nantao quarter of Shanghai last night.

The report was that the Nantao city god, a huge wooden image, appeared in the street, went to the Chapei area to comfort Chinese troops, then returned to his place at Nantao Temple. Many Chinese rushed into the temple and found the god unmoved. They declared, however, that there was "evidence of his departure and return."

SHANGHAI, Sept. 27.—Reports of a "miracle foretelling a Chinese victory" ran through the Chinese Nantao quarter of Shanghai last night.

The report was that the Nantao city god, a huge wooden image, appeared in the street, went to the Chapei area to comfort Chinese troops, then returned to his place at Nantao Temple. Many Chinese rushed into the temple and found the god unmoved. They declared, however, that there was "evidence of his departure and return."

Missouri's Biggest Oak To Be Cut for Lumber

mossy cup, from which it gets its common names, grows to be nearly two inches long and an inch thick.

An effort to save the entire tract of 31 square miles was made three years ago by a group of Mississippi County business men, who, with the aid of their Federal representatives, petitioned the Federal Government to purchase the land for a forest preserve.

Harry Roberts, a merchant of East Prairie, said an unfavorable report was made on the proposal by a Federal representative sent to investigate the site, and it never was approved.

Offered $2,500,000 for Tract.

Last December negotiations were begun to sell the tract, owned by the Three States Lumber Co., a corporation controlled by the W. A. Gilchrist and A. R. Owen families of Owen, Wis. Members of the Gilchrist family have held title to some sections of the tract since 1893. A few years ago, in the course of a law suit, Gilchrist, now dead, testified he had been offered $2,500,000 for the property.

On hearing of the negotiations a year ago, Roberts and E. C. Davis of East Prairie, and other men in Charleston, asked Owen to save the big tree by setting aside a tract surrounding it. Their intention was to present it to the State. Owen tentatively agreed, but before the matter was brought to a conclusion, a deal to sell most of the tract was completed.

The present owner of the section on which the oak stands is the Mississippi Valley Hardwood Co., Inc., of Memphis, which purchased it in conjunction with A. W. D. Weis of Quincy, Ill. Weis, through the Dillman Industries, Caruthersville, Mo., is cutting the softwood trees off the tract, and the Memphis company is cutting the oaks and other hardwoods.

Another Effort to Save Tree.

After failing to save the tree by appeal to Owens, Roberts and others agreed to purchase 40 acres around the tree, and present it to the State for a park, if the cost were not too high.

Last July 15, Davis, who was vice-chairman of a committee handling the matter, received a letter from K. L. Emmons, president of the Mississippi Valley Hardwood Co., which stated that, depending on Weis' agreement, the company would sell at $100 an acre.

The letter said in part: "We might say that you have picked out the finest 40 acres of timber we have on this property and also the finest 40 acres of land . . . on which stands one of the largest white oak trees we have ever seen." Some of the men interested in the proposal, Roberts said, thought the price too high for the purpose of a State park, and the proposal failed.

Roberts said, however, he still was willing to contribute $100 to a fund for the purchase of a site large enough to save the tree, if the company still would sell.

Noah Boyd, superintending the timber-cutting for the Dillman firm, said to the reporter at one of the lumber camps that, while there was no immediate danger of the giant oak being cut down, since they were not working in that section, it eventually would be cut unless set out. He said there was about 180,000,000 board feet of lumber in the entire Three States tract, and that 200,000 board feet were being taken out daily. He expects the timber removal to take more than a year.

Other lumber companies which purchased large sections of the tract, shaped like a huge hook with a cross-bar handle at the end of its shaft, are the Shannon Bros. Lumber Co. of Memphis and the Mengel Co. of Louisville.

Taxes Steadily Increasing.

Taxes on the tract, 14 miles long and in area about a seventh of the entire floodway, have steadily mounted, and during the last 10 years have averaged about $25,000 a year, the timber being assessed high. Levee district, drainage ditch and road taxes added to the annual burden, and a county drainage official estimated that the Gilchrist and Owens families had paid more than $500,000 in taxes since they acquired the land.

Besides the oaks and other hardwood trees, there are soft-wood varieties, huch as cottonwoods and willows. Boyd said one of the uniformly largest stands of cottonwoods he had ever seen, some larger than the big oak, stood in an 80-acre section in the southern part of the tract.

Two of the camps are cutting the valuable cypress, used for river pilings. The cuttings is not being done selectively in order to leave smaller growth, but all "sticks" of marketable value are being taken out. The cypress are sawed above their unique buttresses, leaving stumps five feet high. Tractors, teams and log wagons, rolling over the land, complete the forest's destruction.

Not Suitable or Farming.

While not disputing the right of the owners to cut the timber, Beilmann contends the tract is fundamentally timber land. He said it is as much sub-marginal as ridge and plains land that the Government repeatedly has purchased for forestation, because the flooding of the basin makes it a hazardous place to live and of uncertain value for crop raising.

During the Mississippi-Ohio River flood last January, when the "fuse plug" levee was dynamited, trees in the floodway stood in water 15 feet deep. The high water mark is still visible on their trunks. There is no sign of any damage to them, and when the water receded, a rich deposit of alluvial soil was left behind. Crops were ruined and families driven out.

Beilmann predicted that within two years after the cutting is completed, uncultivated areas would be heavily overgrown with weeds and brush. Tree seeds that have fallen will not have a chance to survive; there will be no mature trees to supply new seeds; sycamores and soft maples will crowd in; and Missouri's last hardwood forest will have gone.

"The least we can do," he said, "is to preserve an area around the 'big oak,' the more the better, as an example of what the forest had been."

BACK-TO-WORK MOVE AT LITCHFIELD PLANT

Witness Concedes That Was Basis of Formation of CIO's Rival Union.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LITCHFIELD, Ill., Sept. 27.—The formation of the unaffiliated Litchfield Radiator Workers' Union was described as a "back-to-work" movement by a witness before the National Labor Relations Board today as it resumed its hearing on charges that the American Radiator Co. was guilty of unfair labor practices.

The company has been accused of closing its local plant last May 7 because an organization meeting was held the previous evening by C I O-affiliated local 1770 of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers. It has also been accused of fostering the independent union.

The designation of the latter as a "back-to-work" group was made by Newton Tibbs, one of its members and an employe of the company for 18 years, when he was called as a witness by David C. Shaw, St. Louis Labor Board trial attorney. Tibbs was a reluctant witness, but admitted that the phrase was correct after it had been placed in his mouth by the lawyer.

Evangelist Testifies.

Also called to the stand was the Rev. Thomas Lowe, a Baptist evangelist who lives just outside Litchfield and who described himself as the spiritual adviser of the CIO union. He told of renting a hall that he had under lease to the rival labor organizations and of attending their meetings. In fact, he rented the hall only on condition that he be permitted to preach at the gatherings.

John Easterly, one of the leaders in the unaffiliated group, said it was his purpose to organize a "shop union," the preacher testified, and that he was assured that work would be resumed at the plant as soon as this group had obtained a majority of the employes as its members. There were "plenty of work and orders in store," he told the gathering of about 60 men, the witness said.

On cross-examination the witness said that Easterly quoted no authority for his promises.

C I O organizers, on the other hand, made no promises, Lowe said, at any of the four or five meetings that he attended.

Warned Not to Join C I O.

The day's first witness was Charles E. Wolff, another radiator company worker, who told of being warned against joining the John L. Lewis organization by Harold Stout, foundry boss.

"He told me I had better not join," the witness said, "and I asked why. 'Why, they'll shut the plant down,' Stout said."

While Tibbs was on the stand, Shaw questioned him about the organization meeting that was held at Easterly's home. Mayor John G. Millhouse, two Litchfield supervisors, Dennis J. Godfrey, now counsel for the independent union which is intervening in these proceedings, and at least one policeman were present. However, Tibbs said that he could not remember what was said.

Relief Angle.

Pressed by Shaw, he admitted that the supervisors were in charge of the administration of relief and therefore important to workers of a closed plant. After more questioning he admitted that they had talked about relief, but still did not know what they had said.

"You heard these four leading citizens of Litchfield and can't remember a word?" "I can remember a few words, b I don't know what they said."

For the most part the session was devoted to the introduction of testimony by Shaw to show that the plant was closed suddenly at a time when preparations were in hand for several weeks' work. George B. Logan and Samuel W. Fordyce of St. Louis, counsel for the company, and Godfrey, in cross-examination tried to link Jack Davis, who was first assigned to the case as trial attorney but later withdrawn, with CIO organization activities, but met with no apparent success.

A. F. OF L. TEAMSTERS' UNION PICKETS C I O LONGSHOREMEN

Jurisdictional Dispute Between Rival Unions Fails to Tie Up Pacific Shipping.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 27.—Leaders of the A. F. of L. teamsters' union ordered mass picket lines back to the waterfront today in their fight with C I O longshoremen.

Joseph M. Casey, international organizer for the teamsters, announced the picketing order after a quiet Sunday during which longshoremen worked cargo without interference.

The dispute began three weeks ago, when teamsters demanded that longshoremen relinquish control of warehousemen. The teamsters refused to haul cargo unloaded by the longshoremen and formed picket lines along both the San Francisco and Oakland waterfronts.

Picketing by 4000 teamsters Friday and Saturday failed to tie up shipping. Longshoremen walked through the picket lines.

HOMICIDE CHARGE AGAINST PUGILIST IN TAVERN BRAWL

Bond for John Callahan, Who Knocked Joseph B. Barrett Twice, Is Set at $5000.

TROUBLE OVER GIRL' CAUSE OF THE FIGHT

17-Year Old Boxer Makes Oral Statement About Quarrel but Does Not Testify at Hearing.

John Callahan, 17-year-old amateur boxer, was named in a homicide verdict returned today in the case of Joseph B. Barrett, a brewery worker, 5025 Milentz avenue, who was killed early yesterday when he was twice knocked down by the youth, who objected to Barrett's attentions to a young woman with whom Callahan had quarreled.

Assistant Circuit Attorney James E. McLaughlin said bond for Callahan would be $5000 pending presentation of the facts to the grand jury Oct. 14. Callahan, a strongly built, ruddy-faced young man, did not testify on advice of counsel. Witnesses gave substantially the same accounts at the inquest as those police had obtained from them previously.

Policemen in a scout car passing Margie's Tavern, 2247 Gravois avenue, at 1:45 o'clock, saw Barrett prone on the sidewalk in front of the darkened saloon. Miss Eula Tarpy, 2352 Park avenue, was attempting to arouse him. Barrett, 23, was dead on arrival at City Hospital. The body was taken to the morgue, where an autopsy showed death resulted from a fractured skull.

Callahan, a shipping clerk, residing at 1928 Cherokee street, was arrested on the street, several blocks from the tavern. In an oral statement to police he said; "I hit him. We had trouble over a girl." Callahan told reporters he had appeared in amateur boxing bouts at the Coliseum.

Miss Tarpy, 19 years old, saleswoman in a hat shop, told policemen she met Callahan, who had been attentive to her for several months, on a street corner Saturday night by appointment, and they quarreled.

"I went to Margie's place alone," Miss Tarpy related. "Joe Barrett came in and stood beside me at the bar. Johnny Callahan came in a short time later and talked with a girl for a few minutes. Then without any warning that I heard he hit Joe in the face with his fist and knocked him down. It took us four or five minutes to revive Joe with wet towels." Miss Torpy added that she believed it was the first time Callahan and Barrett had met.

Fred Pildner, 2109 Arsenal street, with whom Barrett worked at the Anheuser-Busch brewery, said he and Barrett quit work at 11 o'clock Saturday night and dropped in the tavern on their way home. After Barrett had been knocked down and revived, Barrett followed Callahan out of the tavern. "Callahan had knocked him to the sidewalk and was standing over him punching him in the stomach when I ran out and chased Callahan away with a beer bottle," Pildner told police. "The lights went out in the tavern and the bartender threw out several wet towels and Joe Barrett was the fool and were Johnny, who was told them to go because he had Barrett said he co anybody.'"

Mrs. Holt said ern with Callahan lowed and tried to who knocked him lated.

Barrett was the Sergt. Frank A. Ba ed District. He wa 1933 from Christian lege, where he play had been married a was the father of a ter.

HOMICIDE CHARGE AGAINST PUGILIST IN TAVERN BRAWL

Bond for John Callahan, Who Knocked Joseph B. Barrett Twice, Is Set at $5000.

17-Year Old Boxer Makes Oral Statement but Does Not Testify at Hearing.

John Callahan, 17-year-old amateur boxer, was named in a homicide verdict returned today in the case of Joseph B. Barrett, a brewery worker, 5025 Milentz avenue, who was killed early yesterday when he was twice knocked down by the youth, who objected to Barrett's attentions to a young woman with whom Callahan had quarreled.

Assistant Circuit Attorney James E. McLaughlin said bond for Callahan would be $5000 pending presentation of the facts to the grand jury Oct. 14. Callahan, a strongly built, ruddy-faced young man, did not testify on advice of counsel. Witnesses gave substantially the same accounts at the inquest as those police had obtained from them previously.

Policemen in a scout car passing Margie's Tavern, 2247 Gravois avenue, at 1:45 o'clock, saw Barrett prone on the sidewalk in front of the darkened saloon. Miss Eula Tarpy, 2352 Park avenue, was attempting to arouse him. Barrett, 31, was dead on arrival at City Hospital. The body was taken to the morgue, where an autopsy showed death resulted from a fractured skull.

Callahan, a shipping clerk, residing at 1928 Cherokee street, was arrested on the street, several blocks from the tavern. In an oral statement to police he said: "I hit him. We had trouble over a girl." Callahan told reporters he had appeared in amateur boxing bouts at the Coliseum.

Miss Tarpy, 19 years old, saleswoman in a hat shop, told policemen she met Callahan, who had been attentive to her for several months, on a street corner Saturday night by appointment, and they quarreled.

"I went to Margie's place alone," Miss Tarpy related. "Joe Barrett came in and stood beside me at the bar. Johnny Callahan came in a short time later and talked with a girl for a few minutes. Then without any warning that I heard he hit Joe in the face with his fist and knocked him down. It took us four or five minutes to revive Joe with wet towels." Miss Torpy added that she believed it was the first time Callahan and Barrett had met.

Fred Pildner, 2109 Arsenal street, with whom Barrett worked at the Anheuser-Busch brewery, said he and Barrett quit work at 11 o'clock Saturday night and dropped in the tavern on their way home. After Barrett had been knocked down and revived, Barrett followed Callahan out of the tavern. "Callahan had knocked him to the sidewalk and was standing over him punching him in the stomach when I ran out and chased Callahan away with a beer bottle," Pildner told police. "The lights went out in the tavern and the bartender threw out several wet towels and we tried to revive Joe."

IN FATAL FIGHT

JOHN CALLAHAN.

JOSEPH B. BARRETT.

Mrs. Mildred Holt, 19, also of 2352 Park avenue, who was walking with Callahan when police arrested him, gave a different version of what occurred. She said: "Eula and Joe Barrett were acting the fool and were pushing against Johnny, who was talking to me. I told them to go easy on Johnny, because he had been drinking. Barrett said he could 'take care of anybody.'"

Mrs. Holt said she left the tavern with Callahan. Barrett followed and tried to strike the youth, who knocked him down, she related.

Barrett was the son of Police Sergt. Frank A. Barrett of Mounted District. He was graduated in 1933 from Christian Brothers' College, where he played football. He had been married and divorced and was the father of a year-old daughter.

FOUR PERSONS ARE HURT IN BACKYARD FREE-FOR-ALL

Woman Taken to Hospital; Three Men Are Arrested on Assault Charges.

Four persons were injured, one seriously, in a backyard fight between the families of Sebastian Rano and Tony Notto, yesterday afternoon.

Notto, 33 years old, 5124 Wilson avenue, gave police a pocketknife with a three-inch blade, which he said he had taken from Rano. Otherwise, those involved refused to discuss the altercation.

Rano's wife, Mrs. Maria Rano, 50, of 5120A Wilson, suffered fractures of the nose, right ankle, cuts and skull injuries. Her husband, 59, suffered bruises. Notto and has father, Ignatius Notto, 58, who resides with his son, had minor stab wounds.

The three men were treated at City Hospital and then taken to the police station, where they were booked on charges of assault. The younger Notto's wife, Mrs. Sybilla Notto, also was booked on the same charge. The participants were in the rear of the Notto home when police interrupted the fight.

LOAN RULE BROADENED BY FEDERAL RESERVE

Discount Regulations Also Revised to Facilitate Credit-Easing.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27. — The Federal Reserve Board broadened today its discount and loan rules.

The board revised its "regulation A" governing loans from the reserve system to member banks in accordance with the Banking Act of 1935, saying the broader lending powers conferred by that act soon would be needed in business.

Not Result of Market Changes.

Although characterizing the revised rule as an "appropriate sequence" to the recent credit-easing reduction of discount rates, officials said flatly the action had nothing to do with recent stock market disturbances.

They explained the 1935 act opened up to all of the "good assets" of a bank the opportunity of being utilized as collateral for loans from the reserve system. Prior to 1932, when emergency exceptions were made, only the best commercial paper of not more than 90 days maturity and the best agricultural paper of not more than nine months was eligible for discount at reserve banks.

The revised regulation and the 1935 act do two things. They expand the eligible list for discounts and create permanently a new type of reserve loan called "advances." The rate on advances is fixed by law at one-half of 1 per cent above the discount rate.

Commission House Paper.

The board added to the discount list large amounts of paper from commission houses and finance companies, including some paper drawn to finance commercial installment sales. These and other eligible paper may be discounted by reserve banks at rates which they establish from time to time. Recently the New York district cut its discount rate to a world record low of 1 per cent. Most of the other 11 districts charge 1½ per cent.

Although all other good assets are acceptable collateral for advances, the board put on the preferred list for this type of loan the following: Securities eligible for investment by national banks, loans on stocks made under Federal reserve rules, mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration, debentures and bonds of the Federal Home Loan banks and under the Federal Farm Loan Act, obligations of the states and their political subdivisions, and obligations drawn to finance real estate or installment sale of goods.

The board said these preferences were intended to encourage "safer banking practices."

Woman Burned in Chicago Fire.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Miss Anita L. Pierce, a private secretary, suffered burns on her feet and a number of persons were driven from their homes early today by fire in a 50-apartment building. Division Fire Marshal James Cowhey said he would ask for an inquiry into the origin of the fire and its possible connection with one set Sept. 14 at the rear of the building. Twenty fires in the district in recent weeks have been laid to a pyromaniac.

BISHOP SAYS MANY JAPANESE OPPOSE WAR WITH CHINA

Southern Methodist Declares, However, That They Are Helpless Before Military Oligarchy.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Millions of Japanese disapprove their country's undeclared war with China, but are helpless in the face of a "military oligarchy," Bishop William Newman Ainsworth of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, said in a statement yesterday.

His statement was made in accepting membership on a committee arranging a protest mass meeting in Madison Square Garden next Friday. Bishop Ainsworth called on the governments of the United States and Great Britain to take the lead in bringing Japan to account for its "wanton cruelty." He added:

"It is time for civiliation to stay the threatening hand of Japan, not only for China's, but for the world's sake."

The mass meeting is sponsored by the American League Against War and Fascism and the American Friends of the Chinese People. Others on the committee include Bishop Francis J. McConnell of New York and Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of Omaha, both of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

CHILD, 5, WHO SWALLOWED BEAD, IN CRITICAL CONDITION

Physicians Undecided on Whether to Operate on Frances Jane Maske.

Frances Jane Maske, 5 years old, who was taken to St. Louis Children's Hospital Saturday from her farm home near Chestnut, Ill., for the removal of a glass bead which she swallowed Friday, was under observation at the hospital today.

Hospital attendants said the child's condition was considered critical and that physicians had not decided whether to operate. The bead, about the size of a pea, lodged in the girl's throat. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Maske.

BIG ROCK, Ill., Sept. 27. — Paul Steifboldt of Wheatland, Ill., won the forty-third annual Big Rock plowing contest Saturday with a score of 92.5 out of a possible 100 points. Carl Shoger of Wheatland, who scored 91, was second. John Chrissee of Aurora won the farmers' class, and Clarence Shoger of Wheatland placed first in the boys' division.

FUGITIVE IN KILLING OF POLICEMEN CAUGHT

Pontiac (Mich.) Officers Trap Man, Wanted in Ohio, After Getting "Tip."

By the Associated Press.

PONTIAC, Mich., Sept. 27.—Harry B. Dingledine, 54-year-old fugitive, wanted in connection with the killing of a deputy and a policeman at Springfield, O., was captured last night at Royal Oaks, Mich.

The fugitive, whose son, Henry, 25, was arrested at a Marshall (Mich.) hospital two nights after the pistol fight Sept. 3, insists both he and his son were "innnocent bystanders" when a police trap resulted in the killing of one gangster and the wounding of another at the cost of two officers' lives.

Dingledine told officers a story of flight from the time he left his wounded son in the Marshall hospital until he "finally decided to give myself up."

Dingledine said neither he nor his son took part in the fight at his Crystal Bay (O.) cottage. He said he and Henry hid under the basement steps while Deputy Sheriff Martin Randolph of Springfield, and Robert Cornette, paroled convict, were shot to death.

Officers had laid a trap at the cottage in trailing suspected abductors of a restaurant proprietor who had been robbed of a $1290 payroll.

Dingledine said Cornette and Harry Chapman of Chicago, wounded and captured, were overnight visitors at the cottage and he did not know the two were going to "pull a job."

Automobile license plates found in a junk pile, he said, helped him to evade detection during a flight that extended into Missouri in a car bearing two bullet holes. His son was shot, he said, when they fled from the shooting scene.

NATION'S BIGGEST APPLE CROP IN 10 YEARS PREDICTED

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27. — The Agriculture Department predicts one of the largest apple crops in the last 10 years and that both domestic and foreign demand will improve over recent years.

The crop is estimated now at 204,000,000 bushels, a fourth larger than the 1931-35 average. Last year it was only 118,000,000 bushels. The increase above average was made in the Middle-western and Atlantic Coast states, with production about average in the western states. Prices are below those of last year, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics said, and probably will continue so for the season. They are expected, however, to average slightly higher than in 1935.

The estimate for the central states was 58,000,000 bushels, three times last year's crop. Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, Missouri and Kentucky are expected to produce 42,000,000 bushels, compared with an average of 27,000,000 during 1931-35. A crop of 53,000,000 bushels was predicted for the western states. Prospective production in Washington and Oregon was described as slightly below average, but in Idaho it was slightly above average and in California, 12 per cent above average.

MISSOURI U. STUDENT SHOOTS SELF TO DEATH

Kansas City Youth Ends Life After Discussion of Religion.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 27.—Albert R. Waters Jr. 18 years old, University of Missouri sophomore, was found shot to death on his fraternity house bed, early yesterday, a few moments after he had expressed a desire to "commune with my Maker." He was from Kansas City.

The pistol from which the bullet was fired lay on a table near the bed in the Sigma Alpha Epsilon house. The bullet, which entered the youth's right temple, was found imbedded in the wall.

Chief of Police Orville Pollock quoted Jack Kilpatrick, Oklahoma City freshman and pledge to Waters' fraternity, as saying the shooting followed a discussion of religion between the two.

Kilpatrick, 16, told Chief Pollock that Walters was lying on the bed, when suddenly he excpaimed: "I feel a sudden urge to commune with my Maker."

"I made a sarcastic reply to that," Kilpatrick said, "because I thought it was a joke."

"The hell I don't," Waters said, according to Kilpatrick.

"I decided to call his bluff," Kilpatrick said, and added that he went to his room and got the pistol.

"Still thinking it was a joke, I said I'd put in just one shell, 'but you'd probably miss the first time,'" Kilpatrick continued.

"'If I do, I'll never have nerve enough to do it again,' Waters said.

"He took the revolver and placed the muzzle against his head. I still thought it was a joke, and I stood in the center of the floor with my fingers in my ears, making faces, but when he held the revolver to his head, I felt the joke had gone far enough."

Kilpatrick said he told Waters to "put the gun down; it might go off."

Then, Kilpatrick said, when he turned his head a moment he heard the report of the pistol.

Two circumstances prompted an investigation, Chief Pollock said. First was an absence of powder burns on the outside of Waters' head. This was cleared up when the Coroner's examination showed the burns inside the wound.

The second was the finding of the pistol four feet from Waters' body. Officers expressed an opinion that in the rush of fraternity brothers to Waters' side, one of them might have moved the pistol.

The dead youth's father, Albert R. Waters, vice-president of the Carter-Waters Corporation in Kansas City, told police he was satisfied the shooting was accidental. He requested that no inquest be held.

Another member of the fraternity, R. W. Black of Kansas City, told police he had talked with Waters Saturday night and found him "his usual jocular self."

Youth Apparently Had Pistol for Target Shooting.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Sept. 27.—Jack Kilpatrick was interested in target pistol shooting and archery, his father, J. J. Kilpatrick, said yesterday.

The elder Kilpatrick said he did not know the son had taken a pistol with him when he went to the University of Missouri to enroll as a freshman in the School of Journalism.

"I imagine he wanted to do some tarket shooting while he was there," the father said. "He also took a bow and arrows."

ALDERMEN TO GET BILL TO FORBID CURB SERVICE

Member Hears Complaints of Traffic Blockades and Littering of Streets.

A bill to prohibit merchants from offering curb service to motorists will be introduced by Alderman William J. Warnick of the Twenty-eighth Ward when the Board of Aldermen convenes Friday.

Warnick said yesterday that residents of his ward had complained that the practice blockaded traffic and that the waste from ice cream and meals was often thrown into the streets. A friend of his, on a recent trip to Chicago, heard St. Louis characterized as the city "where they serve meals in the gutter," he said.

Suggesting that merchants who desire to serve motorists in their automobiles should establish parking lots, he said his bill would propose a fine of $5 to $500 for violations

UNTERMYER DEMANDS U. S. CHECK ON NAZIS

New York Lawyer Tells Jewish War Veterans Hull Is "Spineless."

By the Associated Press.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Sept. 27.—Samuel Untermyer, New York lawyer, addressing the annual convention of Jewish War Veterans here yesterday, denounced Secretary of State Hull as "spineless" and demanded that the United States take a stand against the "open challenge" of the Nazi Government's intention to carry on propaganda in this country. He called pro-Nazi Germans in this country "hyphenated poltroons," and added:

"Acts of treachery, abetted and supported by a foreign country with which we fondly delue ourselves that we are at peace whilst it is overwhelming our country with false propaganda intended to poison the minds of our citizens have been going on for years.

"Mild-Mannered, Spineless."

"The trouble has been that, in our feverish and laudable anxiety to preserve world peace, our mild-mannered, spineless Secretary of State has been sacrificing our dignity.

"It is high time that we took a stand, such as we were finally forced to assume just prior to our entry into the World War, when our country was infested with criminal conspiracies under the protecting wing of the ambassadorial cloak."

Untermyer said that on cards advertising a "German day" meeting in New York, "these people have had the temerity to desecrate our flag by prominently imprinting the swastika on the face of the flag."

He said he had a map showing "the Nazi camps and 'cells' at which traitorous activities are being conducted."

"The term 'cell,' as used by the Nazis," he explained, "means a single group or organization, such as a 'bund' or society. The 'bund' indicates such an organization as the 'Friends of New Germany.'"

A "Confidential" Report.

He said that from "a confidential source" he had learned that the Nazis had recently issued a decree that Jews, German and foreigners alike, "are to be entirely excluded from all institutions such as parks, gymnastic fields, restaurants and all places that are not immediately necessary for medical treatment or where the possibility of separate treatment of Jews is not given." The way to combat the Nazis, he said, was to "intensify the boycott of German goods and services."

The convention adopted resolutions for investigation of "Nazi and un-American activities" in the United States and for a rigorous economic boycott against Germany. Forfeiture of citizenship by persons engaging in such activities was advocated, along with deportation of aliens who participated.

Harry H. Schaffer of Pittsburgh was re-elected commander after a contest with Senior Vice-Commander Maxwell Cohen of Boston.

Andover (N. J.) Volksbund Camp Ends With Goosestep Parade.

By the Associated Press.

ANDOVER, N. J., Sept. 27. — A thousand uniformed men, women and children goose-stepped on parade to the "heils" of spectators here yesterday, ending the first season of the German-American Volksbund at Camp Nordland. The camp's biggest crowd of the year heard National Bundsfuehrer Fritz Kuhn proclaim the "determination of the Bund to continue its fight for Americanism until America is controlled by Americans and not by a bunch of Russian-controlled Jews."

American flags outnumbered swastikas in the building and around the camp as ground was broken for a $40,000 building for next season.

Kuhn praised the women for efforts in building the organization and rearing their children "as true American mothers," teaching them to combat "any un-American revolution in this country."

His audience booed mention of the names of Samuel Untermyer, New York attorney, and Congressman Samuel Dickstein who have demanded a congressional investigation of the camp and the bund. He "invited" Untermyer and Dickstein to visit the camp.

Mrs. Anna Rehfeld, women's National Bund leader, said she was a "true American," being a member of the Red Cross and active in Girl Scout work. The Bund women were striving to be "true Americans," she said.

CONVICT AT SAN QUENTIN SHOT BY PRISON GUARD

Disturbance Is Third Within Two Weeks in Penitentiaries in California.

By the Associated Press.

SAN QUENTIN, Cal., Sept. 27. — Another disturbance in a prison in California, the third within two weeks, led to the shooting of a convict in San Quentin today by a guard. The convict, Cecil Duncan, 28-year-old Negro, was shot in a leg when he and another convict who were fighting in the prison yard ignored warnings to stop.

Other convicts, marching from breakfast to their daily duties, witnessed the shooting. Prison authorities said George Alm, stationed in a tower, shot Duncan. Ford Carroll, with whom Duncan was fighting, was placed in solitary confinement.

Extra precautions against disturbances are being taken at San Quentin because of the recent outbreak at Folsom prison and the slugging of Warden James Johnston at Alcatraz.

TWO U. S. WARSHIPS DAMAGED IN STORM OFF NOVA SCOTIA

Destroyers, on Way Home From Duty Near Spain, Head in for Repairs.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.— The destroyers Manley and Claxton reported today to the Navy Department that they were so badly battered in a severe storm off Nova Scotia Sept. 25 that they were heading back to Boston Navy yard for repairs.

The two destroyers sailed from Norfolk Sept. 22 to relieve the destroyers Hatfield and Kane, which have been on duty near Spain since the fall of 1936.

Lieutenant-Commander J. C. Talbert, commanding the Manley, reported by radio that the vessels encountered the storm 300 miles southeast of Sable Island, off Nova Scotia.

The Manley's whale boat was swept away and her main mast split. The Claxton's after deckhouse and liferafts were damaged. Four of her portholes were stove in.

CONFEDERATE VETERANS' HEAD AGAINST BATTLE REUNION

Col. Claypool Says He Won't Go Any Place His Uniform Is Not Permitted.

By the Associated Press.

HIGGINSVILLE, Mo., Sept. 27.—Col. C. M. Claypool of St. Louis, national commander of the United Confederate Veterans, expressed disapproval yesterday of the proposed reunion of Northern and Southern veterans at Gettysburg next year.

His objections were based on recent action of the Grand Army of the Republic convention at Madison, Wis., which voted that Confederates attending should not wear their uniforms or carry flags of the Confederacy.

He told the Missouri convention of his organization here that the Confederate convention at Jackson, Miss., voted to allow its members to attend as individuals, but not as a unit, and added: "As for me, I do not intend to go any place where my uniform, emblem, or the Confederate flag is not permitted."

EASTERN COAL PRICE HEARINGS

Minimums to Be Fixed for Bituminous Fuel.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—The Bituminous Coal Commission today began hearing the testimony of more than 150 representative mine operators from the Alleghanies to the Mississippi River. The hearings are designed to produce the scale of prices below which coal code members may not sell their product at the mines.

Hearings for the market area west of the Mississippi will begin Oct. 7, but the commission plans to fix the Eastern prices without delay. The objective of the hearings is to co-ordinate the prices so that producers serving the same consuming market may enter it on a fair competitive basis.

FAIRMOUNT RACE TRACK, Sept. 27.—After four unsuccessful attempts to win a race here, the Ladkin filly Goldkin finally quit the maiden ranks by finishing a head in front of the 7-to-5 favorite, Countess Flora, in the opening race of this afternoon's program.

About 2500 persons were present. The weather was bright but chill and the track fast.

Countess Flora set the pace all the way in this five-and-one-half furlongs dash until two horses challenged her in the stretch. Johnson kept her going in good stride but Goldkin, under Bobby Mason, had a little more stamina. Ironess, coming fast after a slow start, was third, beaten three lengths.

Miss S. E. Kellogg, owner of Countess Flora suffered a double reverse when the good looking daughter of Reigh Count failed to win. The horse was claimed by H. G. King for the $1000 claiming price.

Able Abe Forces Pace.

Pana Franka scored her second victory in five starts here when she came fast in the stretch to shake off Able Abe and Bunty Ann which had forced the pace for over half a mile. Amazement and Bar Play, second and first choices in the betting, were tardy in their drives, finishing a head and a nose back of the winner which was rated nicely by Willie Johnson. The refund on the winner was $14.40.

The favorites took a beating in the third race which was monopolized by Sweepogan and Sonny San. Nothing was close to this pair for half a mile and even in the stretch, as Sonny San weakened, Overlap couldn't reach him. Sweepogan won by a full length and Sonny San was two lengths in advance of Overlap. Cheka, the favorite, weakened after running third. Willie Gonzales did a good job of getting Sweepogan away from the barrier without interference and then sat tight the rest of the way. The winner paid $18.80. The daily double refunded $267.70.

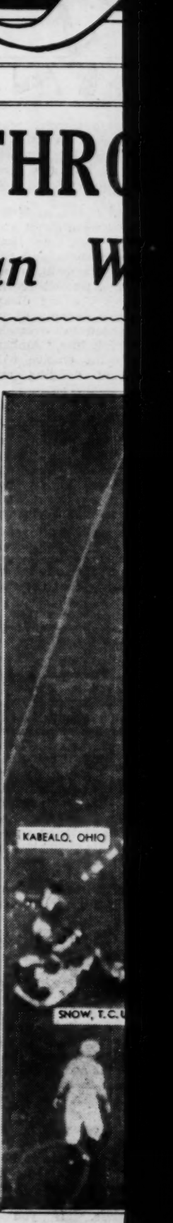

Baboo Sets Pace.

Johnson came through with one of his really artistic jobs of judging pace as he restrained the filly Misinformation for three-quarters of a mile, allowing Vedder, on Baboo to set the pace, and then turned his mount loose to steal the lead at the stretch turn and pull away to a length and half victory.

Baboo hung on gamely for second money, a length in front of Bacardi Sweep as the 8 to 5 favorite, The Break, failed completely. The winner paid $9.00.

Freddie McElroy, former trainer for the Three D's Stock Farm, unloaded the stable of N. L. Naylor, the Houston publisher, Monday morning. There were seven in the group, which came from Hawthorne, headed by the fine three-year-old filly, Virginia J., and including Prum, Techy, Sorcery, Frech, Golden Quest and Anklets.

P. Casanova, one of the leading riders of the Wheeling meeting, got out this morning and applied for a license.

BROWNIES DROP DOUBLEHEADER TO WHITE SOX

With only six more games to play before the close of the season next Sunday, the Browns arrived home from Chicago this morning for a day of rest prior to the opening of a four-game series with the Detroit Tigers here tomorrow.

Four single games are scheduled with the Tigers, after which the White Sox call to end the season in single contests, Saturday and Sunday.

Six and a half games behind the Athletics, who still have 10 games remaining on the schedule, the Browns just about have last place clinched.

Closing in the Windy City yesterday, the Browns dropped a doubleheader to Jimmy Dykes' team, 4 to 3 and 4—1. In the opener, the veteran Ted Lyons was the victor over Harry Kimberlin, brought back from San Antonio, while in the nightcap, Vernon Kennedy outpitched Lou Koupal.

A two-run rally in the seventh inning, when the Browns were ahead, 3—2, won the opener for the Sox, while in the second Kennedy had a shutout until the ninth round.

For the season, the Browns have won five and lost 15 to the White Sox.

Fette's Balk Gives Giants 5-4 Triumph Over Bees in Opener

By the Associated Press.

POLO GROUNDS, New York, Sept. 27.—The Giants pulled through in another close one—their twenty-eighth win by one run this season—when they captured the opening of today's double header with Bees, 5-4, with Jimmy Ripple counting with the deciding run in the eighth, when Relief Pitcher Lou Fette of the visitors was declared guilty of committing a balk.

Fo rsix innings the game was a pitching duel with John Lanning holding a 3-1 advtnage over Carl Hubbell thanks to Tony Cuccinello's fourth-inning homer with two mates on base.

Hubbell, who allowed only the three hits, was lifted for a pinch hitter in the seventh when the Giants staged a three-run uprising of their own. A pair of walks, a sacrifice, an infield out and Joe Moore's home run inside of the park did the damage.

The Bees came back to knot the count off Walter Brown although Dick Bartell's error let Gene Moore cross the plate with the tying run. Lou Fette was unable to hold back the Giants, however. With the bases loaded, the Bes' star rookie made a balk, allowing Ripple to score. Brown received credit for the victory while Fette was charged with the defeat.

PICARD TO MEET NELSON IN FINAL OF $12,000 EVENT

By the Associated Press.

BELMONT, Mass., Sept. 27. — Henry Picard and Byron Nelson, two Pennsylvania golf professionals and Ryder Cup team mates, today qualified for the final round of the $12,000 Belmont open match play tournament. Picard defeated Ralph Guldahl of Chicago, the National Open champion, 7 and 6, and Nelson eliminated "Lighthorse" Harry Cooper, also of Chicago, 5 and 4 in the semifinal matches scheduled for 36 holes.

The winner of tomorrow's 36 holes final will receive $3000 and the runner-up $2000. Today's defeated semifinalists each drew down $750.

Picard gave the open titlist only three of their 30 holes, which he played in six strokes under par. The former, who eliminated Lawson Little, the crack San Francisco match player, yesterday by 6 and 4, started out again this morning with a three under 68, which gave him a four holes lead on Guldahl.

The other pair of semifinalists were unable to match Picard's pace, but Nelson's regular 71 put hi mthree up on the British-born Cooper, who tops all of this season's money winners. Nelson picked up two more holes when he went out in a three-under 33 this afternoon.

Sophomores on Princeton Squad.

TRAY'S COLUMN

Fairmount to Hold Two 1938 Meets.

FROM a complete failure, the Fairmount race track has bounced back after two years of closed gates into a reasonable success, both artistically and financially. The meeting now in progress has so well satisfied its backers that plans for 60 days of racing for 1938 are now being drawn up by General Manager Burnett and his official aids.

There will be 30 days of racing in the spring and 30 in the fall and a stake race each Saturday is contemplated.

In achieving financial success and popularity, Fairmount has scored a real form reversal. Only two years ago the track was closed prematurely and a heavy loss was suffered.

Today, under new auspices, the meeting is going over with a mild bang, showing a profit during the three weeks in which it has been operating. Fans who once berated the plant and its management and remained away, now attend in considerable numbers. A maximum attendance of 25,000 for one day was attained. The whispering

NEXT CAMPAIGN WILL BE FLASH'S FIFTH COMPLETE AS MANAGER OF THE TEAM

Pitcher, Paid Off for Season, Will Remain Here to Have Arm Treated—Birds Gain an Even Break With the Cubs in Final Appearance Here for Season.

By James M. Gould.

The long-expected announcement that Frankie Frisch would continue as manager of the Cardinals for the 1938 season at least, was made by President Sam Breadon yesterday before the doubleheader with the Cubs.

The club executive, announcing the signing of a one-year agreement, did not specify Frankie's salary, but it is said that the Flash was rewarded materially for his fine showing with the 1937 club.

President Breadon praised Frisch's work highly. "Considering the number of injuries and other bad breaks the club has had," Breadon said, "Frisch has done a magnificent job in keeping the club 'up there' so long. We really had never considered any one else for the job and we are all glad Frank will stay with us."

Frisch accepted congratulations on his reappointment quietly. "Sure, I'm happy," he said, "who wouldn't be? It's great to be able to continue working for the Cardinal officials and for the faithful followers of the club. And, next year at this time, we'll be making sure that there isn't a third 'Subway series' in a row."

Dean Through for Year.

Frisch, who came here from the Giants in 1927 in the trade which sent Rogers Hornsby, who had managed the Cardinals to their first pennant and world series triumph in 1926 to New York, was made manager of the Redbirds, July 24, 1933, when he succeeded Gabby Street. Thus the season ending next Sunday is his fourth complete as leader of the team.

Playing only 32 games this season, Frisch said that he would quit playing next season and become a bench manager.

Under Frisch, the Cardinals won the pennant and defeated the Tigers in the world series of 1934; finished second in 1935 and tied for second in 1936. This season the team is third.

It also was announced by club officials that Dizzy Dean, who because of various injuries, has had the worst season of his career as a Cardinal, had been paid off for the remainder of the campaign and would not accompany the club on its last trip to Pittsburgh and Chicago. Although through for the year, Dean announced he would remain in St. Louis for some time to have his arm treated. Dean's record is 13 victories against 10 defeats.

Will Decide Third Place.

Ranked among the outstanding disappointments of the baseball season, the Cardinals played their last 1937 game at Sportsman's Park yesterday and, tonight, depart for Pittsburgh to open a series tomorrow which is certain to decide final possession of third place. The Pirate set will be followed by one with the Cubs in Chicago which will close the campaign.

The Redbirds were pre-season favorites for the National League pennant, but they failed to live up to expectations.

The Cardinals packed a thrill into their last day at home. And, the thrill resulted in a victory in the opener of the double bill when "all seemed lost save honor." This game, played before a paid attendance of 23,680, was won in the ninth by a score of 6 to 5; the second contest, halted by darkness after eight innings, went to the Cubs, 8 to 5.

In the opener, Bob Weiland's wildness was a big handicap though the southpaw, trying for his sixteenth victory of the season, allowed only five safeties. But, five of the Cubs favored by his passes, scored and when he walked Hack to start the Chicago ninth, he was removed in favor of Mike Ryba. The passed runner scored and when the Cards went in for their half, they were trailing, 5 to 2.

Medwick Comes Through.

Brown was first up in the ninth and he flied out to Stainback. Then, young Bremer, hitless in three previous chances, doubled. Terry Moore batted for Ryba and beat out a hit to Hack. It once again seemed all over when Pepper Martin fouled to Cavaretta. But, Stu Martin singled to right to score Bremer and put Terry Moore on third. Lee had held the Cards to seve hits in the first eight frames and he courageously tried to pitch to Mize but Johnny was scanning each pitch carefully and finally walked to pack the bases.

This brought up Medwick and Lee was replaced by Bryant. Joe slapped one to right on the third

Ross' Hand Broken In Garcia Fight—Out Of Ring for Two Months

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.

BARNEY ROSS, world's welterweight champion, will be out of the ring for two months due to a fractured left hand suffered in the second round of his battle with Ceferino Garcia in New York last Thursday.

The black-haired Chicagoan submitted to an X-ray examination today which showed a definite break. The hand was placed in a cast.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.— Ancil Hoffman, manager of Max Baer, today agreed to accept England's Tommy Farr as a substitute for Jimmy Braddock for a fight with Baer this winter. The acceptance was received by Mike Jacobs of the Twentieth Century Sporting Club in a telephone conversation with Hoffman, who is in Sacramento, Cal.

Baer and Braddock originally were scheduled to meet, Oct. 29. An injured hand forced Braddock to give up the bout. Jacobs said Farr is willing to meet Baer but wants to visit home before making his second American appearance. The Welshman was beaten by Champion Joe Louis last month.

MINNESOTA AND NEBRASKA COLLIDE IN FOOTBALL FEATURE

TIGERS TRAVEL WEST FOR GAME WITH COLORADO; BIG TEN OPENS

Important Contests Are Listed in All Sections of the Country for the Week-End.

By the Associated Press.

Last week's appetizer was fair enough, although it hit a modern low for excitement.

This week the entire college contingents including the Big Ten as a whole, the Big Three, the Big Six, and all the rest, don their helmets for a campaign that may may set up new records for attendance, gate reecipts and thrills before it winds up in early December.

By sections, here are the week's headline attractions:

MIDDLE WEST.

Gophers Meet Huskers.

Not even the crackling Big Ten duel between Ohio State and Purdue can take top billing away from the game of Minnesota and Nebraska at Lincoln, Neb. The Cornhuskers may not be quite so formidable as a year ago but year in and year out, they are a handful for anybody, especially at Lincoln. Minnesota gave evidence of terrific power last week in burying North Dakota State under a 69—7 score.

Ohio State spilled Texas Chrjstian, 14—0, last week, while Purdue led by the irrepressible Cecil Isbell, tossed Butler for a 33—7 loss. Their collision at Columbus may play a vital part in the conference championship race.

Michigan opens against Michigan State, routine 19—0 victor over Wayne last week; Wisconsin, triumphant 32—0 over South Dakota State, plays Marquette, hard-pressed by Little Ripon, 14—0. Illinois, impressive-in a 20—6 victory over tough Ohio University, plays DePaul.

Northwestern opens against Iowa State while Notre Dame's inaugural opponent, Drake, should give the Irish a good workout, especially if the Bulldogs' ace, Pug Manders, can break loose now and then.

Missouri Plays Colorado.

Along with Iowa State and Nebraska, other Big Six schools face outside opposition. Missouri, possible conference champion, travels to Boulder to meet the University of Colorado; Oklahoma, beaten by Tulsa, 19—7, plays Rice of the Southwest conference; Kansas State invades the East to tackle Gil Dobie's Boston College Eagles. Kansas plays Washburn.

FAR WEST.

Saturday's three major games in this sector provided few surprises although California revealed even greater power than had been suspected in trouncing St. Mary's, 30—6. Washington, thanks to Fritz Waskowitz' passes, turned back Iowa, 14—0, and Santa Clara pushed over two touchdowns in as many minutes of the fourth quarter to whip Stanford, 13—7.

This week Washington invades Los Angeles to face Southern California's Trojans, 40-0 conquerors of College of Pacific. Stanford meets Oregon, crushed 26-13 by U. C. L. A., and California plays Oregon State, nosed out in a major surprise by Idaho, 7-6. Idaho's next rival is Washington State, held to a scoreless draw by Conzaga.

EAST.

Safely past the first hurdle in its brutal schedule, Cornell finds Colgate's Red Raiders just ahead. The Ithacans, thanks to Whit Baker's passes to George Peck and Brud Holland, whipped Penn State, 26-19, by marching 65 yards to a touchdown in the last minute of play after the Nittany Lions had rallied to tie the count at 19-19.

Pitt, using 56 players in a 59-0 rout of Ohio Wesleyan as Sophomore Dick Cassiano scored four touchdowns, faces West Virginia, triumphant 14-0 over West Virginia Wesleyan. Fordham, possibly Pitt's chief rival for Eastern honors, opens against Franklin and Marshall.

Yale meets Maine, Harvard plays Springfield and Princeton faces Virginia who did no better than 13-7 against Hampden-Sydney.

Navy, after a 45-0 rout of William and Mary, plays another Southern Conference school, The Citadel, while Army faces a hard-bitten Clemson outfit which held Tulane to a 7-0 count.

The intersectional angle is stressed heavily elsewhere in the district as Temple plays Mississippi, George Washington meets Wake Forest, Manhattan tackles Texas A. and M., hailed as possible Southwest Conference champions, and Pennsylvania takes on Maryland.

Carnegie Tech, starting its first season with Bill Kern as coach, plays New York University which seems to have power to burn and plenty of deception to make it effective.

SOUTH.

Tulane will have to show more power than it did against Clemson if the Green Wave is to turn back Auburn's Plainsmen in the big Southeastern Conference engagement of the week. Alabama plays improved Sewanee in the other Vanderbilt, paced by Sophomore Bert Marshall, tripped Kentucky in its conference inaugural and now meets Chicago.

Louisiana State, 19-0 victor over Florida, plays Dana Bible's Texas Longhorns who looked strong in a 25-12 triumph over Texas Tech. Tennessee's Vols, who ran up a 32-0 count on Wake Forest, should have little trouble with Virginia Poly, whipped 25-0 by Duke.

Duke, the team to beat for the Southern Conference title, plays Davidson in a conference tilt while North Carolina, held to a surprising 13-13 tie by South Carolina, meets North Carolina State. The Washington and Lee-Richmond and Virginia Military-William and Mary games complete the conference slate. South Carolina plays Georgia of the neighboring Southeastern group.

SOUTHWEST.

Arkansas' Razorbacks begin their conference title defense against Texas Christian which will be hoping for a drier field than the Horned Frogs had at Columbus. Dave O'Brien's passing was ineffective against Ohio State, largely because of the rain.

Southern Methodist, which had to rally to beat Denton Teachers, 14-3, plays Centenary next. Baylor tackles Oklahoma City, swamped, 38-0, by Centenary.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN.

Utah and Brigham Young, victors in their first games last week, play at Salt Lake. Utah State and Montana State, Colorado College and Western State, and Colorado State and Colorado Mines are the other conference pairings.

pitch for a double which cleared the bases and won the ball game. Demaree appeared to have a chance to keep Mize from scoring but he juggled the ball and the chance was gone.

Krist, the young right-hander from Rochester, started the second game in quest of his fourth successive victory but he couldn't make the grade. He was unsteady at the start but escaped being scored upon until the fourth when Frey opened with a double and scored on a single by Larry French and a force-out. In the last of the fourth, it was tied when Johnny Mize hit homer No. 23 to right. Herman's double and Cavaretta's single put the Cubs ahead again in the fifth and, in the sixth, the Chicagoans kayoed Krist, picked successfully on his successor, Harrell and finished up facing Kleinke with six more runs in their locker.

The Cardinals weren't through, however and, in their half of the inning, counted four times. Mize's second homer of the game and his twenty-fourth of the season scored Stu Martin who had singled and then Medwick hit No. 30. Pepper Martin went out but Bordagaray tripled and scored on Brown's infield out. Root then relieved French in the box for the Cubs and made pinch-hitter Padgett force Ogrodowski who had singled.

Blake, the fourth Redbird pitcher and Root then went through the next two innings without undue trouble and, the shades of night having fallen very fast, the umpires wisely called the game at the end of the eighth.

Redbird Notes.

Both Mize and Medwick did some fancy hitting in the doubleheader. Johnny, in seven official trips, collected five hits, including two homers, while Medwick, up the same number of times, made the same number of hits, including a homer and his game-winning double.

Had the Cardinals been able to make even a mediocre showing against the Cubs in their interclub series this season, they might be still in the race. The teams have met 19 times and the Cubs have won 15, the Cards four.

In the first game, the Cubs had six men left on base in the first two innings. That must equal the record.

Jurges reported a lame shoulder for the second game and Linus Frey was pressed into service. Up four times, he walked once and hit two doubles and a single.

In contrast to Saturday's game, the doubleheader was fairly peaceful. Umpire Reardon said Medwick forced a player at second on one occasion and drew upon himself the wrath of the crowd and of Medwick, who thus was deprived of an infield hit. But, in the main, the games went quietly.

ST. AGATHAS PLAY 3-3 TIE WITH KOEBELS IN MUNICIPAL TITLE GAME

A meeting will be held this week to set the day for the replay of the 3-3 tie game yesterday played by the Koebel Democrats of the Triangle League and St. Agatha's of the South Side Sodality League, each seeking a place in the senior division final of the Municipal Baseball Association.

The game was called at the end of the ninth inning at Fairground Park because of darkness. The winner was to have met the Fouke team in the final next week. The date for the series final also will be set this week.

St. Agatha gained an early advantage over the Koebels, scoring once in each of the first three innings. The Koebels tied the score in the next two frames. Erwin Fauth of the Democrats held the Agathas to six hits. Ed Kramer, pitching for St. Agatha, gave 10.

In a preliminary game, the Feldkamps of the North Side League won from the Schaeffer-Lafayettes of the South Side League, 11-1.

ALICE MARBLE WINS TITLE IN COAST TENNIS

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 27.—The women's singles championship of the eleventh annual Pacific Southwest tournament went to Alice Marble yesterday when America's 1936 National Queen routed Gracyn Wheeler of Santa Monica in the finals, 6—1, 6—0.

Avenging the defeat handed out by Miss Wheeler in the tournament final a year ago, the California-born Alice could do no wrong in the match, while Miss Wheeler could do nothing well.

In the first set, Miss Marble captured the first five games. She had less difficulty in the second set. Miss Marble scored 13 placements to six for her opponent in the match, while each was guilty of a lone double fault.

The men's title was won Saturday by J. Donald Budge of California over his runner-up for world's amateur net supremacy, Baron Gottfried von Cramm of Germany. The scores were 2—6, 7—5, 6—4, 7—5.

The combination of Dorothy Workman, Pasadena, and Dorothy Bundy, Santa Monica, won the women's doubles championship by defeating Carolyn Babcock, Los Angeles, and Mrs. John Van Ryn, Austin, Tex., 6—1, 0—6, 6—2.

The English team of Charles Hare and George Patrick Hughes won the men's doubles title by defeating Francis X. Shields of Hollywood and Jacques Brugnon, France, 6—4, 6—2, 6—2. The Englishmen won their way into the final by beating the American Davis Cup duo, Don Budge and Gene Mako.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody of Berkeley flashed some of her old form as United States singles champion in teaming with Von Cramm to defeat Budge and Mrs. Van Ryn, 6—1, 6—4, in the mixed doubles.

campaign against mutuels has died away.

* * *

What Happened?

MORE spending money in the public purse, protection of the bettors through new commission regulations, confidence in the placing judges' rulings, due to checking with the camera, and liberalization of the tax conditions have figured in the moderate success of the meeting so far.

Final odds now approximate the payoff, due to the closing of the betting windows when the horses reach post and to the refusal to accept "comeback" money later than five minutes before post time have done wonders to restore confidence.

"Don't get the idea that this meeting is a gold mine," said one official at the track, "but we are showing a profit. If bad weather should occur during the remainder of the meeting, this might be wiped out.

"We obviously can't be getting rich with an average daily mutuel handle of less than $90,000, even if we do take out 9 per cent and breakage."

* * *

State Got $10,000 in Week.

THE daily revenue of the track from the mutuel would figure from $9000 to $10,000, on the average. To this would be added the rather meager income from the service charge on badges and a small paid admission sum. Of the 25-cent service charge on the free badges, 20 cents goes to the State and only 5 cents to the track.

Other sources of income include the restaurant, bar and various concessions, a fee from the news service companies for the privilege of sending out racing information, etc.

* * *

A net attendance of more than 50,000 was recorded the first week. This is shown in the fact that the track turned over $10,000 to the State from the 20 cents per capita tax. The following week its share was more than $6000. The State therefore lost nothing when it tempered taxation severity to the track's finances by cutting the daily fee from $1000 to $500.

The track, as pointed out officially, is far from entering the gold mine class in which we find such promotions as Santa Anita, Narragansett, Suffolk Downs, Rockingham, Hialeah and the Maryland courses, where the daily mutuel ranges from $300,000 to $450,000.

But the meeting thus far has proved that racing is still popular and will be patronized here when conducted in the interest of the public.

* * *

It Sometimes Happens.

UNCLE MIKE JACOBS' fourring fistic circus turned out to be just a side show. At least the fights did not particularly please the 32,000 observers. Over the radio few listeners had the endurance to sit through the constantly reiterated: "They clinch—the referee separates them."

There was only one militant glove-thrower in the bunch and that was Ceferino Garcia, who was having a try at the welterweight crown. Hitting Ross is about as easy as killing a mosquito on the wing with a sixteen-inch gun.

In lightweight fights, as is too often the case between clever and closely matched foes, one was afraid to take chances and the other dassent. Overcaution always makes for a terrible fight.

Montanez was the big disappointment of the evening as he had been expected to overtake Ambers and crush him. Ambers proved entirely too elusive with his campaign of dodging and holding.

Two Good Fights Coming.

THE net effect of the show was to diminish the drawing power of all the individuals concerned. Everybody knows now that there was no fireworks in the lot of them—not a pinwheel in a cartload.

Coming atop of the dull and dismal battle between Tommy Farr and Joe Louis, it is not going too far to say that the fight situation in most divisions of today has reached a new low as shown in the title finals of the current season.

There are still a couple of hopes in the offing. They seem to center around Freddie Steele, the American middleweight champion, who will now have to fight Apostoli in defense of his crown, and Henry Armstrong, the Negro featherweight king. They'll have to step lively to keep away from either of the champions named.

But the liveliest mill of the year is almost certain to come out of the mingling of Petey Sarron, bantamweight title champion, and Armstrong. Both are fighters of the perpetual motion type, both hit hard and neither is afraid. There'll be no stalling or overcaution in this match.

Mr. Grimes Speaks Up.

BURLEIGH GRIMES is not tongue-tied even when it comes to speaking about his aces. He is quoted as saying Mungo is "over-rated," which is bad medicine for the club treasury when trading time rolls around. Grimes was interviewed in the Brooklyn Eagle, and his words were reported as follows:

"Mungo always was a .500 pitcher. Sure, he hasn't been on a winning ball club, but if he is supposed to be one of the best pitchers in the league he should win a lot more games than he loses, regardless. If you go through the records you'll find good pitchers were winners with their clubs whether they finished in first or second division.

"I admit Van lost some tough games, but over the year he still should be well over .500. He grumbles about bad support when he loses and says nothing about his mates when they help him win. In a game with the Giants he held them to one hit in six innings and then was knocked out of the box. Can't blame his mates for that. If he can't hold a lead for the Dodgers he can't do much better with a first division team."

WORTH CROWING ABOUT

CUNNINGHAM IS ABOUT READY TO QUIT THE TRACK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Glenn Cunningham, the Kansas flyer, is almost ready to hang up the cleated shoes that made him America's foremost mile runner.

Next month Glenn will round out his first year as a New Yorker. The indoor season that comes with winter may be his last in competition. By next spring he will have completed nine years as a runner and will leave New York University a doctor of philosophy in physical education. The proud father of a four-months-old baby girl, Glenn feels sure running will become second, perhaps third, in importance to him.

"Last year," he said, while dressing after the race, "I was able to get about 30 minutes' workout each day. That's not enough. I like to warm up slowly and I need at least an hour. But I completed all the points I needed for my degree and need only to finish a thesis.

"I expect a full-time job within the next week. With my thesis to do besides, I'll be lucky to get 30 minutes each day to work out.

"Last year I traveled quite a bit. At times I was away from New York for two weeks, living in hotels and getting what meals you can does not help your condition.

"I'm not in condition now, of course. I didn't expect to do better than 4:20 yesterday. There was quite a wind and my legs got cold on that back stretch.

"Turning professional is something I cannot see. Those stories about turning pro did not come from me. I can see tennis players, boxers and baseball players as professionals, but I still think running is strictly amateur."

Cunningham, who is 28, plans to rest until shortly before the indoor season opens.

Moving into the home stretch, Howard Borck was within four yards of the Kansas runner, but Cunningham spurted to finish four yards in front.

Francis J. Ryan, Columbia University's ace, competing for the New York A. C., won the 16-pound shotput with a heave of 51 feet 6 inches. Four of his attempts were over 50 feet, his winning throw coming on his first effort.

Thomas Gallo of the Sixty-ninth Regiment A. A., was the only double winner of the day. He opened the meet by taking the 100-yard dash in 10.2s. Later in the afternoon, he won the 300-yard run when he finished in 32.5s.

HERRMANY LOST TO MULLERLEILE FOR 3 WEEKS; WRIST BROKEN

Their opening games out of the way, the Washington Bears and the St. Louis U. Billikens today will resume regular practice with single workouts in the afternoon.

Both teams suffered injuries in first games. Co-captain Woody Herrmany of St. Louis fractured his wrist right at the kick-off of the game with Millikin and will be lost to the team, it is thought, for three weeks. This means he will miss the games with Missouri Mines and Mississippi University.

Washington had three men injured. Ralph McKelvey, sophomore end from Belleville, was hurt blocking on the kick-off which followed Drake's first touchdown at Des Moines Friday night. On his return home, it was thought wise to send him to Barnes Hospital for observation. The concussion was reported to have cleared up nicely and McKelvey may be ready for service against William Jewell next Saturday.

Russ Meredith, veteran guard, was protecting a dislocated shoulder which had been slipped back into place and Charley Seibert, an end, was limping on a bad ankle.

Conzelman expects his young players to come along fast now and probably will use most of them against William Jewell, not considered a very tough opponent.

Despite his team's 37-0 triumph over James Millikin last Friday, Coach Muellerleile of the Billikens announces that it is a fact that "Mullerleile fears Rolla." The Billiken head coach saw the Miners defeat the Carbondale Teachers by four touchdowns Saturday and said that the squad now coached by Gale Bullman and Percy Gill looked to be the best the Miners have had in years. Bullman and Gill, both former assistants to Jim Conzelman at Washington, are thoroughly familiar with the St. Louis style of play, Muellerleile said. He expects the Miners, therefore, to be very difficult.

Surprise!

ALTHOUGH there were a number who thought
Our Brownies would amount to naught
And prove a bunch of blanks
The pennant now is in the bag,
The other day they clinched the flag—
For Joe McCarthy's Yanks.

When the curtain goes down Oct. 3, it will mark the closing of one of the poorest pitching years of modern baseball. Sore arms, sore heads and the rabbit ball took their toll.

The list of twenty-game pitchers diminished
A lot of them started but few of them finished.

IN DAYS of old so I've been told
They used to shoot for thirty;
Now if they hit the twenty mark
They think they're sitting "purty."

Look Out, Terry!

A DOUBLEHEADER now and then
Is relished by the best of men,
But when the Boston Bees are hot
They don't exactly hit the spot.

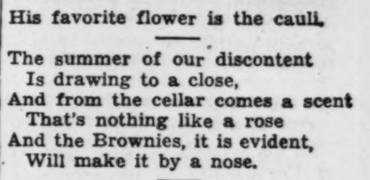

On the Way?

A DILLER, a dollar, a CIO scholar,
What makes you leave so soon?
You used to work till three o'clock
But now you quit at noon!

Business as Usual.

The melancholy days are come
The saddest of the year;
The Browns and A's are on the bum,
The Yanks are in the clear.
But if it should be otherwise
It would seem rather queer.

His favorite flower is the cauli.

The summer of our discontent
Is drawing to a close,
And from the cellar comes a scent
That's nothing like a rose
And the Brownies, it is evident,
Will make it by a nose.

Japan always has had a yen to lick China. But if this war keeps up much longer, she'll soon be down to her last yen.

CLERGYMEN CRITICISE JAPANESE AIR RAIDS

Every Principle of International Justice Violated, Says Federal Council of Churches of Christ

A statement by the Executive Committee of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ, criticising Japan for bombing civilian populations in China, was read from the pulpit of St. John's Methodist Episcopal Church yesterday by the Rev. Ivan Lee Holt, pastor and former president of the council.

The statement, prepared at a meeting in New York of 50 clergymen representing 25 Protestant churches, urged that every step short of military action be taken to protect the lives of missionaries.

"Thinking as all of us do under the constraint of the spirit of Christ and of the corporate consciousness of the Christian church, we feel a profound response to a sense of the horror of war, its grim inhumanity, and its inevitable breaking of every Christian sanction. We approach the matter of a statement regarding the situation in the Far East with a deep sense of our own participation in actions and attitudes which have helped to create the present tragic debacle.

"But we cannot make humility an escape from moral responsibility. We are clear in our conviction that we must say not only what we have a moral right to say, but what Christian principles demand. In this spirit we must state without equivocation the conviction that the action of Japan in invading China and bombing helpless non-combatants violates every principle of international justice, of regard for human rights, as well as the Christian principles by which we must all be judged.

"We strongly support the Government of the United States in its protest against the bombing of non-combatants in China and in its collaboration with the Advisory Committee of the League of Nations on the Far Eastern situation.

"We urge that every step be taken to protect missionary lives short of that military action which would defeat the purpose of the missionary enterprise as a brave and unselfish adventure of love.

"There can be no lasting solution of the problems of China and Japan apart from mutual respect, conciliation and friendliness. Consequently, although Japan's aggression against China must be unqualifiedly condemned, and her deliberate bombing of civilian populations viewed with horror, we must not permit that judgment to induce enmity or violence against the whole Japanese people. We earnestly hope that our missionaries may be strengthened in their difficult task of helping their Christian brothers in both nations to refrain from bitterness and recrimination."

Dr. Holt Deplores Personnel of Circuit Bench and School Board

In his sermon entitled "The Test of Christianity in St. Louis," Dr. Holt told his congregation that in his opinion the St. Louis Board of Education was "not one of which the city can be proud" and that the Circuit Court bench here was "the weakest in years."

He said that efforts of citizens' committees to improve either the Board of Education or the bench usually met with the opposition of politicians.

Dr. Holt also criticized what he said was an increase in the drinking of alcoholic beverages in St. Louis. "A few years ago," he added, "we were told that if prohibition were repealed there would be better control of drinking. But not in the old saloon days or during prohibition was there as much drinking in St. Louis as now."

MOTORCYCLE POLICEMAN SHOT, SLUGGED, ABDUCTED IN AUTO

Then Thrown From Speeding Car in Outskirts of San Diego.

By the Associated Press.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 27.—B. E. Hammond, motorcycle officer, was shot, slugged and abducted last night by a man whom Policeman W. H. O'Connor identified as William Edward Boyd, sought by Federal authorities on a charge of impersonating an army officer.

Hammond, thrown from a speeding automobile in the city's outskirts, called police from a service station. He said his abductor was accompanied by a woman. Hammond had stopped the man for questioning.

Hammond said that after being shot he jammed Boyd's pistol with his left hand and said, "I've got a wife and two kids." Boyd relented, slugged the officed and threw him into the sedan. Boyd's woman companion drove while the abductor sat in the back seat, pistol ready.

9 BURNED WHEN AUTO SNAPS OFF FUEL PUMP

Eight of Youths Sprayed by Gasoline at Filling Station Seriously Injured.

Nine youths were burned, eight seriously, when an automobile being pushed into a filling station at 2512 Cass avenue yesterday afternoon knocked over a gasoline pump and the fuel sprayed from the pump became ignited.

The injured were Jake Gagliano, 18 years old, 2613A Thomas street, an attendant at the station, who suffered burns of the left leg and hip, and the eight occupants of another automobile he was servicing at the time.

These persons, all Negroes, were: John Johnson, 18, the driver, 2504 Glasgow avenue, burned about the body; John Branch, 15, 2614 Baldwin street, body; Earl Johnson, 18, 2166 Farrar street, face and hands; Fred Pease, 15, 2514 Glasgow avenue, body; Joseph Finney, 17, 2511 Glasgow avenue, face and hands; Charles Hamilton Jr., 17, 2627 North Sarah street, face, legs and hands; Raymond Johnson, 14, 3911 Fair avenue, face and hands, and Claude Kelly, 17, 2512 Glasgow avenue, minor burns of the throat and left hand.

At Homer G. Phillips Hospital for Negroes it was stated the condition of John Johnson, Earl Johnson, Branch and Pease was grave.

The driver of the automobile which knocked over the pump said he was Victor Giamarino, 2618A Slattery street. He explained his car had stalled on the street near the filling station and that another motorist had offered to push him to the station, where he lost control of his machine as it entered the driveway. Presumably, gasoline from the pump he struck was ignited by contact with the hot motor of his car or the other machine.

Firemen were called to extinguish the flames. They estimated damage to the filling station at $100 and to the automobiles driven by Johnson and Giamarino at $50 each.

ROOSEVELT HEARS HIS POPULARITY HASN'T BEEN HURT

On Tour He Listens to New Dealers on Public Reaction to Court Scheme and Black Appointment.

HIS PUBLIC TALKS IGNORE THE SUBJECT

After Two Days in Yellowstone, President Moves on Through Idaho on Way to Seattle.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ABOARD PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S SPECIAL TRAIN, EN ROUTE TO THE PACIFIC COAST, Sept. 27.—President Roosevelt continues to talk to people who tell him what he likes to hear—namely, that his popularity with the mass of voters has not been impaired by his abortive effort to pack the Supreme Court or by the appointment of Hugo L. Black to a place on the court.

In Nebraska, home of Senator Edward Burke (Dem.), a leader of the fight against the court-packing plan, the President elected to take his information from Gov. Cochran, whose prime interest is in getting more Federal funds for his State. In Wyoming, home of Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney, another Democratic opponent of the court plan, Mr. Roosevelt consulted Senator Schwartz, who voted for the plan. In Montana, home of Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Democratic leader of the opposition to the packing plan, the President did his pulse-feeling through Senator James Murray, a stanch New Dealer.

More of the Same in Idaho.

In Idaho, home of Senator Borah, Roosevelt took stock last night and today through conversations with Senator Pope, who stuck by the New Deal through the court battle, and still is sticking. He heard the same story he had previously heard from Gov. Cochran and Senators Schwartz and Murray.

Pope, who got on the presidential train at West Yellowstone last night, told the writer, just before entering the President's car, that Roosevelt was "more popular in Idaho now than he ever has been."

"The court issue hasn't hurt him a bit," he said. "Most of our people are indifferent about it. They don't understand it any too well, but they think the proposal must be all right or the President wouldn't advocate it. They want him to have what he wants, and that's all there is to it."

"Delegations of citizens wanting one thing or another from Washington pass through my office in a constant stream. I can't remember a single one of them ever mentioning the court."

What Interests the People.

"What are they interested in?" he was asked.

"Most of them want more Federal funds for the State," was the answer. "Some of them want new Federal projects launched and all of them are anxious that the Government complete projects that have already been started. They are interested in prosperity, too—and Idaho has it."

His statement was virtually a paraphrase of one by Gov. Clark of Idaho, who boarded the train with Pope, to accompany the President to Boise.

The same view had been conveyed to Roosevelt in Montana and in Yellowstone Park, by Senator Murray. He told reporters that resentment against Senator Wheeler was intense among Democratic voters of the State, and he seriously questioned whether the anti-court-packing Senator could be re-elected in 1940.

"The feeling is particularly bitter against him among the miners, who have always been the backbone of his political strength in Montana," Murray declared. "These people have a strong C I O union and their heroes are President Roosevelt and John L. Lewis."

Murray revealed that, since Congress adjourned, Representative Jerry O'Connell, a youthful Democrat, has been stumping Montana, praising the President, and criticising Wheeler for opposing him. He is obviously building himself up to run against Wheeler for the nomination three years hence, and Murray reported that he was getting favorable responses.

Still Doubt About Real Purposes.

At the same time, reporters on the train and politicians along the route, still consider themselves in the dark as to the real purposes of this trip. Nothing has happened on the journey that would justify such an extraordinary dash across the continent in the present critical state of foreign affairs.

"The feeling is particularly bitter against him among the miners, who have always been the backbone of his political strength in Montana," Murray declared. "These people have a strong CIO union and their heroes are President Roosevelt and John L. Lewis."

Murray revealed that, since Congress adjourned, Representative Jerry O'Connell, a youthful Democrat, has been stumping Montana, praising the President, and criticising Wheeler for opposing him. He is obviously building himself up to run against Wheeler for the nomination three years hence, and Murray reported that he was getting favorable responses.

Still Doubt About Real Purposes.

At the same time, reporters on the train and politicians along the route, still consider themselves in the dark as to the real purposes of this trip. Nothing has happened on the journey that would justify such an extraordinary dash across the continent in the present critical state of foreign affairs.

Just before he left Washington, the President, in his Constitution day speech, virtually announced a new crusade against the Supreme Court. This, together with his itinerary, led to the natural conclusion that he purposed carrying the war into enemy territory, perhaps to the extent of engaging in reprisals against Senators who had fought his plan.

Thus far he has not mentioned the subject. O'Mahoney, the only one of the anti-packing Senators who has seen Roosevelt, was coldly received and subjected to a series of delicate snubs while he remained with the train, but whether the snubs were apparent to the general public may be questioned. It appeared that the President wished to make O'Mahoney feel his displeasure, but did not care to break with him openly.

Crowds Uniformly Friendly.

The crowds which have greeted the President have been uniformly friendly, although not especially demonstrative. A yell goes up when he appears on the rear platform, and there is a cheer when the train pulls out. Of course, his speeches have been mere, casual pleasantries, not calculated to arouse much feeling of any kind. If he intends to say something, he is still holding it back.

The party yesterday concluded two days of sight-seeing and rest in Yellowstone National Park, to which the President was making his first visit. An inveterate tourist, he thoroughly enjoyed it. The party saw the most famous natural wonders of the park—the canyons and geyser basins—winding up the tour yesterday afternoon with a visit to the park's most celebrated marvel, Old Faithful geyser. The arrival was timed to coincide with an eruption, and Old Faithful did not disappoint.

The President stopped his car several times to look at bears, elk and antelope along the road. The black bears were especially tame, advancing to the side of the cars, begging for food. One reared against the presidential automobile and put a paw on Roosevelt's arm.

The party was joined in Yellowstone by the President's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Boettiger, and Mrs. Boettiger's two children by a former marriage, "Sistie" and "Buzzie" Dall. They will remain with the party to Seattle, where the President and Mrs. Roosevelt will be guests for a day at the Boettiger home. Boettiger, who was a Washington correspondent of the Chicago Tribune before marrying Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, now is publisher of William Randolph Hearst's Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

DUKE OF WINDSOR AND WIFE IN PARIS, HE TO SEE AGENTS

He Plans Series of Conferences; Duchess Begins Shopping for New Clothes.

PARIS, Sept. 27.—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor came to Paris yesterday and took a nine-room apartment in the Rue de Rivoli Hotel.

Today the Duchess began a tour of the Paris dressmaking establishments to pick a winter wardrobe. The Duke busied himself with plans for a series of conferences with his representatives here.

Fifty Surate Nationale agents met the pair as they arrived on the Orient Express from Austria, and escorted them to their automobile. At the hotel they were greeted by Armine Dew, second secretary of the British Embassy.

WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ON HIS DASH INTO THE WEST

ROOSEVELT AND BORAH EXCHANGE BOUQUETS

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BOISE, Idaho, Sept. 27.—Speaking from the same platform with Senator William E. Borah, the Republican "lone wolf" who has vigorously opposed many administration policies, President Roosevelt today told a responsive crowd of 10,000 persons massed before the Idaho State Capitol, that he was "not thinking of the petty problems of the day—the quarrels and disputes of the moment."

He said he was trying to think of such things as the conservation of natural resources, including water power and timber; a better distributed prospertiy for agriculture, a better co-ordination of industrial activity and a better control of that activity.

However, it was not nearly so much what the President said that made his Boise appearance interesting, as the circumstances under which he said it. The particular circumstance which interested everyone was the presence of Borah, and the exchange of compliments and felicitations between Borah and the President. It seemed to afford a perfect picture of two master politicians, each willing to play the other's game in return for the benefits he would get for himself.

Borah Meets Train.

Borah met the train when it arrived in Boise, his home town. He told this writer that he had not been back from Washington long enough to take any particular soundings of public sentiment on the President's threat to reopen his fight to pack the Supreme Court—the plan which Borah helped defeat in the last session of Congress.

He said a few persons had spoken to him about the charge that Justice Hugo L. Black is or was a member of the Ku Klux Klan, and that some of them believed Black should explain or resign, and that others believed he should say nothing and stay on the Supreme Court.

Talks With Roosevelt.

However, Borah said: "There has been no public furore in Idaho about it, one way or another, so far as I can learn."

Immediately on his arrival, Borah conferred briefly with the President in the latter's private car, but declined afterward to reveal the subject of the conversation, although saying that he considered it important. He rode in the presidential parade, along with his Democratic colleague, Senator Pope. It appeared that the cheering along the route was almost as much for Borah as for the President. His fellow home townsmen are proud of the old lion of Idaho.

Public Utility Gets Federal Loan At 2.88; to Earn 6 or 7 Per Cent

Arkansas Light Co. Borrows $323,000 for Rural Electrification and Keeps Distribution in Its Own Hands.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 27.—The Arkansas Power & Light Co. has obtained a loan of $323,000 from the Rural Electrification Administration to construct rural electrification projects in 19 counties.

The loan is the largest yet granted a private company by the administration. The statute creating the rural electrification administration provides, in effect, that preference must be given consumers' associations or similiar cooperative organizations of a nonprofit or limited profit character. About 95 per cent of the loans made thus far have been to cooperatives and five per cent to private companies.

The present loan was obtained by Harvey C. Couch, president of the Arkansas Power & Light Co., through John M. Carmody, rural electrification administrator. The Federal agency declined to make allotments to several co-operative associations which proposed to borrow Federal money and then pay the power company to build lines and operate them. It was explained officially that the proposed 19-county distribution system embraced isolated areas too widely scattered to be unified in a public co-operative.

Shrewd Stroke of Business.

The $323,000 loan was a stroke of shrewd business on the power company's part. When this sum is added to the rate base it will entitle the company to earn a return of 6 or 7 per cent on the amount.

But the interest which the company pays for its Government loan is but 2.88 per cent. The gap between the rate it has to pay for public funds and the rate it is permitted to earn from rates collected for its service to the public (6 or 7 per cent) represents the direct benefit derived by the company through the largess of Uncle Sam.

To the company the loan represents "cheap money." Normally, instead of paying 2.88 per cent interest, it would be compelled to pay 5 per cent on bonds sold to the public. Many such bonds have been sold in the past.

Security for the Federal loan, which is on a 20-year sinking fund basis, was provided by a portion of a special bond issue of $982,000, authorized by directors of the company last Sept. 14. These bonds are similiar to the 5 per cent bonds commonly offered the public except that they bear an interest rate of only 2.88 per cent. They were authorized in anticipation of additional Government loans.

Loan Protective Barrier.

Representatives of the company, while they may not be quoted, expressed the view to the writer that the company benefits also from the loan because it enables it to keep its distribution system in its own hands instead of furnishing power to co-operative concerns financed by the Government. The loan was frankly regarded as a "feeler" and as a protective barrier against any tendency toward municipal or government ownership in the territory in which Arkansas Power & Light operates.

During the past three years the company has established rural electrification systems in 55 of the 75 counties of the State, spending about $300,000 a year. This business represents but 2 per cent of the power furnished by the company which has a present rate base of approximately $55,000,000.

Plan Early Start of Work.

As soon as formal approval of the loan and the issuance of a certificate of convenience and necessity is granted by the State Department of Public Utilities, the company plans to begin construction of the new projects. Officers of the company told the writer work would begin within 60 days.

The rural electrification projects embrace 503 miles of line to accommodate 1652 customers. They are divided into four units, as follows:

Section 1—Conway, Yell, Scott, Van Buren and Pope counties, 117.7 miles; to serve 366 customers.

MUSSOLINI RIDES WITH HITLER IN BERLIN PARADE

FASCIST AND NAZI INSIGNIA DISPLAYED

Premier and Fuehrer to Speak From Same Platform—They Visit Arms Plant, Watch Tactics.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 27.—Premier Mussolini of Italy arrived in this city this afternoon, as the guest of Fuehrer Hitler. He already had seen Germany's army in annual maneuvers and today he visited the factories at Essen, where German armaments are made.

His tour through the streets of Berlin led to the presidential palace, reserved as his residence for the three days he will spend in Berlin.

He was greeted at the station by a flag-waving, cheering multitude. The entire six-mile route from the station to Brandenburg gate was thronged with cheering men, women and children behind lines of black-uniformed guards.

Owners of boxes and stepladders did a brisk business renting them to spectators in back rows. The crowds were thickest along the Unter den Linden and the Wilhelmstrasse.

Six Miles of Crowds.

They rode through the six-miles o fcheering crowds in an open automobile, Hitler in his customary brown uniform and Mussolini in that of a militia leader.

The crowd was estimated at nearly 800,000 and the streets were decorated with Fascist insignia and Nazi swastikas. Uunter Den Linden was lighted brilliantly.

Both looked grim as they left the small, newly painted Heer street railway station under heavy protection and walked along the station front before Hitler's black bodyguards.

An estimated 20,000 of these guards lined the parade route, with every third man facing the crowd. Regular police were reinforced by detachments from all parts of Germany, and citizens living along the route had been forbidden for a week to admit any strangers to their homes.

Mussolini and Hitler Go Through Krupp Works at Essen.
By the Associated Press.

ESSEN, Germany, Sept. 27.—Premier Mussolini of Italy and Reichsfuehrer Hitler visited the Krupp cannon factory today.

Most of the vast factory—which covers about as much area as the rest of Essen—was kept running so the two leaders could see Germany's greatest arms center in full swing.

Der Fuehrer and the Premier saw giant cranes swing 16-inch guns from forge to forge, raw steel transformed into the armored plates and turrets of battleships, new and powerful land and sea guns take shape.

On Separate Trains.

Special trains jammed with Rhinelanders poured into Essen before the arrival of Hitler and his guest, cautiously traveling separately on two private trains.

A six-mile ride with Hitler from the west end of the capital to the presidential palace in the Wilhelmstrasse gave millions of Germans their only opportunity to see the Fascist leaders together.

Today the two will speak from the same platform. The great mass meeting has been billed on posters all over Berlin as an "historic" appearance of two "great national orators."

Half Holidays With Pay.

Most factories in Essen and the surrounding country were closed after officials broadcast the news yesterday that Hitler and Mussolini would make the extra stop. But, in keeping with the Fuehrer's insistence that the celebrations be no hardship for the workers, the half-holidays were with pay.

21 MORE EXECUTED AS 'WRECKERS' OF SOVIET FARMING

Twelve Accused of Plotting Revolt at Two Tractor Stations in Caucasus District.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Sept. 27.—Soviet Russia's list of executions was swelled yesterday when 21 more men were shot as disloyal "wreckers" in the agricultural industry.

Today, Zachariah Lordkipanidze, president of the trans-Caucasian Republic of Adjaria, and ten others went on trial at the capital at Batum, accused of plotting with an unnamed foreign power for armed aid in revolt against the Soviet Government.

Stepan Dybets, deposed head of the automobile industry appeared likely to face trial here along with others blamed for the lag in motor car production.

Pravda, official Communist publication whose criticism previously has led to arrests, today denounced Dybets.

"For what they have done in the automobile industry, Dybets and his assistants must be tried," the newspaper said.

Pravda also criticised Valery Mazhlauk, Commissar of Machine Building, for allowing leaders to corrupt the important branch of industry which was filed with "anarchists, mensheviks and pseudo-specialists."

Lordkipanidze, the Adjarian president, was said by the Tiflis newspaper Dawn of the Orient to be involved in a plot to separate his Republic from the Soviet Union and restore capitalism under the protectorate of a strong capitalist country through armed revolt.

Twelve of those executed yesterday were accused of plotting rebellion at two tractor stations in the Caucasus. There previously had been numerous executions in this region for alleged plotting of a separatist revolt.

Four officials, attached to a sugar factory at Kiev, were given the supreme penalty on charges of treason and mismanagement of the plant. It was alleged they lost more than 2,000,000 pounds of sugar in two years by using improper formulas.

Meanwhile, indignation meetings were reported held in automobile plants and other factories in Moscow to protest against Japanese bombardment of Chinese cities and villages. Resolutions criticising these attacks by "Japanese imperialists" were drawn up by workers. They were the first evidences of Chinese feeling over the Chinese-Japanese conflict, which so far has failed to produce the customary editorial blasts in the press.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

A Condemnation of Pacifism.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

PACIFISM at any price is going to have a lot to answer for. The shaping of events seems to make that evident. The increase in international banditry is due to extreme pacifism.

Pacifism is not a virtue that will protect any nation—not if it stands in the way or excites the envy of an unrestrained outlaw. Merciless militarism will continue to grow by what it feeds upon and will press pacifism for the answer. Then isolation will be seen to be not a splendid thing, but a figment nurtured at a frightful cost.

We may now seek refuge—and evade responsibility—behind an unneutral Neutrality Act, while morality and decency are flouted, while innocent people are slain by the thousands, while commerce is disrupted and to a great extent destroyed, but when the storm passes we shall look upon the catastrophe with misgiving and, if we are not completely calloused, with a deep sense of guilt.

Take sides? Of course. The side of right against wrong, of justice against injustice, the side that sees future welfare springing from present correctives. Who among us has peace where law and order do not prevail?

Cynical comment to the contrary, the World War did extend the threatened life of democracy—up to now—and gave to some the opportunity, but not the training, in representative government. A lesson there, for us.

Confronted now with a greater threat, the responsibility of the world's democracies is to act collectively—and quickly—and, having thwarted barbarously cruel aggression, they should maintain the peace with, perhaps, an international police force until sanity returns. E. G. P.

Big Men Can't Buy Snappy Shirts.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I HAVE always been mystified at the failure of high-class men's shops in St. Louis to cater to the needs of the large man. I have tried in vain for years to purchase my shirts at St. Louis stores, only always to be told, "We do not buy less conservative shirts larger than 15½."

Certainly, I am not the only large man in St. Louis who likes snappy merchandise and I know local stores are losing a lot of business by being too conservative along this line.

One can go into any high class shop in Chicago and find a full assortment of snappy merchandise in all sizes, including 17½. I know whereof I speak, for all my shirts are purchased in Chicago, and I have no trouble in getting whatever I want in my size.

This is just one instance where St. Louis shops are losing out because they fail to consider the large man and to include snappy merchandise to fit his needs. HARD TIME.

Lawyers and Claim Adjusters.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ON YOUR editorial page of Sept. 23 appeared a letter from Joseph Redmond, in which he states that the lawyers are considering ways and means of appropriating to themselves the work which has always been the province of lay claim adjusters.

It is not appropriation to insist upon a right to which one is entitled. Too long have lawyers allowed laymen to handle matters which rightfully are in the province of those ordained as officers of the court. An extensive legal education is necessary to prepare one to handle matters resulting in litigation. The work done by a lay claim adjuster will usually end in a court trial or a settlement to avoid a court trial. It is not only the right but the duty of a lawyer, as an officer of the court, to insist that any investigation which may ultimately lead to litigation be handled only by qualified lawyers.

If a layman gives medical attention without having first obtained a license to practice medicine, he is guilty of an offense against the state and is subject to arrest. But if a lawyer attempts to stop a layman from the unauthorized practice of the law, he is looked upon as a vulture pouncing upon the livelihood of another.

DAVID STODDER.

Should Take His Medicine.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

OBSERVING that letters in some of the papers excuse the recent actions of Postmaster Jackson, I should like, as an overburdened taxpayer, to say that while I respect Mr. Jackson and the position which he fills, all the excuses offered do not overcome the fact that it was very unethical for him to connive with the Postmaster at Sullivan in order to have his son employed there. The same is true of his action in making that employment a stepping-stone to a $1700 clerkship over the heads of many who had taken the civil service examination.

When the son held a city job in the Department of Streets and Sewers, at $125 a month, it was certainly up to him to render service, whereas he was at that time enrolled as a university student and attending classes.

The only thing left for Postmaster Jackson to do it to take his medicine of condemnation. He should also realize that young men seeking employment in their home town of Sullivan were also entitled to consideration. DONALD SMITH.

HOW IT HAPPENS.

How does it happen that the budget of the State of Missouri for 1937-38 is approximately $90,000,000 bigger than the budget for 1933-34?

The increase is largely to be accounted for by the State's co-operation in the Federal social security program. By far the largest item in the increase is that for old-age assistance.

In the current biennium, the vast sum of $34,850,000 has been appropriated for this purpose, of which half comes from the Federal Government. In addition, $1,519,650 has been set aside for administering old-age assistance and other phases of the social security program. A total in excess of $36,000,000.

The second largest factor in the increased governmental costs is education. Less than $15,000,000 was spent for elementary and high schools in the last two years, against an appropriation of more than $24,000,000 in the present biennium. There has been in the same period an increase from $1,984,000 to $4,375,000 in the cost of teacher training, and there have been large increases in other educational costs.

As it happens, the vastly increased revenue going to the schools is a by-product of State co-operation with the national security program. In order to finance the latter, the sales tax was increased to 1 per cent and, at the last session, to 2 per cent. Automatically, one-third of the sales tax proceeds—estimated at $48,500,000 in the present two years—goes to the schools.

It goes to the schools whether they need it or not and, indeed, there was no showing at the last session of the Legislature that the schools need the windfall that has come to them. A vigorous effort was made to reduce the school's automatic share of general revenue funds from one-third to one-fourth, because of lack of such a showing, but it was defeated.

It is, of course, scandalous that old-age assistance should cost nearly $35,000,000. When the people ratified the old-age amendment in 1932, they were told from many a platform, by duly accredited speakers, that pensions for the aged would cost less than the poorhouses, which they were assured would be abolished if the amendment were passed. The poorhouses cost only about $1,000,000 a year. They are still costing that, because, despite the promises to the voters, they are still operating.

More than 70,000 persons are on the old-age assistance rolls, or approximately one of every two persons over 70 in Missouri. Many, if not most of them, are there, not because they are eligible under the terms of the amendment and the statute, but because of political favoritism. When and if the pension age is reduced to 65, as it must be if the State is going to continue to receive Federal grants, another horde of chiselers will have their noses in the public crib.

It is outrageous that governmental costs in Missouri have soared as they have and the outrage becomes even more patent when the figures are analyzed. A humanitarian measure has been transformed into a political racket and the people are paying through the nose with a sales tax that presses onerously upon the poor.

MR. FARLEY STAYS ON.

Something is always happening to keep Jim Farley yoked to that postmaster-generalship which he has been trying to get away from since the early morning of the abundant life. At last it seemed as if the grim, grilled gates were to open and he was to walk out a free, independent, private citizen and step right into a $50,000 job.

A pleasing prospect. Instead of trying to banquet the multitude of deserving Democrats with the few loaves and fishes in the political pantry, he was to be a commissioned officer in the industrial army, one of the high command, occupying the overstuffed chair in which the economic royalist takes his ease on his day off.

Again perverse fate has impishly intervened. This time it is the stock market. Ever a baffling Sybil, the market, in its present behavior, is enigma incarnate. It is speaking an unknown language which nobody can translate. But the penetrating eye of public suspicion has probably by now detected the cause. The whole slumping phenomenon may presently be exposed as a Wall Street conspiracy against Jim Farley.

Just why Wall Street would be any happier with Jim Farley in the Cabinet than at the head of an automobile concern is something for the astrologers to explain, but what other reason can be advanced for stocks to be acting so Hooverishly? It is the drooping antics of the market that are giving Jim Farley pause, so the papers imply.

Anyhow, the Hon. James A. Farley's oft-rumored retirement has again been postponed, and the man may hardly be censured for resigning himself to the inevitable and continuing in the official family through the second term, through the third, through the fourth, and on and on and on.

And now China is telling us what we ought to do, but Uncle Sam is not the soft-boiled egg he was in 1917.

THE PROSECUTION OF MISS KIRKHAM.

A most interesting concern for the welfare of women workers has been evidenced by Thomas Brady, State Labor Bureau Inspector, who has caused a warrant to be issued against Miss Juanita Kirkham, director of the Missouri Old Age Assistance Bureau. It is charged that Miss Kirkham required four employes in her office to work 11 hours and 15 minutes last Tuesday, in violation of the State law providing a maximum work day for women of nine hours.

Miss Kirkham says her staff worked overtime to dispose of some accumulated business of the office, and to facilitate the payment of past-due checks to aged persons. The staff, she claims, consented to the extra work because of the emergency. Further, Miss Kirkham, while aware that the work week for women was limited to 54 hours, did not know that the work day was limited to nine. Nevertheless, she is now to appear in court to defend herself against a misdemeanor charge, punishable by a fine as high as $100.

It happens that the St. Louis Old Age Assistance Bureau has aroused the keen displeasure of local politicians. Under the direction of Dr. R. Emmet Kane and Charles Hertenstein, the bureau has repeatedly resisted attempted raids upon it for political purposes. Early in the game, Dr. Kane and Mr. Hertenstein indignantly protested against accepting as members of the staff certain unfit persons chosen at Jefferson City for political reasons. Their employment of Miss Kirkham, a trained social worker, as director, naturally aroused the opposition of the politicians, who were thus deprived of filling the post with a compliant henchman.

Has this political background any bearing upon the prosecution of Miss Kirkham? Is a law designed for the protection of factory workers being invoked as a means of partisan reprisal against a hard-working public servant?

THE DECLINE OF KLUXISM.

The Black affair has at least had the gratifying effect of demonstrating that the Ku Klux Klan, if not dead, will have a hard time to get going again as a social or political influence. Voices have been raised in defense of Senator Black, but the palliation of his conduct has stopped with the assertion that his connection with the Klan was dictated by political expediency. None of his public defenders—at least none to whom any considerable part of the public pays any attention—has arisen to defend the Klan itself. To the contrary, it has been the practice of the defense to disavow sympathy with the racial and religious intolerance of the hooded order and to say that Mr. Black by his words and deeds in the Senate has proved his lack of bigotry.

In these days of rampant "isms" throughout the world, it is heartening to know that the vast majority of the American people take no stock in the particular "isms" preached by the Klan. Ridicule has played a large part in the Klan's fall to its present insignificant estate; the returning good sense of many of the deluded followers of the Kleagles and Kluds has had something to do with it; the depression helped.

Another important factor, we like to think, is the example of the dictatorships abroad. The people have seen what Fascism, with its crushing of civil liberties and elemental human rights, has done to Italy and Germany; how it has made a mockery of the courts, spread fear through the land, exalted violence, brought Europe to the verge of a suicidal war.

Kluxism, in its own preposterous way, illustrates the evils of Fascism. The people have sensed this, and they want none of it.

LET SILVER SET THE PACE.

Among the questions to come in for discussion between Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Sir Frederick Phillips, Under-Secretary of the British Exchequer, during the latter's visit in Washington, is whether and to what extent the American Government will allow the Western silver producers to continue their unblushing raid on the Treasury.

Tariffs, subsidies, bonuses, benefit payments and similar distributions of largess are in no wise new to generous Uncle Sam, but the bounty being dealt out to the silver-mining companies is without present parallel, perhaps, if we except the favors heaped on the beet sugar producers.

The world price of silver wavers at present between 44 and 45 cents an ounce, but the Government is paying 77½ cents for all silver produced in this country. The subsidy, if you stop to figure it, is 73 per cent.

This, of course, is not quite so bad as it was two or three years ago. The administration, in its anxiety to make itself solid with the voters and Senators of the six chief silver-producing states, launched a fantastic buying spree in the hope of boosting the world price to $1.29 cents an ounce.

With Uncle Sam taking all offers, here and abroad, the world price did rise from 43½ cents to 81 cents before the strain on the Treasury became unbearable. When the Government stopped its foreign buying, the world price sank back to about where it was when the experiment started. But the Treasury has continued to hold an umbrella over domestic producers in the form of a guaranteed price of 77½ cents for this country's production.

Compared with his bounty for the silver men, Uncle Sam is playing the veriest piker toward the cotton farmers. Instead of benefit payments or indirect price guaranties averaging 2 or 3 cents a pound, or some 20 per cent of the world price, he ought, based on the silver bounty proportions, to be paying from 6 to 8 cents a pound on cotton. And the wheat farmers ought to be sharing proportionately in the Government's bigheartedness.

It might be the best thing that could happen if producers of all other commodities set their Senators and Representatives to work for the same proportional bounties as the silver-bloc Senators have wangled for producers of the white metal. The Treasury couldn't stand the strain, but neither could the administration continue openly to play favorites.

The upshot would be that the silver bounty would be abandoned or drastically reduced—which is exactly what should happen.

AS THE GODS LAUGH.

The gods must rock with ironic laughter as they hear Benito Mussolini refer to Adolf Hitler as "the herald and defender of European civilization against subversive activities."

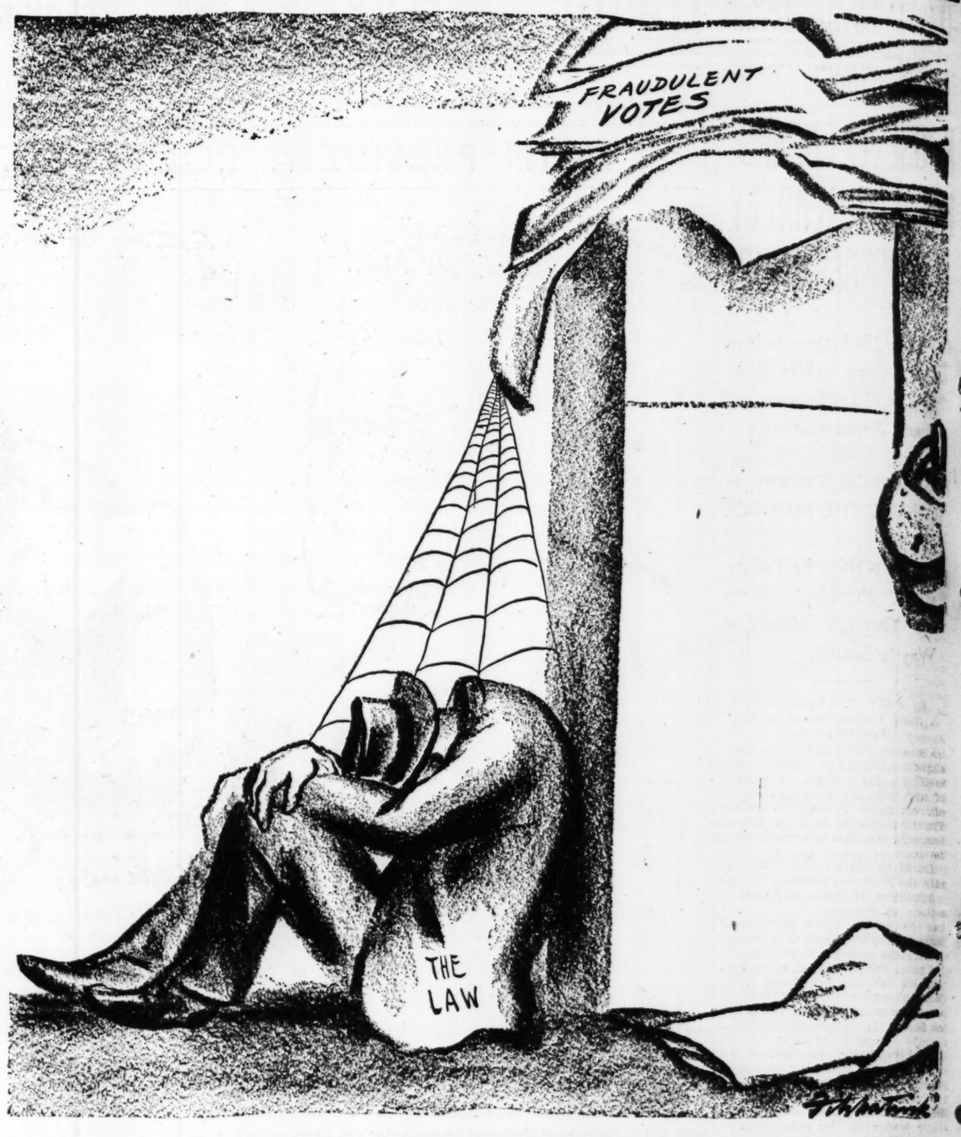

Hitler is defending his country against the poetry of Heine and the music of Mendelssohn. He is defending it against the mathematical genius of Albert Einstein and the literary brilliance of Lion Feuchtwanger. In the name of European civilization, he has crushed the twin heresies of democracy and liberty. As herald of a new day, he has caused men to be imprisoned, broken and destroyed because they happen to have been born members of a race that Hitler despises.

He has substituted Wotan for God, and a crackpot Neo-Pagan religion for Christianity, and those theologians who dare to take issue are made to feel the sting of the Fuehrer's displeasure. He has wrecked the universities, cradles of learning for centuries, and sent their greatest men into pitiful exile. He has gutted the professions. He is best symbolized by the archaic ax, with which his executioner severs the heads of the enemies of the state.

This defender of European civilization has transformed a race of proud and virile people into a nation of goose-steppers, whose most private conversations are subject to espionage, and whose participation in affairs of government is limited to a servile "Ja" on election day.

Yes, Hitler is the defender of European civilization, the civilization of thumb-screw and rack, the civilization of Genghis Khan and Attila the Hun, the civilization of tooth and claw, of ignorance and bestiality.

Like Italy and Germany in Spain, Japan is in China fighting the monster Communism. Literally and figuratively drawing the "red" herring across the trail.

GOVERNMENT OF THE PEOPLE.

A Defense of Crop Control

Agricultural adjustment schemes are natural corollary of tariff, educator contends; says law of supply and demand is not allowed to operate in production of things farmer buys and that it is unfair for it to govern things he produces; asks opponents of plan to worry about "unproduced automobiles as well as little drowned pigs."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

DOROTHY THOMPSON protests against the cotton crop-control policy of the Federal Government on the ground that it is economically unsound to impose higher prices on the consumer by reducing the production or otherwise limiting the supply of any good thing. As theory we have no quarrel with this view.

Unfortunately for the cotton growers and for other farmers, they are confronted with some immediately pressing realities that will not wait upon academic theory or upon revolutionary change in all our present ways of doing business.

Miss Thompson's arguments against crop control all rest on the assumption that free competition and unlimited production have actually been the general rule in the United States until the A A A came along and tampered with farm production in order to raise the price of farm products.

In spite of what she says at the beginning of her article, logic compels her to assume that all the things the farmer has to buy in exchange for what he produces are also produced under the same kind of competition he faces, and sold as his products are sold for what they will bring in a market where supply and demand govern prices. This theory, of course, simply does not correspond to the real facts in the case.

Let us take a simple example. In 1918, when the farmers first began to buy automobiles in great numbers, a Ford car cost about $600 and a bushel of wheat sold for $3. In other words, a Ford car could be exchanged for 200 bushels of wheat. In 1932 a bushel of wheat brought 30 cents.

Had the rugged individualist's theory of supply and demand been permitted to operate on Ford cars as it did on wheat, Ford cars should then have sold for $60.

While the farmer continued to produce all the grain he could, and the law of supply and demand was driving the price of a bushel of his wheat from $3 to 30 cents, it was not permitted to operate on automobiles at all. The automobile industry, sitting safe from foreign competition behind a high tariff wall, and highly centralized at home, had long before worked out its own methods of curtailing the crop of automobiles.

* * *

The columnists who weep periodically over the mythical little drowned pigs seldom worry about the idle factory workers and never at all about the unproduced automobiles.

What has been said about automobiles is also true about farm implements, insecticides, fertilizers, insurance, household equipment and even of many kinds of labor and most professional and other personal services. Production of all these was curtailed so that price could be maintained.

Most devastating of all to the farmer, the boom price levels were also maintained on debts and interest. A thousand dollars borrowed in 1920 represented 350 bushels of wheat, and required 21 or 22 bushels for a year's interest. In 1932 the same debt represented 3000 bushels of wheat and called for the value of 180 or 200 bushels for interest.

The result of these economic developments has been the gradual impoverishment of the small towns and rural areas, until today in all the great farming regions, there is less and less real wealth each year instead of more and more as there should be.

It is conceivable that in some ideal future state a completely unregulated economic order might work. That this could possibly be brought about in the present generation without violent revolution is a notion too naive to be considered. It would require a reversal of present trends in almost every feature of modern industry from cost accounting to the basic policies of labor unions.

Yet laissez faire cannot continue indefinitely to be applied to some large and important sections of industry, while others operate on the principle of limiting production to control prices, under complete regimentation, not by authorized, elected, responsible government, whose actions all can see, but by an invisible government of a few great financial and industrial leaders.

The real conditions that now actually face us cannot be continued without protecting the unorganized, naturally highly competitive industries. To fail much longer to give this protection will reduce the farmers, the small business men and all unorganized workers to a state of peonage, and will cripple the rest of industry, as it has done before, for want of the purchasing power of the under-privileged groups.

* * *

A drive through the cotton belt, noting the condition both of the landowner and the share-cropper, will show any fair observer how far the process of impoverishment has already gone in one great region.

The least dangerous, the least revolutionary and the only practical thing to do is for those who depend on the unorganized industries to learn to play the game according to the rules that their organized fellow-citizens have made for them. This means that they will organize for their own advantage when they can to meet their disadvantages by co-operation with each other, and to seek enough control of the authorized government so that they may pit it against the unauthorized, invisible government which has been operating industry largely to their disadvantage.

Out of discussions, compromises and working arrangements among equals, some measure of justice will come. This process is the essence of democracy. It necessarily implies none of the dreadful things that are conjured up by spokesmen of the groups who fear to lose some of the advantages they now believe they hold.

To discuss crop control as if it were the single existing example of curtailment in the production of wealth, to view its implications with alarm without considering with it the tariff problem, the foreign debt, the demoralized condition of European markets—in short, to discuss it at all without considering it as a part of a much larger and infinitely complicated set of problems, is not responsible journalism.

WHY REPAIR THE ROOF?

From the Worcester (Mass.) Evening Gazette.

Mr. Roosevelt is right when he says that the time to repair a leaky roof is while the sun is shining. But haven't we been promised in ringing tones that it is never going to rain again?

Autumn Reaches Missouri

From the Kansas City Star.

AUTUMN is at hand, the most gorgeous season of the year, with its blaze of gold and brown and smoldering russet in the leaves of the woodlands; with its smoking mists in the valleys; with its crisp, bracing air beneath skies of polished azure.

Among the seasons, autumn, in the Middle West, is the richest and most pleasurable. Spring is beautiful here, but spring is often rainy and windy and sometimes raw. Summer and winter, while having their attractions, also have uncomfortable extremes of temperature.

To autumn, therefore, we turn as a benediction for the year. Rarely does it belie the faith we have placed in it. Long, peaceful Indian summer days; the exhilarating nip of the first frosty mornings; the hint that something is happening to the world with squirrels scampering among the falling leaves as they prepare for the eventualities of cold weather, and birds gathering in chattering flocks to begin their southern hegira—these are days to be savored to the full.

The wheat is binned, the corn is to be gathered soon, apples are being picked and stored against the cold, hard days. For a period of soft, gentle weeks the world rests and recuperates between the harsher seasons just past and just before.

The recent summer was not bad, judging it at least by the standard set in 1936, but autumn is welcome just the same.

SEWER GAS DOES ITS PART.

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

THERE is nothing new under the sun? Then read a treatise issued by the Public Works Administration, entitled "Economy Gone Wild." Therein will be found announcement of three P W A-constructed generating plants which will employ sewer gas for motive power.

The largest is a $1,868,000 disposal plant near Coney Island, N. Y., which treats the sewage from 1700 acres in and around the famous resort. The plant will produce gas to drive the three 300-horsepower engines. The Greater Peoria Sanitary and Sewage District will use generators driven by an engine which will derive its power from digesting tanks. At a cost of $84,436, P W A engineers estimate the annual power bill will be cut more than $25,000. Durham, N. C., will eliminate raw sewage with a $760,000 disposal plant; gas from the project will drive two generating units.

The longer scientists and engineers work, the more it becomes evident that there is some use for everything.

AMERICA'S SHAME.

From the Detroit Times.

HARRY ANSLINGER, chief of the Bureau of Narcotics, has returned from Europe with information that reflects no credit on America.

Attending conferences at Geneva, where international control of opium was discussed, he learned:

That America ranks second only to China in the illicit traffic of narcotics generally.

Americans, smug in their assumption of an advanced civilization, should be thoroughly ashamed of their tolerance of a sinister trade that would shame a savage people.

But being ashamed will not wipe out the evils of narcotics. Drastic laws, enacted by the Federal Government and every state, and honestly enforced, will end the evil.

U. S. ENVOY TO AUSTRIA DIES OF PNEUMONIA

Grenville T. Emmet, Succumbs at Vienna—Former Law Partner of President Roosevelt.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, Sept. 27.—Grenville T. Emmet, new United States Minister to Austria, died yesterday of double pneumonia, after a short illness.

Mr. Emmet, a former law partner of President Roosevelt, had been in active charge of the American ministry here for only 10 days. He was appointed to the post July 6.

He first became ill Thursday, after fulfilling regular appointments throughout the day. Only a few persons in Vienna knew of his illness, which at first he had insisted was merely a bad cold.

The tall, robust former New York lawyer had prided himself on his health. He had not had even the slightest illness for 32 years.

At his bedside when the three-day struggle for life ended were Mrs. Emmet, John C. Wiley, new legation counsellor, and four physicians.

Most members of the American colony had had no opportunity to meet the new Minister, who previously was Minister to the Netherlands.

Soon after he presented his credentials to President Wilhelm Miklas Sept. 14, the envoy contracted a slight cold, but apparently recovered. He carried out his schedule of appointments with Government officials and fellow diplomats until Thursday evening, when physicians found him suffering from a high fever.

Double pneumonia developed rapidly and heart complications set in.

John C. Wiley, new legation counsellor, and Mrs. Emmet, who hastened to Vienna from Paris, remained with the Minister constantly after Saturday noon.

The Austrian specialist, Prof. Alfred Luger, Fritz Erdstein, Karl Wenckebach and Eugene de Savitsch were the attending physicians.

CLASSIFICATION OF MOVIES BY LEGION OF DECENCY

Secretary Says Five Pictures Reviewed Since February Were Wholly Objectionable.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—The Rev. John J. McClafferty, executive secretary of the National Legion of Decency, appealed today to Catholics and non-Catholics to help "decent producers produce decent films."

In the year from February, 1936, to February, 1937, Father McClafferty said, of 750 feature pictures reviewed by the Legion only one American-made film was found to be "wholly objectionable."

Against that record, he added, five American-made pictures were so classified, in the period this year from February to September.

But, he said, it was a retrogression which was "more apparent than real," as none of the objectionable pictures was made by a producer signatory to the production code agreement of 1930.

EDWARD V. MORAN DIES AT 56

Retired Victim of High Blood Pressure Stricken at Breakfast.

Edward V. Moran collapsed yesterday morning in a restaurant at 2241 South Grand boulevard as he was eating breakfast and died a short time later at his home. Moran, 56 years old, and retired, lived at 3638 Cleveland avenue.

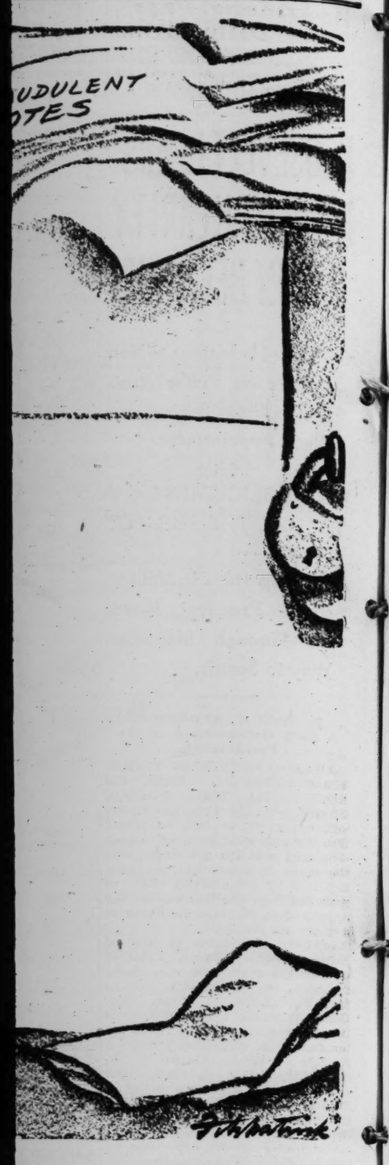

Policemen attempted to revive him with an inhalator but were unsuccessful. His physician told police he has been under treatment for high blood pressure.

HARRY ANSLINGER, chief of the Bureau of Narcotics, has returned from Europe with information that reflects no credit on America.

Attending conferences at Geneva, where international control of opium was discussed, he learned:

That America ranks second only to China in the illicit traffic of narcotics generally.

Americans, smug in their assumption of an advanced civilization, should be thoroughly ashamed of their tolerance of a sinister trade that would shame a savage people.

But being ashamed will not wipe out the evils of narcotics. Drastic laws, enacted by the Federal Government and every state, and honestly enforced, will end the evil.

U. S. ENVOY TO AUSTRIA DIES OF PNEUMONIA

Grenville T. Emmet, Succumbs at Vienna—Former Law Partner of President Roosevelt.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, Sept. 27.—Grenville T. Emmet, new United States Minister to Austria, died yesterday of double pneumonia, after a short illness.

Mr. Emmet, a former law partner of President Roosevelt, had been in active charge of the American ministry here for only 10 days. He was appointed to the post July 6.

He first became ill Thursday, after fulfilling regular appointments throughout the day. Only a few persons in Vienna knew of his illness, which at first he had insisted was merely a bad cold.

The tall, robust former New York lawyer had prided himself on his health. He had not had even the slightest illness for 32 years.

At his bedside when the three-day struggle for life ended were Mrs. Emmet, John C. Wiley, new legation counsellor, and four physicians.

Most members of the American colony had had no opportunity to meet the new Minister, who previously was Minister to the Netherlands.

Soon after he presented his credentials to President Wilhelm Miklas Sept. 14, the envoy contracted a slight cold, but apparently recovered. He carried out his schedule of appointments with Government officials and fellow diplomats until Thursday evening, when physicians found him suffering from a high fever.

Double pneumonia developed rapidly and heart complications set in.

John C. Wiley, new legation counsellor, and Mrs. Emmet, who hastened to Vienna from Paris, remained with the Minister constantly after Saturday noon.

The Austrian specialist, Prof. Alfred Luger, Fritz Erdstein, Karl Wenckebach and Eugene de Savitsch were the attending physicians.

CLASSIFICATION OF MOVIES BY LEGION OF DECENCY

Secretary Says Five Pictures Reviewed Since February Were Wholly Objectionable.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—The Rev. John J. McClafferty, executive secretary of the National Legion of Decency, appealed today to Catholics and non-Catholics to help "decent producers produce decent films."

In the year from February, 1936, to February, 1937, Father McClafferty said, of 750 feature pictures reviewed by the Legion only one American-made film was found to be "wholly objectionable."

Against that record, he added, five American-made pictures were so classified, in the period this year from February to September.

But, he said, it was a retrogression which was "more apparent than real," as none of the objectionable pictures was made by a producer signatory to the production code agreement of 1930.

Mussolini Rides With Hitler Through Streets of Berlin

along the route, each city apparently vying with the other to give the leaders the noisiest and most colorful reception.

The Krupp works were draped in acres of Italian and German colors, and Essen's main streets were thronged. Many in the crowds had waited through the night for a glimpse of the leaders.

Biggest Maneuvers Since War.

Germany staged its biggest combined army and naval maneuvers since the World War yesterday for Mussolini and Hitler.

After ceremonies of welcome at Munich, Hitler and his Italian visitor traveled 600 miles north in separate trains last night to the closely-guarded Mecklenburg area along the Baltic Sea where the war games are being played under greatest secrecy.

The maneuvers were timed to make it possible for the two dictators to see the "Blue" army demonstrate a smashing victory over a "Red" army which, for purposes of the games, was assumed to have invaded the area.

Standing with Mussolini atop a small hill 20 miles southeast of Rostock, Der Fuehrer sent into action hundreds of fighting planes, tanks and armored cars, along with hordes of infantry, in a realistic attack of the "Reds," who already were on the run.

Just by way of making the air fighting more impressive, the famous German stunt flyer and World War veteran, Udet, cavorted through the skies in a flashing Fieseler "stork" plane. This fighting ship takes off at a startling angle, climbing almost vertically.

Mussolini's followers said he was particularly impressed by the German anti-aircraft batteries, which displayed their technique in the air show.

View of Seven-Mile Front.

From where they stood on the hill called Schmooksberg, Mussolini and his host were able to view a seven-mile front. The "Blue" charge in which the invading "Red" army was shattered was visible in all its stagey aspects. Artillery fired steadily while machine guns kept up incessant fire for 10 minutes at the climax of the attack.

From the scene of the mimic battle, Hitler and Mussolini with their entourage made a wide circular tour through the maneuver area by train and automobile from Schwerin, finally reaching Wustrow on the Baltic, where coast anti-aircraft batteries demonstrated their deadly effectiveness in a flashy windup of the war games on land.

Aboard a ship off Wustrow, they watched the "Blue" navy bring to a successful climax a "pirate hunt" against "Red" submarines which were supposed to have made the Baltic unsafe for merchant shipping.

Hitler's Aids on Trip.

With the two heads of state were Hitler's right hand man, Colonel-General Wilhelm Hermann Goering, Air Minister; Rudolf Hess, German Minister without portfolio; Major-General Werner von Blomberg, Reich Minister of Defense; Gen. Freiherr von Fritsch, Chief of the Army Command; Admiral General Erich H. A. Raeder, Commander-in-Chief of the Navy.

Although the demonstration of Germany's newly-regained military and naval strength occupied most of their day, Hitler and Mussolini had considerable time to discuss the tense European political situation and their allied interests.

STEEL STOCK GYRATIONS DOMINATE THE MARKET

Rallying Forces Prevail After Many Issues Are Forced Down to New Low Levels for About Two Years From Opening Advance.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Price barometers rose, fell and soared again with bewildering rapidity in today's stock market.

Gains of 1 to 4 points were widely distributed at the fast opening. Profit selling and a break in U. S. Steel knocked quotations down shortly afterward. The ticker tape was frequently late on both the ups and downs.

Another recovery wave hit the list in the final hour, with rallies running to 5 or more points. "Big Steel" was among those prominent on the comeback. At their worst numerous new lows for some two years were in evidence. The close was at or near the best levels of the day.

The forward push was attributed partly to the belief the recent sharp recession had gone too far and that at least a temporary upturn was in the offing. Helpful also, to some extent, was the action of the Federal Reserve Board in further loosening the credit strings for member banks. Improvement in London and Amsterdam markets was thought to have provided stimulation.

On the other hand current steel mill operations were estimated off 1.7 points from last week, and were under the comparable period in the preceding year for the first time since February, 1936.

Transfers were 2,209,430 shares.

Bonds and commodities were uneven. Wheat at Chicago was up 1⅛ to 2⅛ cents a bushel on reports of heavy exports. Corn was unchanged to ½ lower. Cotton turned narrow after early setbacks.

Prominent among advancing stocks were Bethlehem Steel, Republic, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, American Steel Foundries, Chrysler, General Motors, United States Rubber, Goodyear, Goodrich, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Woolworth, J. I. Case, Deere, International Harvester, Oliver Farm, Santa Fe, New York Central, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Atlantic Coast Line, American Telephone, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Electric Power & Light, Anaconda, Kennecott, Cerro de Pasco, American Smelting, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, Westinghouse, General Electric, du Pont, Phillips Petroleum, Texas Corporation, Radio Corporation, American Locomotive, Allis-Chalmers, American Sugar Refining, Briggs Manufacturing, Loew's, Coca-Cola and Crown Cork.

Standard Oil of New Jersey, down most of the time, was resistant at the finish. Backward were Allied Chemical, Commercial Investment Trust, Armstrong, Pullman, St. Joseph Lead, Magma Copper, Yellow Truck, Inland Steel, Crucible Steel and Parke-Davis.

Well on top at the last were Paramount first preferred, International Paper & Power preferred, Zenith Radio, Champion Paper, Crane Co., Skelly Oil, J. C. Peny and Commercial Credit.

At mid-afternoon sterling was off .00⅜ of a cent at $4.94⅞ and the French franc was .00¼ of a cent down at 3.42¾ cents.

Cotton was up 20 to 45 cents a bale.

Copper Cut to 13c.

Mining issues were faced with the long-expected cut in the price of domestic copper from 14 to 13 cents a pound, bringing the first slice in the red metal since April 29, and putting it more in line with the export rate. Leading producers also announced another reduction in the price of lead.

Numerous margin calls went out over the week-end, although most commission houses reported necessitous liquidation was comparatively small.

Over Week-end Developments.

Market analysts who have been watching the flattening out of industrial lines noted the survey of the magazine "Steel" which pointed out that, while steelmakers are not particularly disturbed, the rate of buying has thus far been insufficient to match shipments.

It was realized, the review added, that consumers are faced by the psychological facts of "the decline in the stock market, war scares in Europe and the Far East and political divinations at home, and naturally are keeping commitments close to actual needs."

In view of the circumstances, it was said, no great surprise is shown at the downward adjustment of mill operations.

DOMESTIC COPPER, LEAD PRICES CUT

Red Metal Down Cent a Pound —First Change Since April.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—The price of domestic copper was reduced 1 cent a pound to 13 cents today.

This is the first change in the price of the red metal since April 29, when a reduction of one-half cent a pound was made to 14 cents.

Leading producers also announced a cut in the price of lead of one-quarter of a cent a pound, the second such reduction in the past four days. The new lead price is 6@6.05 cents a pound, New York basis, and 5.85 cents at East St. Louis.

For the last week or two foreign copper has ruled under 13 cents a pound, or about 4 cents under the peak reached on the metals boom early this year.

The domestic price also reached 17 cents in March before the market toppled. Copper circles believed it turned on President Roosevelt's criticism of the precipitous rise in durable goods prices in the last quarter of 1936 and the first quarter of the current year.

This compared with $7,807,528, or $3.01 a share on 1,829,940 shares outstanding in the corresponding period of 1936.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

LONDON, Sept. 27.—Trading in today's session of the stock market was on a much larger basis with a renewal of investment buying in the gilt-edged section. Trans-Atlantic shares were in better demand and oils and mining stocks sold higher. Industrial and home rail securities remained quiet, but steady, while foreign bonds were dull.

PARIS, Sept. 27.—Prices closed generally lower in the bourse, although the undertone was firm. Rentes finished with losses of 40 to 90 centimes and Royal Dutch lost 80 francs. Bank of France shares were 40 francs down and Suez Canal was 60 francs lower.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 27.—Wheat futures advanced sharply on good buying of Australian grain and strong shippers' offers. Prices finished 2⅛d to 2¼d net higher.

Cotton futures closed 3 to 4 points higher on reports that the Government loan was attracting more cotton. Hedging was offset by short covering.

STEEL OUTPUT BELOW COMPARATIVE '36 DATE

Production Rate Drops 1.7 Points to Basis of 74.4 Per Cent.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—A further drop in steel production has carried the industry's operating rate below the comparable figure last year, the American Iron and Steel Institute announced today.

It was the first time since Feb. 3, 1936, the institute's figures showed a year-to-year decline in the operating rate.

Output was estimated to have dropped this week to 74.4 per cent of capacity, off 1.7 points from the 76.1 recorded for the previous week. A year ago the rate was 75.4 and a month ago 84.1.

The recession followed a decline of more than 4 points last week as producers curtailed in the absence of sufficient new buying to replenish dwindling backlogs.

However, the industry for some time had been working off orders accumulated earlier in the year faster than new business came.

STEEL OUTPUT BELOW COMPARATIVE '36 DATE

Production Rate Drops 1.7 Points to Basis of 74.4 Per Cent.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—A further drop in steel production has carried the industry's operating rate below the comparable figure last year, the American Iron and Steel Institute announced today.

It was the first time since Feb. 3, 1936, the institute's figures showed a year-to-year decline in the operating rate.

Output was estimated to have dropped this week to 74.4 per cent of capacity, off 1.7 points from the 76.1 recorded for the previous week. A year ago the rate was 75.4 and a month ago 84.1.

The recession followed a decline of more than 4 points last week as producers curtailed in the absence of sufficient new buying to replenish dwindling backlogs.

Some trade authorities expressed opinion metal demand had been influenced in part by the severe fall in security prices since mid-August. However, the industry for some time had been working off orders accumulated earlier in the year faster than new business came.

The shrinkage in production of the key steel industry this month has been disappointing to those who looked for broadening of industrial improvement following a summer lull.

 ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

EXPORT DEMAND SENDS WHEAT UP; CORN IS MIXED

Purcheses of 1,000,000 Bushels From U. S. and Half as Much From Canada Factors in 4c Range —Top Not Held.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27. — Big export purchases of wheat, 1,000,000 bushels from the United States and 500,000 from Canada, helped hoist wheat prices nearly 4 cents late today.

A further aid to late upturns was that the United States wheat visible supply showed an increase of but 41,000 bushels for the past week, the smallest increase since the domestic new crop started to move in volume. Assertions were current that the year's peak of United States supplies had been reached.

At the last, wheat showed some reaction from the top but closed 1⅛-2⅛c above Saturday's finish, Sept. $1.06¼@⅝, Dec. $1.07⅝@¾; May $1.08¼@⅜; corn unchanged to ½c lower. Oct. 73⅛c, Dec. 64¾@65c, and oats ¼c off to ½c advance.

Particular notice was taken of cables reporting a stoppage of offerings of good grade of wheat from Russia, that Australian interests were active buyers of wheat futures, and that ocean freight rates from Argentina were advancing. There were also advances that French growers were offering in only a sparing manner, with world shipments of wheat small compared to last year. The Liverpool wheat market, due ⅜ of a cent off to ¼ cent up, closed today at 2¾@3 cents net advance.

Friends of higher prices for wheat said that with North America holding the world's only available supply up to the turn of the year, prospects of belated export from the United States and Canada had decidedly improved. A fair amount both of Canadian and American wheat was reported taken today for overseas shipment. However, partial setbacks from advances of wheat prices here followed stock market recessions that impaired earlier gains.

Large receipts of corn, 602 cars in Chicago today, acted as a weight on corn values, and more than overcame at times moderate initial upturns. Oats followed corn action. Rye paralleled wheat.

Wheat futures purchases Saturday totaled 22,692,000 bushels, corn 4,014,000. Open interest in wheat was 124,311,000 bushels, and in corn 45,022,000.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Sept. 27.—December wheat sold 2½c higher today. The close was 2c up at $1.08¾. May corn finished at 65¾c, net unchanged after having sold ½c higher than Saturday's asking price.

Liverpool wheat opened 1@1¼d higher and in later cable was up 1⅞@2⅛d. The close was 2⅛@2½d higher.

Winnipeg wheat started 1¼@2c up and early was 1¾@2¼c higher. The close was 1⅝@2⅝c up.

Argentine wheat began ¼@⅜c higher and corn unchanged to ⅛c up. At noon wheat was 1⅝@1¾c higher and corn ¼@⅜c up.

Local wheat receipts which were 69,000 bu, compared with 87,000 a week ago and 55,500 a year ago, included 29 cars local and 17 through. Corn receipts which were 33,000 bu, compared with 36,000 a week ago and 40,500 a year ago, included 18 cars local and 4 through. Oats receipts which were 50,000 bu, compared with 14,000 a week ago and 32,000 a year ago, included 21 cars local and 4 through. Hay receipts were 1 car local.

COTTON MARKET CLOSES 4 TO 9 POINTS HIGHER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Cotton was subject to conflicting influences today. Early advances were aided by reports of an increasing holding movement in the South, but losses of 17 to 19 points from the best followed in sympathy with easiness of the stock market.

By mid-afternoon the market was quiet and about steady. December, which had sold off from 8.39 to 8.20, was quoted at 8.26 and the list was 2 points net lower to 3 higher.

The marget rallied in late trading on covering and local and trade buying. Futures closed steady, 4 to 9 higher.

Oct. 8.47; Dec. 8.33; Jan. 8.35@8.36; March 8.41@8.42; May 8.49@8.50; July 8.58@8.60. Spot steady; middling 8.62.

Cotton futures opened steady, up 9 to 14 points on higher Liverpool cables and reports of a holding movement in the South.

October opened 8.48, December 8.38, January 8.41, March 8.47, May 8.55, July 8.65.

Active trade and foreign buying, as well as covering, absorbed Southern selling and liquidation, carrying prices about $1 a bale over the early lows of Saturday.

After the demand had been filled, however, prices eased about 8 to 10 points from the best under October liquidation prior to first notice day for that delivery tomorrow and somewhat increased hedge selling.

December reacted from 8.39 to 8.29 shortly after the first half hour, leaving prices at net gains of 1 to 5 points.

Private reports from the South indicated that as prices eased below the loan basis farmers were either more inclined to put cotton into the loan or to hold it.

Reports to the New York Cotton Exchange service estimated that in some Eastern and Central states growers were withholding 40 to 50 per cent of their harvestings and that increasing amounts were going into the Government loan.

There was no follow up to the early buying as prices steadily declined 17 to 19 points from the early highs late in the morning.

Liquidation, Wall Street selling and hedging carried December down to 8.20. By midday that delivery was selling at 8.24 and prices were net unchanged to 7 points lower.

New Orleans Cotton Market.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 27.—Cotton futures closed steady at net advances of 5 to 9 points. Oct. 8.41@43; Dec. 8.42; Jan. 8.46; March 8.50@51; May 8.56@57; July 8.63; Oct. 1938, 8.79.

LEAD CONCENTRATES OFF $3.60 A TON LAST WEEK

By the Associated Press.

JOPLIN, Mo., Sept. 27.—Price of lead concentrates dropped $3.60 a ton on the Joplin market last week following a $5 decline in the metal price Friday. The new price is $73.91 a ton. Zinc prices held unchanged at $46.50 and $47.50 a ton, with the demand for coarse grades at the higher price remaining firm.

Purchase of zinc ore decreased 540 tons from last week's sale to 7370 dry tons. Through overload and moisture the sale will weigh out 9210 tons. Production showed a slight gain and was estimated at 10,320 tons. Lead output also increased to 1428 tons. Combined value of zinc and lead shipped from the tri-state district was $574,074, bringing the total for the year to date to $18,865,736. Although the zinc concentrates shipment was 1000 tons less than the previous week, it over-balanced the estimated output by two tons. Lead delivery was the largest since May 8, when 1685 tons were shipped.

DOLLAR VALUE OF STOCK SALES OFF IN AUGUST

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—The Securities Commission reported the dollar value of sales on the 22 national securities exchanges in August was $1,277,538,486, a decrease of 9.8 per cent from July and a drop of 22.9 per cent below the same month a year ago.

August was the last of a series of slow trading months, before this month's nervous trading rocketed the volume up to near record figures on some days.

Stock sales totaled $1,119,357,535 for 38,563,248 shares and bond sales $158,163,872 for bonds with a face value of $187,458,075. Compared with July, stock sales declined 9.9 per cent in dollar values and 7.9 per cent in shares, while bond sales dropped 8.9 per cent in sales value and 9.5 per cent in volume.

The New York Stock and Curb Exchanges accounted for 95.6 per cent of the month's transactions.

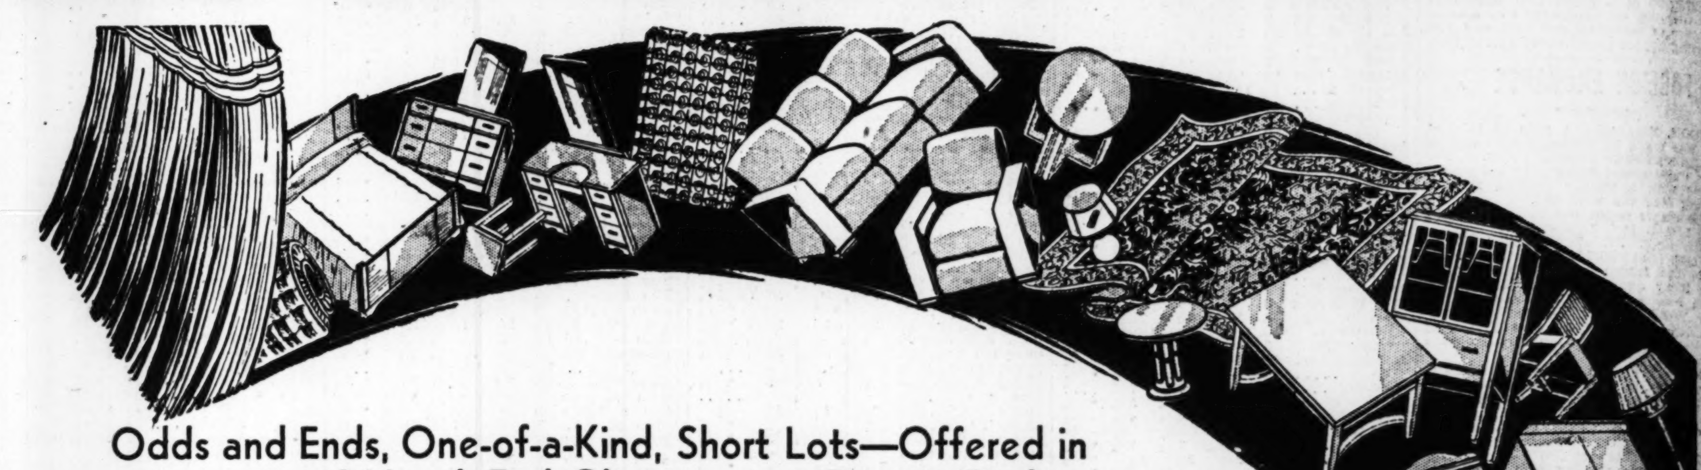

STOCK SALE PLAN ABANDONED

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. — Phillips Petroleum Co. anounced tonight it has abandoned plans for a new stock issue owing to "unfavorable market conditions."

A month ago the company said it would file a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission covering an offer to stockholders of 444,905 shares of common capital stock. In his letter to stockholders, Frank Phillips, president, said it was unnecessary to proceed with the financing.

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU—By BOB BURNS

WHEN people are havin' financial difficulties, they can't imagine prosperity bringin' 'em anything but happiness. But it seems just like prosperity is pret'near always accompanied by some unforseen drawback that takes a lotta kick out of it. My Aunt Flutey and Uncle Buzz use'ta have a terrible time makin' both ends meet. Uncle Buzz use'ta pick up odd jobs now and then and they managed to get along by denyin' themselves but he use'ta dream of how happy they would be if he could only get a steady job. Finally one day he landed one and he couldn't wait to get home and tell Aunt Flutey. He went rushin' up to her and he says, "At last we won't have'ta skimp anymore—I've got a steady position." She said, "What doin'?" and he says, "Night watchman." Aunt Flutey kinda choked up and she says, "Well, I thought there'd be a catch in it—you would have'ta get a job as night watchman when I just got through makin' you two new night shirts."

A Dispute Settled

By Ely Culbertson

(Copyright, 1937.)

"DEAR MR. CULBERTSON: There is a nasty dispute brewing concerning the bidding of the following slam hand, and I wish that you would settle the argument once and for all. The hand:

South, dealer.

	♠ A 10 7 6 2 ♥ A K Q J 9 4 3 ♦ 4 ♣ None
♠ 8 4 3 ♥ 7 5 2 ♦ 9 8 3 2 ♣ A 10 7	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠ Q J ♥ 10 6 ♦ K Q 7 6 5 ♣ 9 6 4 2
	♠ K 9 5 ♥ 8 ♦ A J 10 ♣ K Q J 8 5 3

"As played, the bidding went as follows:

South	West	North	East
1 club	Pass	2 hearts	Pass
3 clubs	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 spades	Pass	6 hearts	Pass
Pass

"Since East held the doubleton Q-J of spades, seven hearts were made. North claims that her bidding was the only possible method of reaching the slam without the danger of South returning to the spades and placing the slam in jeopardy. South, on the other hand, says that the bidding was not scientific, and that there are several possible combinations of honor holding which would have resulted in the same bidding without the hands containing the slam; that is, if South had not held the ace of diamonds and the king of spades, the slam was impossible. Asking bids seem to be the most likely method of reaching the slam with greater certainty of its being made, but we are uncertain of how these bids could have been used under the circumstances.

"Will you please advise the correct method of reaching the slam?

"Yours truly, E. P. C., Leadville, Colo."

It is an indisputable fact that if South's holding had been slightly different, though equally consistent with his bidding, the slam would have been impossible. From North's point of view one of the vital cards to locate was the diamond ace. Club strength hardly could be of value. The bidding between North and South should go as follows:

South	North
1 club	2 hearts
3 clubs	4 spades
5 diamonds	6 hearts
Pass

The outstanding difference between this bidding series and the one actually used is North's second bid. In the first series North's spade bid showed a suit; in the suggested series the spade bid is an asking bid. North has made an unnecessary jump to the four level. His first jump guaranteed that game would be reached. Therefore, there would be no point in jumping again, from three clubs to four spades, except to make an asking bid. True, this asking bid would technically set the club suit as trump, but this should not worry North because his heart suit is so beautifully solid that he can return to it as the higher ranking suit. If North, after hearing about second round spade control and first round diamond control were to bid merely five hearts over five diamonds, he would be making another asking bid. His actual jump to six hearts is a definite choice of suits, a choice that asks partner to stand aside.

Today's Question.

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	2 hearts	?

What should East bid with:
♠ A K 7 ♥ 9 5 3 ♦ K Q J 10 5 2 ♣ 7?

Answer: East should bid three diamonds.

Breaking Down Common Belief About Teeth

No Evidence Coarse Foods Will Keep Them Sound, Doctor Says.

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

IT IS A common belief that coarse foods make strong teeth. As a corollary of this, it is often said that candy causes tooth decay.

And so it is supposed that primitive man, living on coarse foods—berries, grains, nuts, cracking the shells and gnawing on bones—had fine teeth, and that modern man, living on refined and processed foods, can ascribe his poor teeth to that habit.

But the theory breaks down when the facts are examined. Fossil remains of man have been found all over the world, including jaws and teeth in most instances. The upper jaw of the Rhodesian man, who lived at least 35,000 years ago, shows typical human dentation. "The teeth are worn in primitive fashion, the upper incisors having met the lowers squarely edge to edge." (This shows they were worn down probably by coarse diet.) Several of the teeth suffered from caries, and there are maxiliary abscesses, especially in the region of the molars." (MacCurdy, "Human Origins.")

When Coronado made his expedition in the nineteenth century, he found a tribe called the Mimbres. They ate large quantities of coarsely ground corn meal. The remains of the jaws of these people, recently identified in numerous village rites, show the teeth surfaces in an advanced stage of wear. They also universally show evidence of dental caries and the ravages of disease in the jaw bone.

The teeth of Eskimos in Labrador, Alaska and Greenland have been studied, and have been found extremely good in spite of the fact that they get little coarse food. Their diet is largely carnivorous and very rich in phosphorus, and in gnawing bones and cartilage they get a good deal of calcium. They also get plenty of Vitamin D because they consume so much of the oil of livers of fish and marine animals.

Such facts indicate that a heavy diet of coarsely ground cereals will not prevent the occurrence of dental caries. Apparently the so-called soft foods of the present age are not a contributing factor to dental caries.

The question of today is whether infection or nutrition—whether the seed or the soil—is the largest factor in causing dental caries. Undoubtedly germs entering into a spot of crumbling enamel are the real cause of decay. But the crumbling enamel is probably largely dependent on nutrition. It is possible that food particles subject to decay in tooth crevices break down the enamel also. Neither cleanliness nor nutrition, however, need be neglected in tooth hygiene. It is perfectly practical and simple to tend to both. Regular daily brushing of teeth and a diet with calcium, phosphorus and Vitamin D will take care of both possibilities.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

E. S. V.: "Which is most beneficial or detrimental in old age, coffee or alcohol, if used moderately?"

Answer: Old people are benefited both by coffee and alcohol. Coffee improves the heart, and alcohol warms them up.

SOPHISTICATES AT PLAY.

THE sophisticates of Manhattan assembled recently in the bizarre bistro known as Leon & Eddie's. And what did the sophisticates of Manhattan do? They sang out lustily and with gestures "Way Down the Swanee River"—while Minstrel Eddie Davis chanted "Southland." Among the "Southern" sophisticates who plunged into the choral sing were Don Ameche of cinemaland, Dwight Fiske, Maury Paul (Cholly Knickerbocker) of Philadelphia and Connecticut, Jane Lee, ex-baby star, Hassard Short of Broadway, Lloyd Pantages of Hollywood, Ruth Taylor and Paul Zuckerman of Park avenue, Ray Heatherton of "Babes in Arms." Legionnaires present from Illinois, Louisiana, Georgia and Connecticut listened and watched with puzzled expressions. Finally a stoutish Legionnaire yelled out in disgust: "Cripes, this is sure one helluva wild town!"

REPENTENT WAR BIRD.

Months ago this department tipped city eds that a batch of American aviators had been assembled to fight in Spain—for pay. Commander of the American contingent for the Rebels was Capt. William B. White. Today a letter arives from the Captain: "A few lines to report that it's nice to be back in the good old U. S. A. instead of being a war bird in Europe. I hate to be trite but what I learned chiefly in Spain was that War is hell—and particularly hellish when it is between fellow countrymen. Because it was a war betwen two evils, Communism and Fascism, and because of the two I preferred the latter, I organized the squadron that went over there. All I can say now is there is no place like America and my advice to all Americans is to stay out of any country engaged in internal or external strife. I believe the President's neutrality powers will be the most effective device to keep us out of another world war. in the case of China, I say 'Let the Japs have it.'" . .

GOLF—AND FINANCE.

Mack Sennett and Producer Walter Futter had a golf engagement with Vincent Astor's attorney the other day at which they planned to discuss an important cinema deal in which it was hoped to have Astor invest. Before the game, Futter, visiting Nat Lewis', found a barrel full of old-type wooden clubs formerly used by Golf Pro Alex Morrison in his trick-driving on stage. Lewis has been selling them as souvenirs at 50 cents apiece. Futter purchased a dozen assorted drivers, brassies, spoons, etc., and took them along in their fancy wrappings to the golf course. Here, remarking that they were new clubs which he was trying out, he proceeded to take a swing, swore under his breath and broke a driver in two. He took another driver out, swung, swore and cracked it over his knee. Futter repeated until he had smashed about 10 of the sticks—breaking each whenever he made a bad shot. When they arrived at the ninth hole, Astor's lawyer turned to Mack Sennett and snaped: "Mr. Sennett, the deal is off. We cannot loan money to you crazy motion picture people!"

FRAGMENTS.

By Elsie Robinson

HERE is a letter from Claude Melvin Gerard of Los Angeles, telling what he would do if he were dictator. His ideas follow:

"MARRIAGE—Make it compulsory for couples to wait three days for the marriage license. Make it unlawful for minors to marry—with or without their parents' consent. Make it unlawful to sue for alienation of affections. Abolish 'separate maintenance,' which is usually a hold-up racket. Make couples live together or be divorced. Make the biblical ground for adultery the only reason for divorce.

"EDUCATION—Have the Holy Bible taught and studied in the public schools and in the various institutions. Have all students and pupils salute Old Glory the first thing on entering class in the mornings. Teach etiquette in the public schools.

"CHARITY — Make conditions more pleasant for the patients in the State hospitals, and compel all State hospitals to use insulin in the treatment of their patients. Establish Federal orphanages for the destitute children of the United States.

"BUSINESS—Compel the moving picture industry to produce nothing but moral and educational pictures. Compel theaters and dance halls to observe the Sabbath day. Make it unlawful to purchase tobacco on Sunday. Make it unlawful to raise or sell marihuana. Abolish street cars and install busses instead.

"Regulate the price-fixing on all agricultural products and industrial supplies. In that way, the consumer (rich and poor alike) would receive justice. I would establish a minimum of $1 a bushel on corn and wheat—to protect the farmer. Summed up: First—the manufacturer would sell his products for less. As it is, he is steering us toward another depression. Second—strikes would be unheard of.

"GENERAL GOVERNMENT — Install a less lenient parole system for habitual criminals. Bring back prohibition. Build an army, navy and air force second to none. Leave our present form of government—Constitution, Supreme Court and all—unchanged.

"Claude Melvin Gerard—age 28.
"Los Angeles, Cal."

A GREAT vision? Somebody'd better page Mr. Hitler — tell him that we can make his stuff look like Amateur Night.

And now comes little Norma Carol Rabinowitz of New York City with a blast against—guess what? Those love lorn autograph-seekers, particularly the Robert Taylor tribe.

"Dear Miss Robinson—

"I'm a high school student in my senior year, and though I'm only 15 I'd like to start a war against these thousands of girls who are so crazy over Robert Taylor that they get heart palpitations every time they see him.

"I admit I am an ardent admirer of Mr. Taylor myself, but I would certainly not hide under a bed and hold up a whole boat just so I could get one passenger's name. And why pull off his tie and treasure a shred of it, when after all it is just an ordinary tie, even if Mr. Taylor does wear it.

"Go ahead, girls, if you want to. But I think we are beginning to look silly, and I don't think Mr. Taylor enjoys it.

New York City."

Medals for you, youngster. I agree with every word you say—even though I'll have to admit that I've noticed Them Glorious Eyelashes and That Ravishing Nose myself!

CONCERNING MEN'S SHOES

By Esquire

Frequently people ask what is meant by a "blucher" or a "quarter brogue," so we thought you might like to have explained those names by which men's shoes are described.

Town Last

We frequently refer to a pair of black (or brown) shoes on a "town last." A town last is a relatively lightweight shoe of calf with no adornments other than a toecap. It may be worn in black with suits of blue, gray, or brown. It is the proper shoe for wear with a cutaway or oxford gray jacket and striped trousers. In brown, it may be worn with suits of blue, brown or gray. It should be reserved for use in cities.

The Blucher

The "blucher" shoe is named after Field Marshal Count Blucher, Wellington's right-hand man at Waterloo. Its chief characteristic is the two folds of leather over the tongue. It may have either a perforated toe cap or plain toe cap, or no toe cap. With toe caps it is suitable for town wear in lightweight black or tan calf or brown buckskin. In heavyweight tan or black calf, or in brown buckskin, it is suitable for the country either with or without toecaps.

The Brogue

The brogue is a heavyweight wing tipped shoe. It takes its name from the cut and perforated lines of leather that decorate it. It is for country wear in brown or black calf. The lightweight brogue, sometimes referred to as a "wing tipped shoe," or a "half brogue" is made on the same lines, but is more conservative and is for use with informal town wear.

The quarter brogue or "medallion tip" shoe is similar to the town last save that it is a little heavier. It may be worn in brown or black calf or brown buckskin for town or country wear.

Medallion Tip

The Norwegian shoe is a very popular and comfortable last for country wear It derives its name from the Norwegian slipper which is constructed in a similar manner to what we call moccasin.

Norwegian

Monk Front

The monk front shoe is one of the newer lasts and is achieving great popularity for town and country wear. It may be worn in brown or black calf in town or country and in brown buckskin or pigskin in the country.

Moliere Boot

The Moliere boot is generally made in brown buckskin and is for country wear. It also may be used with jodhpurs. Jodhpur boots while not, strictly speaking, a regular shoe are so popular for riding that we thought you might like to know about them, too. The high laced shoe is practically never worn nowadays save with gaiters for riding. Consequently, it is frequently referred to as a "riding shoe."

Jodhpur Boot

The Abandonment Of "Summer Dogs"

By Albert Payson Terhune

ALMOST a year ago, I begged you not to desert your dog when you move back to the city after a country summer. In this month of September, more than a million people are closing their bungalows and cottages and going cityward for the winter. So the plea is timely and worth repeating. Throngs of you bought puppies or older dogs, as household chums for the summer months. There was plenty of room for them in and around your country abode. There is sometimes no room for them in a tiny city flat or hotel.

So what?

The dog made your summer happier for you. He learned to look on you as his god and to depend on you for everything. You are responsible for his future, as you should have realized when you assumed ownership of him. Are you going to desert him, to leave him to starve or to pine away from heartsick loneliness or to become a tramp or to be grabbed up by some local dogcatcher? It would be far more merciful to send a bullet through his brain than to do that.

Every autumn, countless "summer dogs" are abandoned when their owners go to the city. I believe the S. P. C. A. and the Humane Society should and could combine to take drastic wholesale measures to lessen this yearly evil.

Primary Rules For Mannerly Young People

Introduction of Children—Congratulations to Person Granted a Degree.

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post:

THE following questions are those written by individuals in our Girl's Club, and all have to do with introductions. Will you please answer them separately, and explain the reason for your answer where you think necessary.

1. When introduced to young children, does an older person offer her hand?

Answer: First of all, an older person may not be introduced to young children. Young children are always introduced to an older person, and the older person should offer her hand and also say something to the child. A little girl curtseys, and a boy bows, as he or she shakes hands.

2. When young women are introduced, is it considered more polite for them to shake hands? And who is expected to offer her hand first?

Answer: When they are standing close together they do shake hands, but when one is across the room, she seldom comes forward to shake hands. If one is seated and the one standing offers her hand, the one seated must arise before taking it.

3. When some one has received a high honor or has been granted a degree, should a person shake hands when congratulating him?

Answer: Not necessarily. Whether one shakes hands depends upon circumstances. If congratulations are offered in passing, no; if standing beside the person congratulated, yes.

4. I am young and work in an office for two eminent professional people who are very much older than I, but both congenial and pleasant. When either of them goes away on a business or pleasure trip would it be assuming too much if I should offer my hand in bidding him good-bye and also when welcoming him back? Or am I supposed to wait for them to make the first move and never to show one bit of spontaneous feeling myself?

Answer: You could smile as brightly as you like, and welcome him back with every evidence of pleasure without shaking hands. On the other hand, there would be no reason why you shouldn't shake hands if you want to, but people who work in the same office are seldom inclined to shake hands with each other.

5. Is it correct for a young woman to say "I'm glad to have met you" to a man?

Answer: On some occasions, yes. But not unless they have heard something about each other beforehand, or unless they have found each other congenial.

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

By Martha Carr

Dear Martha Carr:

NOT long ago I met a girl whom I thought I loved. She asked me for my class ring and I, like a fool, gave it to her. Since then we have grown tired of each other and have quit going together. I thought when I gave it to her she would wear it a little while and then return it. It is not because we have broken up that I want the ring. This ring is my class ring and, of course, it is dear to me. Is there any way of getting it back?

BILL M.

Surely the girl knows, as everyone else does, that class rings are not, as a rule, presented "for keeps." It is understood that if difficulties arise, mutual understanding ceases, or for any reason a boy and girl are quits, the ring must be returned. I think you would be justified in asking for it.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I WONDER if you could pass this information along to the readers of your column: Any young lady or man who is an amateur musician, wishing to join an orchestra, can do so by calling at 2650A Acomac. Violinists or sax players are most needed. Thanking you for your consideration and space, I am

MUSICAL ALICE.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

I HAVE been going with a man four years my senior for 4 years. We had a quarrel and now because I refuse to forget the insults, he has taken to drink and to gambling. As I am only 20 years old, you will say I should look to amusement somewhere else. But, everywhere I go, I see his face. He says he will stop drinking and gambling too if I take him back. Shall I do this?

DESPERATE.

If you let the matter go in this way, aren't you establishing a precedent. You have nothing to assure you that he will not act the baby again at any time that you disagree with him or resent any treatment he chooses to give you. How would you enjoy such a future?

Tell him to make good first his fine resolve, and you will then consider the matter. Drinking and gambling are not so easily dropped through a whim.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

COULD you please tell me what to do for my skin? Until recently I never had a blemish, but now I have them on my face constantly. I do not know what is causing this blotched skin.

Recently I was invited to spend a week-end in the country. Mother says I should have offered her money, but I didn't think that was proper. Should I send her a letter or would a gift be better?

BETTY J.

You should see a skin specialist about the condition of your skin as it may be caused by some derangement of digestion or some need of your system.

You were right; probably you would have embarrassed your friend by offering her money. But you should not have allowed many hours to pass without writing her your "bread and butter" letter; thanking her for the pleasure she had given you. And, it will be a nice compliment to send her a gift (whatever you can well afford) if you care to do so. But write at once.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

TO settle an argument, will you please give the correct pronunciation of the play "Victoria Regina" in which Helen Hayes is starring? Most persons pronounce the "g" as in regent; but there is one person who evidently thinks that the hard "g" as in regal is correct.

Will you please give the correct pronunciation of "Miami"? I have always called it "My-am-ee," but others says "Mee-am-ee." JOE.

The soft "g" is used in "Regina." Miami is an Indian word and, according to Webster the "i" is long. However, many persons living and visiting there pronounce it "Mee-ah-mee."

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Primary Rules For Mannerly Young People

Introduction of Children—Congratulations to Person Granted a Degree.

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post:

THE following questions are those written by individuals in our Girl's Club, and all have to do with introductions. Will you please answer them separately, and explain the reason for your answer where you think necessary.

1. When introduced to young children, does an older person offer her hand?

Answer: First of all, an older person may not be introduced to young children. Young children are always introduced to an older person, and the older person should offer her hand and also say something to the child. A little girl curtseys, and a boy bows, as he or she shakes hands.

2. When young women are introduced, is it considered more polite for them to shake hands? And who is expected to offer her hand first?

Answer: When they are standing close together they do shake hands, but when one is across the room, she seldom comes forward to shake hands. If one is seated and the one standing offers her hand, the one seated must arise before taking it.

3. When some one has received a high honor or has been granted a degree, should a person shake hands when congratulating him?

Answer: Not necessarily. Whether one shakes hands depends upon circumstances. If congratulations are offered in passing, no; if standing beside the person congratulated, yes.

4. I am young and work in an office for two eminent professional people who are very much older than I, but both congenial and pleasant. When either of them goes away on a business or pleasure trip would it be assuming too much if I should offer my hand in bidding him good-bye and also when welcoming him back? Or am I supposed to wait for them to make the first move and never to show one bit of spontaneous feeling myself?

Answer: You could smile as brightly as you like, and welcome him back with every evidence of pleasure without shaking hands. On the other hand, there would be no reason why you shouldn't shake hands if you want to, but people who work in the same office are seldom inclined to shake hands with each other.

5. Is it correct for a young woman to say "I'm glad to have met you" to a man?

Answer: On some occasions, yes. But not unless they have heard something about each other beforehand, or unless they have found each other congenial.

THE MEN WHO MAKE YOU LAUGH

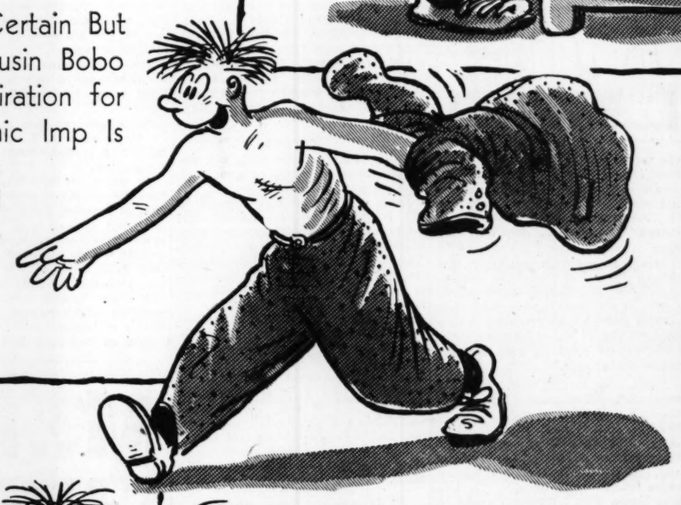

FRANK OWEN AT HIS DRAWING BOARD.

"I WAS HUNGRY—BOY, WAS I HUNGRY."

Frank Owen Is Not Certain But Says His Young Cousin Bobo May Have Been Inspiration for "Jasper"—Little Comic Imp Is Brother in Six Fraternities and Was Nominated for Rank of Kentucky Colonel.

THE CITY EDITOR TOLD HIM TO TAKE OFF HIS COAT AND START TO WORK.

"FINALLY, I YANKED HIM FROM HIS HIDING PLACE AND TOOK A GOOD LOOK AT HIM."

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.

JASPER, that strange little creature with the projecting lock of hair, bewildered face and loose swinging diaper, has been bounding around the women's magazine section of the Post-Dispatch for some weeks now. His size is microbic and he looks that way, but he has been attracting a lot of attention.

Where did this whimsical prodigy come from? Well, he came from the inner recesses of the brain of Frank Owen. That's Jasper's daddy. But even Frank Owen isn't quite sure exactly where the brat came from. "My young cousin Bobo down in Texas may have been the original Jasper," Owen said, "but I'm not real sure. When I first started drawing cartoons he used to appear under chairs, in shopping baskets, under tables and behind doors with just his head peeking out. He was a sort of prop.

"Other people got to noticing him before I did. Finally I yanked him out from his hiding place and took a good look at him. He looked good to me so I kept him out in the open and put all the other characters behind sofas and under sinks. And somehow Jasper has managed to stay in the center of the stage ever since."

And that is all the explanation that Owen can give for his precocious creation. As for Owen himself, he is just a little undersized, too, but he is far from meek. Like Jasper, he can take care of himself in any situation. But at home, Owen's wife, Vera, runs the show, just as obese Mama runs spindle-brained Papa in the panel. Mrs. Owen consented to marry Frank in Jersey City just four years after she came to the United States from Sweden. Her hobbies—milking cows and fishing—were the dominant factors in getting Owen out of New York and down into the country.

Their log cottage at Cupsaw Lake, N. J., is stuck on the side of a mountain and that has its advantages. Every time it rains the Owens have to build a new driveway. The cottage has two floors and the window frames and doors are red. Inside, the two-storied living room, with a balcony running across one side, is unimproved—just logs again.

The furniture is all rustic except for a pint-sized ebony piano in one corner of the room. Owen explained this: "We were visiting Amelia Earhart and I saw that thing and told her it was just about the right size for Jasper. The next day a truck drove up and the piano was deposited on the front porch."

• • •

ON the mantelpiece is a model clipper ship which a fan sent Jasper to play with. Around the room are scattered other toys which Jasper has received from his numerous admirers. Frank Owen has kept all his fan mail. In the six years since he first came up from Texas he has accumulated a roomfull. Most of the letters are demand for a. ographs, photographs and original drawings.

Thousands of persons send him gags and suggestions for new ways to use Jasper. Owen never uses any of them, and now he refuses even to look at them. "This imp can only do extra special things," Owen said, "and most people don't understand how to get him into his fixes. And then if I happen to use a gag similar to one suggested by some well meaning contributor, that person always thinks that I am obliged to him for a free meal and a week-end."

Some of the letters contain startling announcements, such as the one from the University Club in Louisville which said that Jasper had been nominated for the rank of Colonel on the staff of the Governor of Kentucky. Jasper has been made a brother in six college fraternities. He has sponsored a college annual. A dentist wrote that a picture of Jasper over the chair of torture had a remarkably quieting effect on young patients.

Owen works in a room which has nothing in it but a chair and a drawing board. "It takes a lot of work to get gags," he said. "I don't know where they come from, but if I have to look at anything I always start thinking about that instead of producing a gag."

He often gets an idea, draws a picture for it and then finds the cartoon turning out entirely different. The result is that he manufactures another gag—very often better than the original one.

Owen first came into the office of the United Feature Syndicate just a little more than six years ago. His only possessions were the clothes he had on and a very battered suitcase. His only asset was his self-confidence. When asked if he was a good gag man, he didn't know what a gag was, but he said he could draw good cartoons. Impressed with his work, but not quite sure just how to use it, a kindly editor tapped him on the shoulder and wished him the best of luck in the big city and just as a parting word said, "drop in on me every once in a while and let's see how things work out."

• • •

OWEN did just that. Unlike most of the artists and gag men who appear at the door of a syndicate he hung around New York, learned a lot from the editor and others, and pretty soon started to doing things. Still later, he came back to the Syndicate to draw Jasper.

He began life with a gag. In 1907 he reckoned that since The Father of His Country was born on Feb. 22, it might be a good idea for the future daddy of Jasper to be born on the same day. That was in Clarksville, Tex.

Young Frank graduated from the Clarksville High School after the usual four years, played football, dirtied up a lot of note paper with very bad drawings and was altogether quite undistinguished for anything. Without having had any art training of any kind, Owen became cartoonist for The Red River County Review. His first cartoon for the paper, the first one he had ever done for publication, was etched on a chalk-plate. It gave promise of nothing but potential failure for Mr. Owen in the realm of art—this on authority of the paper that printed the drawing.

After one year at Dallas University he left, and it was anything for a living; the Laredo oil fields, oyster dredging, laying roads, working in sawmills and cotton fields. Then all at once came an art job with a Dallas advertising agency, then another on The Dallas News-Journal staff. Days of lean living but of learning followed. He bought his suits on credit for a dollar a week. T. O. Bateman took Owen in tow and taught him the elements of cartooning for newspapers.

With a $15 loan from Oswin (Uncle Jake) King, publisher of Uncle Jake's Sport News, he set out for the big city. Sometime later a country boy with a thick Texas drawl entered the editorial room of The Newark (N. J.) Ledger and announced that he was a cartoonist of more than moderate ability and with no job. He could draw rings around the average cartoonist, he said, and if given a chance he would do every type of work required of him.

The city editor of The Ledger describes the incident: "Owen had a large, engaging smile on his face, and a hungry look in his eyes. He was hungry and admitted it. He couldn't remember when he had his last real meal, but it must have been several days before.

"'I just came in on a truck from Texas,' he told me. 'I didn't have any money to buy a train ticket, so I hitch-hiked to get here.'"

The Ledger didn't need a cartoonist, but it hired Owen. The city editor told him to take off his coat and start to work. He did political and sport cartoons, caricatures of prominent people and politicians, and pen and ink sketches at banquets. After a year he threw up the job and went to California—just because he wanted to.

• • •

BACK in New York he shared a Greenwich Village garret studio with Jay Irving, and started to free lance. Of those days Owen said: "I was hungry—BOY, was I HUNGRY!" After a while he started to sell a few of his drawings—first to the New York American, then to Life, Judge, the Saturday Evening Post. Finally in August, 1933, he hit the jackpot and got a contract with Collier's for two cartoons a week.

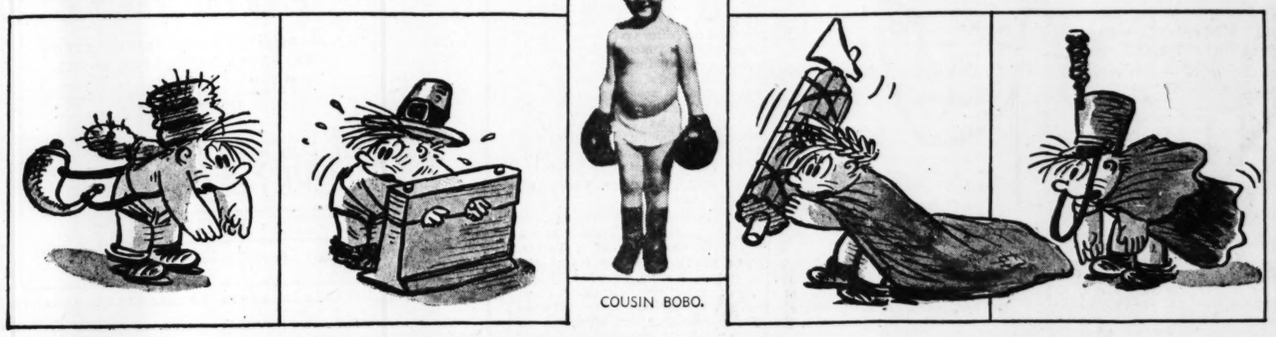

In the cartoons he did for Collier's, a new character gradually emerged — nameless but with real personality—a little squirt with a genius for getting into unpredictable and funny situations. The fan mail poured in. Owen christened the child "Jasper." As a promotion stunt Collier's held a you-name-him contest and Philbert was the winning name. Soon the panel was being discussed in Time magazine, News-Week and various columns. Frank Owen was made.

The following year he married Miss Vera Blomquist. They chose Christmas day for the wedding because they both believe in Santa Claus. "Mrs. Owen thinks up a lot of ideas and gags," Frank admitted. "She is really Jasper's mama, though you'd never guess it from the cartoons."

In spite of his success in a city which makes as many big heads as its does successes, Owen has remained the country boy. Much of his drawl is gone, because "a man has to talk fast up here to get anybody to listen to him." His proudest possession at the moment is a gold deputy sheriff's badge for Pompton Lakes, N. J. With some importance, he tells his friends, "If you get in any trouble out in my neck of the woods just call THE deputy sheriff and I'll take care of you."

When Owen isn't drawing he is hiking around the lakes and over the hills near his home. He is very careful never to miss the forest rangers when they come around to stock the lakes and streams. "If you go along with those birds you can always find out where the good trout holes are going to be."

Child's Reading Important for Mental Growth

As Essential for Development of Mind as Food Is for Body.

By Angelo Patri

READING for children is about as important to mental growth and development as food is for the growth of the body. We are too casual about it, too neglectful of its quality and quantity.

In the first grades of the elementary schools children learn to read. They master the mechanics of reading; learn the form and the sounds of words; learn to string them together as the eye sweeps across the printed page; learn to accent the words so as to make them take on meaning and color. But they do not really read.

Reading is the power to get the meaning of the words printed on the pages. The beginners get the name words and the verbs clearly enough, but when the rest of the sentence is woven about those words the beginner is likely to lose his way. He keeps on reading mechanically, but the best of the meaning escapes him. That is why so many children cannot study their lessons economically, as to time and energy; why so many children have difficulty in working out problems in arithmetic that are mimeographed or printed for them; why many a child who might otherwise get a good mark gets a low one on written tests. They lack the power to read for the meaning. That sort of reading comes only after long practice.

This practice we hope to give the children by offering them reading for their leisure time. We hope that after learning to read they will learn to read to learn, the real object of reading. The books we offer the children then must attract them, must be easy to read, not written in involved sentences, in long and unusual words. The book that a child reads, and this means high school students too, should be easier to read than the text used in class. In class the teacher and the group are at hand to help, but in practice reading the reader is on his own.

The selection of books for leisure reading is a nice matter to be managed by the discreet teacher or parent. It will not do to push the classics. The child must begin on the books that his stage of growth can digest, and if that means the Rollo books, Henty, the Cowboy stories and the deadly series; we must be still and hope that this stage of growth will soon pass. We have to keep slipping in a better book, and here again, much discretion is needed. What an adult thinks is better may not be what the child's mind thinks good at all.

Reading the right sort of books oneself, leaving them around, reading bits from a good book occasionally, praising a fine story, talking about a good book at table—all these are good ways of creating a child's interest and furthering his taste for good reading.

Angelo Patri has prepared a leaflet entitled, "Baby Carriages" in which he tells parents how to make the carriage ride a happy, profitable experience. Send for it, addressing your request to Mr. Angelo Patri, Child Psychology Department of this paper. Enclose a self - addressed, stamped (3 - cent) envelope.

HUNTING FOR A JOB.

If you think you know a lot
About your work; that you have got
What it takes to make a good
Employe, I just wish you would Look for a job.
You start out feeling big and free
You think, "Ah, if they do hire me,
They'll get their money's worth."
Then
Gradually—deflation, when
You hunt a job.
You start out feeling very chic
And end up feeling very meek;
You're conscious of your freckled nose
And that long runner in your hose,
Hunting a job.
You find you must know everything,
Have poise that only years could bring,
And yet, as one they're clamorous
For someone young and glamorous
To hold the job.
You hunt all day on feet that ache,
Wondering when you'll get a break,
That means another dame
Gets that job.
You drag on home lower than a snake
To face the family, sadly shake
Your head to questions. You would sob
With joy, if you could get a job,
Any old job.

DOUBLE WEDDING

A Serial of Upset Ideas

BY PHILIP WYLIE

Charlie Calmly Tells Margit That He and Irene Are in Love — Bewildered, She Burst Into Tears.

CHAPTER SEVEN.

THE next few minutes in Margit's life were the most bewildering she had ever spent. She was in a saloon. Her sister was tight. Waldo was tight. An obviously insane, if rather good looking young man—a young man with newspapers tied around his legs—a young man who wore a cap backwards—was dragging her into an absurd charade and talking so continuously that her most imperious "Stop this!" did not faze him.

"Yes," Charlie continued, "You're a top-lofty filly but one with so much animal magnetism that the primitive ruthlessness of Scarface Nick has lured you from the security of your yachts and caviar. Irene, get off the stage!

"You sit here, Margit." She was pushed on the "divan." If there was, somewhere in Charlie's eyes, a glint of remote amusement, nobody except possibly Spike detected it. If his continuation of the silly moving picture scenario was a deliberate effort to ruffle the suave self-assurance of Margit Agnew, he kept his intention fairly secret.

Margit plunked on the "divan," immediately stood up. Charlie pushed her down again and kept on talking. "Look! The scene changes! This is no longer the boudoir of a gangster's moll. It's the lobby of a tough hotel in Chicago. Now the roles are reversed! Margit—you're waiting for Nick! Nick comes into the hotel with his chopper to erase the Petronis. You see him!" He jerked her head around. "You leap to your feet." He pulled her up. "You throw your arms around him." He put Margit's arms around himself. "'Nick!' you exclaim. 'Nick! At last!' You kiss him."

Charlie kissed Margit soundly.

Then he stepped back. "Shall we shoot it?"

There was silence. During Charlie's mad maneuvers Margit had been fighting furiously for an opportunity to say or do anything. Now that she had it, she stood perfectly still, her lips compressed, her eyes flashing, her face pale.

Irene looked frightened. "Margit," she began, and her voice cracked. "I'd like to introduce Charlie." She realized that she did not know Charlie's last name—and not knowing made things worse.

Margit was already numb and weaving, but this shock brought her up shortly. "You don't think—what?"

Charlie looked at his wrist watch. He spoke in the politest possible tone, but his eyes still gleamed as he looked at Margit. "It is a bit lateish. Perhaps you'd prefer to withdraw to my place for the balance of the evening?"

Margit looked at him stonily. "Thank you, no—Mr. Jones. I'm taking my sister and her fiance to my house, where they should have been hours ago. I certainly have no more intention of spending more time in this—" she looked at Spike, "place. Or in any other—" she looked at Charlie, "like it."

Nobody seemed to be getting hats or coats. Charlie gazed at Margit sympathetically, but he shook his head. "I'm afraid you don't understand, Miss Agnew."

"I understand that you're all drunk!"

"I mean — since you last saw your sister, something has happened to her."

"I should say so," said Margit.

• • •

CHARLIE'S voice was like that of an older person trying to explain something to a small child. "I mean she's fallen in love with me."

Margit gasped.

"Don't you see, Margit, you just can't say 'it's half-past one and we had better go home now' to people who are in love? After all, your sister's twenty-one. I'm twenty-eight, We might decide to go on a ferry-boat ride to Staten Island, for instance. Sit on the deck and look at the moonlight. You know how love is. Nothing wrong with that, is there? You couldn't very well stop us—"

Margit was strangling. She turned to Waldo. To her intense dismay, she observed that Spike had just handed another high ball to him and he was drinking it rapidly. "Waldo!" she said frenziedly. "You'll just have to help me get Irene out of this."

Wald stopped drinking. His face was mild. "You can't do anything about it," he said slowly, if a bit thickly. "It's just one of those things. Irene said it was like a brick falling on her. She saw him and she loved him." His voice became wistful but heroic. "I, too, love Irene. But I wouldn't stand in the way of something real and deep and genuine. Besides, Charlie's a fine guy. Hell of a good director."

Margit's raving eyes came to rest on Charlie's face and he nodded. "He spoke like a man of the world, Margit."

She realized that she was dealing with a group of people who had temporarily gone mad. "I'll simply have to call the police," she said.

There was a little silence.

It was broken by a man in the gray suit who had once again awakened. "By golly," he murmured, "you folks are really getting the idea! This is pretty good." His next observation was addressed obviously to Margit. "Lady, I don't know where you came from, but you sure can look peeved. You look just like my wife will when I eventually get home. Spittin' mad!" His gaze traveled glassily toward Charlie. "I know what you've done! You've run in some professional talent! You can't fool Artemus Shrank."

He stared a moment longer, sighed appreciatively, and went back to sleep.

"What for?"

"So that I can take my sister and Mr. Beaver out of this place."

Charlie shook his head slowly. "No they won't, won't they. The police, my dear Miss Agnew, occupy themselves with enforcing the law. This is a legitimate restaurant. Spike serves the finest spaghetti in New York. Your sister is of legal age. I daresay Mr. Beaver could establish his sanity—although it might require some effort on his part. I am a responsible citizen. We are all slightly drunk—that I admit. In fact, I proclaim it. But we're not operating vehicles, committing misdemeanors, or disturbing the public peace, and there is no law in the world which prevents you from getting as aurie-eyed as you like in the company of friends amid pleasant surroundings. Calling the police, my dear Margit, would only be an embarrassment to you."

She said, "Will you kindly let go of my arm?"

He ignored the command and went on pleasantly, "Irene told me you were something of a Tartar. Since you're to be my future sister-in-law, I must do what little I can ot amend your disposition. You haven't spoiled our party—yet—but you've disrupted it. However, we are all in an indulgent mood. We'd be delighted to have you join us. If you don't care to, of course—" he shrugged.

Irene and Waldo had listened to the last part of his speech with goggling eyes. What happened next made their eyes goggle even more. They had imagined that Margit would murmur a few cabalistic words and melt Charlie Jones into a small inconspicuous puddle. It was obvious that her rage had reached that point whereat only the working of miracles would assuage it.

Instead, she burst into tears.

Nobody had ever seen Margit crying. It was said, indeed, that she had not even cried when she was a baby. Just looked at things—and thought about them. But now she was crying—and crying hard.

SYNOPSIS

Lovely Margit Agnew has her Long Island home, her dressmaking establishment and her emotions under perfect control. Her sister Irene, a more impulsive type, is engaged to Waldo, a young inventor, who has spent a probationary year in the Agnew home. Irene is out shopping one afternoon when she meets Charlie, a sidewalk artist, who takes her to Spike's saloon. Receiving the shattering news from Keough, the butler (who has secretly been studying detection), Margit goes to "Spikes's." There she finds Irene, Waldo, Charlie and the Italian proprietor "rehearsing" a movie scene. Suddenly, Charlie grabs her. She is just the type they want for the haughty society girl.

A Reporters World Views After Travels

By The Rev. J. F. Newton

SIR PHILIP GIBBS, one of the greatest of reporters, is a wise interpreter of our times, and a charming man.

Once, when I invited him to lecture before my literary society in London, he declined on the ground that "my eloquence is visible but not audible." The truth is, he was too shy.

Of late years, he has been going to and fro in many lands, talking with all sorts and conditions of folk, high and low, famous and obscure, learning their ideas, forebodings and hopes. Statesmen and street-sweepers, politicians and policemen, ladies in robes of fur and waitresses, Communists, Fascists, pacifists, tories, reds, pinks, blacks—he interviews all alike.

Of course, he has learned many things, feeling the pulse of a generation, and one is the awful grip of fear upon the world. People in every land live in terror of what may happen.

Of two things he is convinced. First, the world is too nervous, too excited, overstimulated, almost hysterical. Life is dramatic, to be sure, but we exaggerate and overdo it. The radio, the press, the motion picture are competing in the over-emotionalism, the over-dramatization, of events. This he regards as one of the dangers of our period, and he is right.

The microphone, especially, is a peril, because it can so easily produce mass excitement and mass hysteria. It drenches us with sentimentalism—we cannot see straight or think clearly. Life is too dramatic; it is theatrical and out of proportion.

In spite of this blue-black picture he paints, his second conviction is hopeful, even cheerful. He does not believe that the big war we fear will come. It will not happen if we do not wish it to happen. It is time to get that bogey out of mind, he tells us—to burn those gas masks which are very spoiling to the human face and all ideals of beauty.

Let us hope he is right.

3 GOVERNORS OF THE SAME FAMILY WERE BORN AND RAISED IN THIS SAME HOUSE—THE WICKLIFFE'S

DIAL TURNS of the DALLAS "TIMES HERALD" IS A RADIO ENTERTAINER

"Wickland," the home of three Governors, in Bardstown, Ky., is reputed to be the only home in the United States where three Governors from one family came from one home. Gov. Charles Anderson Wickliffe built the house. His son, Robert, was born and reared there, and later became Governor of Louisiana. Gov. Charles Wickliffe's daughter married Col. Beckham, and their son J. C. Beckham, was born and grew up at Wickland. The latter was Governor of Kentucky for two terms, and the last owner of the house, which is considered one of the most perfect Georgian homes ever built.

WOMEN, too, appreciate the extra protection they get from Lifebuoy's purifying lather. In fact, more American women, men and children bathe with Lifebuoy than with any other soap. This fact came to light when 8 leading magazines questioned 120,000 women.

Tests show Lifebuoy is more than 20% milder than many so-called "beauty" and "baby soaps"... Grand for complexion! It gently penetrates the depths of your pores, removes all impurities ... Helps keep pores from stretching, and growing ugly... Leaves skin glowing with healthy beauty.

HARLAN COAL MEN INDICTED UNDER U. S. LABOR ACT

SHERIFF ALSO IS DEFENDANT

By the Associated Press.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Sept. 28.—A blanket indictment charging violation of the National Labor Relations Act was returned by a grand jury in Federal District Court late yesterday against 22 Harlan County coal mine companies, 24 executives of the companies, and 23 deputy sheriffs or former deputies.

Among the individual defendants were Sheriff Theodore R. Middleton and former Deputy Sheriff Ben Unthank, the latter named as chief gunman for the Harlan County Coal Operators' Association in testimony before the Senate Civil Liberties Committee during its investigation of conditions in Harlan County.

The defendants were accused of having, since July, 1935, "unlawfully and feloniously conspired to intimidate employes of the aforesaid company defendants in the free exercise and enjoyment of certain rights and privileges" under the Federal Constitution "to wit, the right and privilege of the said employes to self organization and to form and join and assist labor organizations and to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing and to engage in concerted activities for the purpose of collective bargaining and other mutual aid and protection, and secured to the said employes" by the National Labor Relations Act.

Charge Against Sheriff.

The indictment charged Sheriff Middleton with "using the power of his office to appoint the other said law officer defendants as deputy sheriffs, thereby giving them greater authority and power to threaten, beat and kill . . ."

Middleton was further charged with using his office to "protect" his co-defendants from legal punishment.

The association, the indictment continued, employed former Deputy Ben Unthank and paid him to employ "thugs and gunmen . . . to threaten, beat and kill said employes."

Amos W. W. Woodcock of Baltimore and George P. Jones of Washington, special assistant Attorneys-General who developed the charges in co-operation with Department of Justice investigators, said the maximum penalty on conviction was 10 years imprisonment.

Individual Bonds Up to $5000.

Judge H. Church Ford, before whom the indictment was returned, set bond for Sheriff Middleton and the company executives at $5000 each and for the other defendants at $2500 each. The defendants are to appear at the opening of the Federal District Court session at London, Ky., Nov. 22.

Others named as "law officer defendants" in the indictment were: Brutus Metcalf, George Lee, John P. Hickey, Frank White, Mose Middleton, Sherman Howard, Lee Ball, Earl Jones, Charlie Elliott, Merle Middleton, Ballard Irvin, Avery Hensley, Bob Eldridge, Hugh Taylor, Perry G. Noe, Lee Hubbard, Homer Turner, alias D. Y. Turner, Lee Fleenor, Bill Lewis, Allen Bowlin and Fayette Cox. Many of them had testified before the Civil Liberties Committee.

"Operator defendants" indicted were: Silas J. Dickinson, Charles S. Guthrie, George S. Ward, Kenes Bowling, Charles E. Ralston, Elbert J. Asbury, William H. Sieknecht, Armstrong R. Matthews, Denver B. Cornett, Robert E. Lawson, George Whitfield, Roscoe J. Petrie, Lewis P. Johnson, Pearl Bassham, John E. Taylor, James Campbell Stras, Arthur Ellison, Elijah F. Wright Jr., Robert C. Tway, Elmer D. Hall, Robert W. Creech, Charles B. Burchfield, C. Vester Bennett and Bryan W. Whitfield Jr.

Company Defendants.

"Company defendants" named were: The Mary Helen Coal Corporation, the Harlan Fuel Co., the Bardo Coal Mining Co., the Berger Coal Mining Co., the Black Mountain Corporation, the Blue Diamond Coal Co., the Clover Splint Coal Co., the Clover Fork Coal Co., the Cornett-Lewis Coal Co., the Crummies Creek Coal Co., the Harlan Wallis Coal Corporation, the High Splint Coal Co., the Kentucky Cardinal Coal Corporation, the Mahan-Ellison Coal Corporation, the Southern Mining Co., the R. C. Tway Co., the Three Point Coal Corporation, the Creech Coal Co., the Black Star Coal Co., the Harlan Collieries Co, the Harlan Central Coal Co., and the Southern Coal Co.
